NEW FIGURE RISES IN X-SCIENCE HERE

Mrs. Stetson's Sister May Now Take Nominal Control of the First Church.

LONG IN HER CONFIDENCE

Deposed Leader Excuses Mrs. Eddy for Her Downfall—"Animal Magnetism," Acting on Directors, Did It.

Out of the background of uncertainty and speculation which has stirred the congregation of the First Church of Christ (Scientist) since Mrs. Augusta E. Stetson was shorn of her growing power by the directors of the mother church, there is rising a figure which may dominate the situation in the near future. This figure is Mrs. Stetson's younger sister, Mrs. Stella Stimpson, a former pupil of Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy and holder from her of a certificate to teach and practice Christian Science throughout the world.

For many years Mrs. Stimpson has lived with her sister. She has been a regular attendant at the First Church services, but is little known outside of that small coterie of intimate friends who call frequently at the red brick and marble house adjoining the church, which was given to Mrs. Stetson just after the sanctuary was built.

She has always lived in the shadow of her elder sister's achievements as leader of the converts to Christian Science, who have followed the leadership of Mrs. Stetson without question and have added materially to the worldly possessions of the woman who until recently stood unchallenged as the recognized head of the First Church.

Mrs. Stimpson has had no part in her sister's work, except that of household associate, and, perhaps, counselor. She has never taught Christian Science. The certificate which she holds has never been called into use.

But that Mrs. Stimpson and her certificate from the High Priestess of Christian Science may now be brought to the fore by Mrs. Stetson as a means of retaining her hold as the real leader of the First Church flock is the belief of many who are close to the affairs of Mrs. Stetson and her household.

By elevating Mrs. Stimpson to the rôle of teacher and perhaps reader in the church, those who are in a position to know say that Mrs. Stetson would make a master stroke in offsetting the action of the mother church's action in depriving her of the right to teach or practice for a probationary period of three years.

May Retain Her Power.

With her sister installed as teacher and practitioner in the First Church congregation, the power exerted by Mrs. Stetson in the past would still be retained in the family, for the two sisters are devoted to each other. While Mrs. Stimpson would be the ostensible head of the church, Mrs. Stetson would be the real power, and without violating the decree of the mother church directors she could retain the influence she has held in the affairs of the church since it was built, at Central Park West and Ninety-sixth Street, ten years ago.

Such is the course of action which is being considered by Mrs. Stetson now, according to those who are close to her household. They say that an open break with the mother church and the severance of connection with that parent body would not be countenanced by the majority of the First Church congregation, that Mrs. Stetson is fully aware that the congregation would not submit to excommunication by the mother church, and that the expedient of placing her sister at the head of the church is about the only one open to her to retain her power.

The mother church in Boston has no power to revoke the teacher's certificate held by Mrs. Stimpson without cause. Such cause would necessitate the commission of acts of teaching or practice in conflict with some one of the by-laws or regulations of the Christian Science Church.

As Mrs. Stimpson has never taught, she cannot be amenable to any charges of malpractice, such as were made to the mother church directors in the case of the eighteen practitioners who were admonished a few days ago. Such also is the reasoning of those who have talked with Mrs. Stetson in the last few days.

With the Board of Trustees of First Church behind her, Mrs. Stetson would encounter no difficulty in placing her sister in the position which she vacates in bowing to the will of the mother church. Teacher in the Christian Science Church is not an elective office, nor yet is it made by appointment.

Selecting a Teacher.

According to the rules of the church the choosing of a teacher is a matter of selection alone, and the measure of influence swayed by such a teacher is largely the result of personal magnetism, that and the size of the class. With the Trustees backing her, Mrs. Stetson without difficulty could transfer her pupils to her sister Mrs. Stimpson.

No official word has come from Mrs. Stetson or her fellow-members on the Board of Trustees of First Church as to the course they will pursue, and the announcement that Mrs. Stimpson is being considered as the key to the situation will be a surprise to most of the congregation, even to the pupils of Mrs. Stetson, who have been wondering whether the deposed head of the Church would bow to the will of the mother church. But that they have been diligently devising ways and means of meeting the situation was evidenced yesterday when the following announcement was made through the publication department of the Christian Science Church:

> The Board of Trustees of First Church Christ (Scientist) of New York City has been frequently in session during the past two weeks and is diligently considering the matters relating to this church which have recently been so much discussed in the public press.
>
> This announcement, signed by Edwin F. Hatfield, Chairman of the Board of Trustees, accompanied a communication to Eugene R. Cox, Chairman of the Church's Committee on Publication, saying that the announcement was fully authorized.

Whether the Trustees have been called upon to pass on the expedient of placing Mrs. Stimpson in the place until recently held by her sister has not been learned, but, according to those who are in touch with Mrs. Stetson's affairs, it is reasonable to suppose that the matter has been brought before the board by Mrs. Stetson herself.

Little is known of Mrs. Stimpson outside of that coterie of intimate friends who have access to the inner circle of the Stetson household. Even to them some chapters of her history are unknown. She was married young in life, but whether her husband is dead or not is unknown to all but the chosen few. That she is the

FORBES WINS LAHM CUP.

Flies Almost from St. Louis to Richmond in 19¼ hours.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 13.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I landed in Chesterfield County, Va., in the balloon New York at 12:45 P. M. today. It was twenty miles south of Richmond and 731¼ miles from St. Louis. The distance was made in 19¼ hours, an average of 38 miles an hour. I won the Lahm Cup. A. HOLLAND FORBES.

RICHMOND, Va., Oct. 13.—Winning the Lahm Cup for the longest flight made in a balloon under the auspices of the Aero Club of America and breaking all speed records for long-distance flights, A. Holland Forbes of New York and ex-Mayor Max Fleischmann of Cincinnati landed this afternoon at 12:45 in Chesterfield County, twenty miles south of Richmond. The trip was made in the balloon New York, in which Mr. Forbes won the duration contest in the Indianapolis contest.

Starting from the gas works in St. Louis at 5:30 Tuesday afternoon the distance of 731¼ miles was made in nineteen hours and fifteen minutes, at an average rate of thirty-eight miles an hour. The balloon passed Lynchburg at 10:30 o'clock this morning. Soon after noon an apparently large body of water was seen ahead and a large town came into view below.

Mr. Forbes and his companion, realizing the fast time they were making, thought the water might be Chesapeake Bay and the city Norfolk, and adjudged it better to descend before the ocean was reached. The hazy weather helped to deceive the aeronauts in this respect, and it was not until after a landing was effected that they discovered that the town was Petersburg and the water the James River.

Mr. Forbes and Mr. Fleischmann came to Richmond as soon as they could get their balloon to a railroad point.

Mr. Fleischmann left to-night for his home in Cincinnati, while Mr. Forbes will take the 8:40 train in the morning for New York.

NEW PULITZER WILL FILED.

Under Document Signed in 1881 Walter Pulitzer Is Residuary Legatee.

A will made by Albert Pulitzer, the former publisher of The New York Journal, who committed suicide at Vienna on Oct. 3, was filed for probate here yesterday. It was dated July 30, 1881, and has a codicil, which was executed on April 23, 1884. By it Walter Pulitzer, son of the testator, is made residuary legatee.

According to cable dispatches received about a week ago from Vienna, another will of Albert Pulitzer's has been filed there. It was rumored about the Court House that the filing of the 1881 will here yesterday was the first step in the fight, which it has been announced Walter Pulitzer intends to make to assert his rights as Albert Pulitzer's son.

Under this will the testator's brother, Joseph Pulitzer, gets a gold Waltham watch and chain, gold cuff buttons, and turquois shirt studs, "with kindest wishes and blessings, invoking his kindly interest in the education and welfare of my son." His friend, John Dos Passos, receives a painted white silk handkerchief and two scarfpins as a token of the testator's kind regards. To his wife, Fannie Pulitzer, since deceased, Mr. Pulitzer left the household effects and $1,000 cash.

To the executors, the Union Trust Company and George G. Ward, the residue of the estate is left in trust for the benefit of his son, Walter Pulitzer, till he is 21 years old. At the time the will was drawn Walter Pulitzer was 7 years old, and he is consequently now entitled to the entire estate.

Under the will which the cable dispatch stated was filed for probate in Vienna, about $800,000 goes to London and Paris insurance companies, which, by arrangement, paid to Mr. Pulitzer $80,000 a year; $200,000 was left to the Vienna Ambulance Society, several other legacies were disposed of according to the Austrian law, and the remainder of his estate went to the testator's son Walter.

When the news of the will was received, Louis S. Posner, Walter Pulitzer's attorney, gave out a statement to the effect that his client is the only child of Albert Pulitzer and would vigorously protect his rights in his father's estate, which he believed to be very large. The proceedings along this line, would be, it was said, under the direction of John R. Dos Passos.

SLAIN GIRL NOT IDENTIFIED.

Missing South Scituate Woman Was Not Victim in Tiverton Case.

TIVERTON, R. I., Oct. 13.—The apparent confidence of the police that they had identified the body of a young woman found in scattered portions on the outskirts of this town on Monday gave way to-night in the face of new evidence. It had been thought that the body was that of Miss Gertrude Edwards, a South Scituate young woman. This theory was exploded when a No. 3 shoe was tried on one of the dismembered feet and found to fit it exactly. The missing young woman from South Scituate wears a size five shoe.

The police were working to-day on the theory that the murdered woman was Miss Edwards and were looking for a man with whom she is said to have disappeared Saturday, when she left her home in an automobile.

An autopsy was held on the torso today. The cause of death was either not ascertained or not made public. The doctors stated that it could not definitely be placed until the head is located. That is the only portion of the body now missing. The arms and a leg from the knee down were found at a place off Bulger Marsh Road, nearly a mile west of the point where the other portions of the legs were found on Monday.

SUFFRAGETTES SET FREE.

Government Orders Release Owing to Their Weakened Condition.

NEWCASTLE, England, Oct. 13.—Lady Constance Lytton and Mrs. H. N. Brailsford, who were sentenced to a month's imprisonment last Monday for taking part in a suffragette demonstration against David Lloyd-George, Chancelor of the Exchequer, were liberated to-night on a Government order owing to their weakened condition.

MT. M'KINLEY GUIDE COMES TO SEE COOK

Barrille Brings Diary He Kept on Ascent—Neighbors Say It Contradicts Cook.

MYSTERY IN PRESENT TRIP

Cook Declares That Printz, Too, Is Coming and That Any One May Question the Guides.

Special to The New York Times.

MISSOULA, Mont., Oct. 13.—"Big Ed" Barrille, the ex-lumberjack guide, who went with Dr. Frederick A. Cook on the alleged ascent of Mount McKinley, in Alaska, three or four years ago, has gone to New York with his record of experience. The purpose of the journey is not known here, and if he told any of his friends they are keeping very close mouthed about it. There are two surmises, one that he is a friend of Dr. Cook, and the other that he is going to see some one connected with the Peary expedition.

It is easy to understand, after talking but a little while with men who are familiar with the circumstances surrounding Barrille's connection with the Mt. McKinley expedition, that the evidence now in the possession of the big guide is of the greatest interest. It consists, in entirety, of a little, old, worn-out leather-covered memorandum book, in which Barrille made a daily diary during the expedition, with rough sketches drawn by himself. They covered the country.

There is solid reason for saying that that diary, if it ever sees the light of publication in the condition in which it was written, will everlastingly disprove Dr. Cook's assertion that he reached the summit of Mount McKinley on the occasion on which he claims to have accomplished that feat. But beyond saying this much it is not possible now to go without betraying confidence.

Dr. Cook's Alaskan Mountain expedition was practically organized in Missoula. There are living about here, in the different valleys, tributary to this little city, a number of men who have graduated from the business of lumber jacks to that of ranching or guiding for hunters and fishermen from the East. One of the best known of them is Fred Printz, who owns a ranch near the head of the valley, beyond the town of Hamilton, where the late Marcus Daly had his forest ranch.

Printz Claims $900 Due.

Printz was engaged by Dr. Cook as head guide, master of transportation, or boss of the expedition. He was to receive, he says, $150 a month for his work, but never got a cent of it. He worked for Dr. Cook for five months. He says that Cook owes him about $900, which would be pay for five months at $150, with interest for three years and more that the debt has been running.

Printz took as one of the men of the expedition Big Ed Barrille. Barrille is a French-Canadian, and the difficulties the people in these parts had with his name led to various contractions of it, so that it was cut from Barrille to Burrill, and finally to Brill, the name by which he was known to the other members of Dr. Cook's expedition. He is a huge, upstanding hulk of a man, over six feet tall, big but not fat, broad-shouldered and powerful, weighing more than 200 pounds. He has the blue eyes and sandy complexion of his race, and wears a great drooping tawny mustache, worn and frayed at the ends.

Also he has the loquacity of his people, which has resulted in more or less skepticism around here as to the exact value of the tales he tells. But of late he has developed a reticence not at all in accord with the reputation for talkativeness he had hitherto enjoyed. And his tactictunnity, goes with a shrewd business sense that seems likely to do him a very good turn before he is through with the present incidents.

Printz and Barrille went away with Dr. Cook and were gone for five months. When they returned to Hamilton, the chief village in the Bitter Root Valley, they both told a story to Miles Romney, editor of the local newspaper in Hamilton, in which they supported Dr. Cook's claim that he had reached the summit of Mount McKinley. Mr. Romney wrote out the interview and it was published in his newspaper.

It was not very long, however, before both Printz and Barille began saying privately that Cook had not reached the top of the mountain. They explained that their first talk had been partly in the nature of a brag, and was inspired partly also by the hope of securing from Cook the money that he owed them.

Barrille's Claim Only $65.

Barrille does not now contend Cook owes him much. He said recently that $65 would cover it. But Printz figures on the larger sum, and also says that there are other sums due from Cook to other members of the party.

When Barrille was questioned by his friends about the discrepancy between his two statements he showed them the diary he had kept. It had been written with an indelible lead pencil in the imitation red-leather-covered memorandum that he carried. This was just such a book as many of the guides possess, and in which they are accustomed to note down the chief incidents of the work on which they are engaged. It did not excite the least comment, therefore, that Barrille should have kept such a diary.

On the contrary it was quite what the guides of the Bitter Root would have expected him to do. It was in fact so clearly the regular thing that instead of exciting unfavorable comment it served at once to confirm in their minds the truth of the latest statements of Barrille and Printz. And it did that in such a matter of fact manner that hardly any of the men who saw the diary in those days can now recall its language, or, in fact, remember much more than that it was quite convincing.

They say that they did not read it with the close attention that would have fixed its details in their minds, and it should be remembered that there was then no especial controversy about the thing, and it was not a matter of importance. Nobody around here cared whether Cook had ascended Mount McKinley or not then, and as for Printz and Barrille, they were quite willing that Cook should achieve any glory he might out of his story, so long as they got their pay. The matter died a natural death comparatively quickly, and was not heard of again until Dr. Cook came with the announcement that he had discovered the north pole.

Laughed at Cook's Pole Story.

Long before that Printz and Barrille had given up hope of ever getting the money they say is due them. Both were going about their usual business as guides with hardly a thought of Cook.

BARRIE GETS DIVORCE SAYS WIFE ASKED IT

Playwright as Chief Witness Shows Deep Distress—Hearing Lasts Fourteen Minutes.

LENT CANNAN HIS COTTAGE

Mrs. Barrie Admitted Truth of Story Told by the Gardener's Wife and Refused Her Husband's Forgiveness.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 13.—James Matthew Barrie obtained from Sir John Bigham, President of the divorce court, this afternoon a decree nisi dissolving his marriage to Mary Barrie on account of her misconduct with Gilbert Cannan. The suit was undefended and the decree will be made absolute in six months, provided there is no intervention, which is unlikely. The whole proceeding lasted fourteen minutes.

Mr. Barrie himself was the principal witness, and was much affected while he was testifying. The date of the trial had been so well guarded that there were only nine persons in the public gallery during the hearing. Mr. Barrie's chief counsel was W. T. Barnard, K. C., instructed by Sir George Lewis, a famous solicitor. The playwright entered the courtroom five minutes before the case was called, accompanied by Lewis, and sat at the counsel table with bowed head, remaining in that position until he was called to the stand.

Mr. Barnard, in his opening, said that the parties to the suit were married in Scotland, July 9, 1894; that they had no children, and lived happily until about eighteen months ago, when Mr. Barrie became acquainted with the co-respondent. In November, 1908, Mr. Barrie lent Mr. Cannan the Blacklake Cottage, Farnham, Surrey for a short time, and part of the time Mrs. Barrie stayed there also, Mr. Barrie being away from home.

Story of Gardener's Wife.

Suspicion was not aroused, however, until July of this year, when Mrs. Kate Hunt, wife of the gardener at the cottage, told Mr. Barrie certain incidents occurring at the cottage in the preceding November. As a consequence he wired Mrs. Barrie to meet him in London, and told her what Mrs. Hunt had related. Mrs. Barrie replied: "It is perfectly true." Mr. Barrie then offered to forgive her on condition that she had nothing further to do with Cannan, or would agree to a separation. Mrs. Barrie refused and asked for her freedom.

When he was called to the stand Mr. Barrie answered counsel's questions in a voice broken with emotion. With blanched face and eyebrows working with agitation, he leaned forward on the witness stand, nervously toying with a ring on his wedding finger and scarcely ever looking up. Asked as to the date of the marriage, he replied: "I thought it was in 1895; that was my idea." Shown the marriage certificate, he agreed that it was a year earlier, adding that the ceremony was performed at the preacher's house, he, Barrie, being ill at the time.

Mr. Barrie said he first became acquainted with Mr. Cannan about eighteen months ago, when Cannan came to his house as the Secretary of a little committee connected with the censorship of the drama. He called frequently after that.

"In November, 1908," Mr. Barrie said, "I lent Mr. Cannan our cottage for two or three weeks while his own was being redecorated."

On July 28 last, the witness proceeded, Mrs. Hunt told him how one morning in November she took tea to Mr. Cannan's room and found it empty. Going then to Mrs. Barrie's room, she heard her exclaim, "Gilbert! Gilbert!"

Mr. Barrie Breaks Down.

"Did you tell your wife about this?" counsel asked.

"Yes. She said, 'It is all quite true,'" Mr. Barrie replied, and quite broke down in giving his answer. He pulled himself together, however, to explain how, after he had told her he must consult Sir George Lewis, she had replied that this was the only time such a thing had happened.

"I told her," said Mr. Barrie, "if she would return contrite I would forgive her, and she could come back and no one would know anything about it, but she said how much more ignoble it would be to come back knowing that Cannan was the only person in the world for her."

Mr. Barrie, on resuming his seat at the side of Sir George Lewis, wiped his eyes with his handkerchief. Other witnesses were called, but soon Justice Bigham stopped the case, saying:

"I have heard quite enough. You may take a decree, with costs, against Cannan."

Mr. Barrie and Sir George Lewis then quietly left the courtroom. Neither Mrs. Barrie nor Mr. Cannan was in court, nor was either represented.

M'CARREN OPERATED ON FOR APPENDICITIS

Senator Recovers Consciousness Early This Morning, but His Condition Is Serious.

HE'S OUT OF THIS CAMPAIGN

Democratic Politicians in Brooklyn Worried—There May Be a Great Overturning There.

Senator Patrick H. McCarren, Democratic leader of Kings County, was suddenly stricken with appendicitis early last night in the Hotel Clarendon in Washington Street, Brooklyn, and was hurried to St. Catherine's Hospital, that borough, where he was operated on by Dr. Peter Hughes, his family physician.

Dr. Hughes believes that the operation was successful, but up to a late hour the patient had not fully shaken off the effects of the ether administered to him, and his condition could not be exactly determined.

Just before midnight this bulletin was issued at the Hospital regarding the Senator's condition:

Senator McCarren is still under the influence of the anaesthetics. His condition is very serious.

PETER HUGHES, M. D.

At 1:30 o'clock this morning it was said at the hospital that the Senator had recovered from the anaesthetic; that his strength was being maintained, and that his pulse was good, but it was impossible yet to predict the outcome. The hospital staff, however, seemed hopeful of his recovery.

Politicians Startled.

The news of the widely known political leader and legislator's sudden and supposedly serious illness caused a stir among politicians throughout the city. Much uneasiness was felt by the friends and followers of the Senator, and there was a steady demand for information as to his condition at the hospital and at Democratic headquarters in Brooklyn.

As it seemed unlikely that Senator McCarren would be able to do any further work in the campaign, Arthur C. Salmon, Treasurer of the organization, sent out a call last night for a meeting of the Democratic Executive Committee to-day. At this meeting arrangements will be made to continue the work of the campaign in Brooklyn without Senator McCarren's direction.

The Brooklyn leader had been complaining lightly for several days that he felt out of sorts. He had been working hard, not only in overcoming the opposition in the naming of the local ticket and in organizing the work of the campaign, but also in other ways, having found time to make two addresses on Tuesday night. One of these was on the subject of direct primaries, before the Men's Club of All Souls' Church, in Flatbush, and the other at the Columbus Day banquet of the Italian societies in Brooklyn.

McCarren Under a Strain.

Senator McCarren showed the effects of the strain he was under when he presided at a conference of the local leaders yesterday afternoon. Leaving Democratic Headquarters in Court Square after this meeting with Deputy Tax Commissioner James H. Tully, the Senator remarked:

"Jim, I don't feel good at all. I don't know what is the matter with me."

Parting with Mr. Tully, he walked down to the Hotel Clarendon. Late in the afternoon he suffered a severe attack of pain, and a Clinton Street physician was called. This doctor advised him to consult at once with his family physician, Dr. Peter Hughes, of 467 Bedford Avenue. When Dr. Hughes reached the Clarendon at 7 o'clock he found that the Senator's side was badly swollen. As he touched the swelling Mr. McCarren winced.

"You've got it and you've got it badly," said the physician.

"Got what?" asked the Senator.

"Appendicitis," returned Dr. Hughes.

"That's what I thought it was," said the Senator. "What are you going to do about it?"

Operated on Immediately.

"You ought to be operated on immediately," advised the doctor.

"Very well, Doc," responded the Senator, with characteristic coolness, "what's stopping you?"

Dr. Hughes had the Senator removed in a private ambulance to St. Catherine's Hospital. His nephew and private secretary, David Hogan, accompanied him to the hospital. He was placed at once on the operating table and Dr. Hughes performed the operation, which occupied about three-fourths of an hour. It was found that Senator McCarren was in robust physical condition when he was examined upon his arrival in the hospital, but it was deemed necessary to perform the operation without delay.

Tried to Keep the News In.

Efforts were made by some of the leaders and friends of the Senator last night to keep the news of his sudden illness from becoming public. It was explained afterward that this was done so that it might not reach the ears of his aged mother.

Mrs. Mary McCarren, the Senator's mother, with whom he lives at 87 Berry Street, is 84 years old and in poor health. She has been under the care of a trained nurse for some time. The Senator's aunt, Mrs. Bernard J. McCarren, who also lives with them, learned of his illness, but kept it from the mother. A niece and nephew of Mr. McCarren spent the night at the hospital with him.

Crisis Within Three Days.

The physicians said that the crisis in his case would probably be reached within three days. Dr. Hughes is the chief surgeon of the hospital, and has a reputation for skill in the treatment of appendicitis. Because of this, the friends of the Senator are hopeful that the operation has been successful and that he will recover.

The news of their leader's plight caused consternation in the McCarren political camp in Brooklyn. There seemed to be a belief that there was no man in the organization who seemed big enough to take his place should there be an unlooked-for outcome to his illness. In such an unexpected event there would probably be the greatest changing around of things in the history of the Democracy in Brooklyn.

JUDGE WILLIAMS INDICTED.

Candidate for Attorney General in Virginia Charged with Assault.

HUNTINGTON, West Va., Oct. 13.—Judge Samuel W. Williams of Virginia, candidate for Attorney General, has been indicted on a charge of felony at Welch, West Va.

The indictment grew out of an assault made by Judge Williams on Judge J. M. Saunders, former member of the Supreme Court, during a trial at Welch. Judge Saunders lay in a hospital many days. A requisition will be sought to bring the Virginia jurist to this State.

DEAN ALDEN GIVES UP POST.

Ill-Health Compels Gov. Hughes's Legal Adviser to Resign.

ABANY, Oct. 13.—Carlos C. Alden of Buffalo, Gov. Hughes's legal adviser, has resigned on account of ill health. Dean Alden had a serious operation last year and he has prosecuted his work at the executive chamber under great difficulties.

His physicians finally insisted that he give up his position in order that he may have full opportunity to regain his strength.

NEW GOULD IN WEST. UNION.

Kingdon, Son of George, Made a Director in Harriman's Place.

Kingdon Gould, son of George J. Gould, who has recently been elected to a number of directorates in which his family's interests are dominant, was elected yesterday to the vacancy in the board of the Western Union Telegraph Company caused by the death of E. H. Harriman. At the same time Edward T. Jeffrey and Alvin W. Krech were elected to succeed James Hazen Hyde and Thomas T. Eckert.

The full pamphlet report of the company shows, as did estimated statements of earnings previously published, a marked increase in net revenue during the year ended June 30 over the previous year. The gain in gross was from $28,582,212 to $30,541,072, while operating expenses dropped from $25,179,215 to $28,193,966. Net revenue, therefore, was $7,347,106, which compares with $3,402,997 in 1907-8.

Dividend disbursements were increased during the year from $1,714,571 to $2,729,435, and the surplus for the year of $2,875,421 compares with the previous year's deficit of $43,824. Total surplus at the close of the year was $17,269,277.

MISS ELEANOR SEARS FINED.

Defended by Harold Vanderbilt When Tried for Speeding in Auto.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Oct. 13.—Miss Eleanor Sears, a Boston society girl, was found guilty in the Quincy Police Court to-day of overspeeding her automobile and was fined $15. She pleaded not guilty and was defended by Harold W. Vanderbilt, a law student at Harvard. It was his first effort at defending a real case in court.

Miss Sears and Mr. Vanderbilt came to Quincy by train from Boston and sat in the courtroom until the case was called.

William S. Fallon, a Milton policeman, testified that on Oct. 7, in Milton, he saw a big touring car going at the rate of forty miles an hour through the streets. The driver wore a man's derby hat and a man's long coat and riding boots. After following the speeding car in another automobile for a mile and a half, he overtook the speeder, and found that the person in the man's hat and coat, who was running the car, was Miss Sears.

Mr. Vanderbilt whispered to his client after the policeman had left the stand and Miss Sears stood up.

"Why, I was going no more than thirty miles an hour," she said.

Then she sat down.

"You are fined $15, Miss Sears," said the court.

She laughed and paid the fine. Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont was in court with Miss Sears and Mr. Vanderbilt.

URGES A MAYOR'S INDICTMENT

Court Charges Grand Jury in Atlantic City Excise Cases.

Special to The New York Times.

MAYS LANDING, N. J., Oct. 13.—In a courtroom crowded with politicians, saloon keepers, hotel men, police officials, and reformers, Supreme Court Justice Trenchard, in his address to the October Atlantic County Grand Jury, bitterly arraigned the violators of the law in Atlantic City.

After insisting that it was the duty of the jury to return indictments against every one of the 260 persons accused of selling liquor in violation of the law, where proof of guilt was shown, Justice Trenchard called attention to the case of Mayor Stoy of Atlantic City, who is charged with misdemeanor in having neglected to proceed against offenders when ordered to do so by the Attorney General of the State.

The court created a stir when he announced that Attorney General Wilson would be present during the session of the jury to assist the Prosecutor in presenting evidence of violation of the liquor law, gambling houses, opium dens, and disorderly resorts, and against Mayor Stoy, who, as the court pointed out, "will be charged with neglect of duty."

"If the evidence presented to you bears out this charge," continued the court, "you should indict Mayor Stoy, regardless of the fact that he is Mayor. No man is compelled to be a public official, but when once he takes office he must abide by the consequences of his acts."

COLDEST OCT. 13 SINCE 1875.

Cold Snap Ruins Fruit Trees—Buffalo Has Three Inches of Snow.

Most New Yorkers, before starting for business yesterday morning, spent a minute or two debating whether or not they should take an overcoat along. Most of them probably decided in the negative.

Nevertheless, yesterday, according to the Weather Bureau, was the coldest Oct. 13 we have had hereabout in thirty-four years. The thermometer reached its lowest, 39 degrees, at 7 A. M., when most folks were thinking of rising. Its high mark was at 3:30 P. M., when 49 was registered.

From Buffalo, Lockport, Utica, Middletown, and other up-State towns, stories of falling snow and damaged trees and grain came ticking in all day long over the telegraph wire. At Lockport 15,000 peach and other fruit trees were ruined by a snowstorm. Three inches of snow fell in Buffalo, and the Adirondacks were reported to have turned to white over night.

Ice formed over the ponds and lakes of Sullivan County. The grape crop in Seneca County was badly hurt. Trains entering Utica from the north showed signs of having passed through heavy snowstorms, and a killing black frost was found to have settled on the farm lands over night.

There will be no snow here to-day or to-morrow, according to the Weather Man last night. But the thermometer will get down as low as 36 or 38, and there will be a crisp wind from the west.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 13.—Wild scenes of tumult to-night followed a day of excitement in Paris following the announcement that Prof. Francisco Ferrer had been shot to death in Barcelona in fulfillment of the decree of the court-martial that found him guilty of inciting the recent revolt against the Spanish Government. As the day progressed the fury of the Socialistic element was encouraged by the news that similar demonstrations had taken place in Rome and Brussels, in protest at the execution of the Spanish revolutionary.

Soldiers Use Their Swords.

For several hours to-night Paris had vivid reminders of its old days of turmoil and mob rule. At least 100,000 persons watched an attempted attack on the Spanish Embassy. The police and soldiers had to resort to the use of their swords. A rioter fired point blank at M. Lépine, Prefect of Police, killing a Sergeant de Ville immediately behind him. Another rioter was severely wounded by a sabre thrust. Among other wild antics of the mob was overturning and burning motorbuses and opening fire plugs in order to drench the police.

For two weeks the least orderly elements of the Paris population have been worked to a higher and higher pitch of resentment over the trial and impending fate of Ferrer. Several significant demonstrations have taken place, but to-day's news of his execution was made the pretext for organizing a movement which, but for the prompt measures of repression, might have developed into a serious outbreak.

Mob of Many Elements.

The mob was composed of Socialists, Anarchists, professed revolutionaries, members of the General Confederation of Labor, ruffians commonly classed under the name of Apaches, and all the lowest dregs of society. In anticipation of what happened, a thousand soldiers and policemen had been placed on guard at the Spanish Embassy in the Boulevard de Courcelles.

The first important manifestation followed a meeting at the Labor Exchange Annex in the Rue Jean Jacques Rousseau. Men marched the streets in procession shouting, "Down with the Spanish Government!" But they were easily dispersed by the police. Just before the anti-military journals La Guerre Sociale and Humanité had issued editions filled with inflammatory appeals urging the people of Paris to go in a mass to the Spanish Embassy and express their abhorrence of the execution of Ferrer, declaring it was an infamy never to be effaced. Henri Rochefort had declared in the morning newspapers that the Spanish Government had committed a blunder which might have the most grievous consequences. At the Place de l'Opéra the Spanish colors were displayed during the day draped in black. Members of the Socialist organizations and the General Confederation of Labor resolved to boycott Spanish ships and merchandise at all French ports.

At 9 o'clock the gathering storm was assuming an ugly aspect. The vast multitude in the Boulevard de Courcelles near the Park de Monceau was suddenly charged by the Municipal Guard. A moment later the rioters, advancing in another direction, were again charged. Seven shots were fired from the mob, one of which killed a member of the bicycle brigade. Another wounded the Chief Municipal Guard. A Spaniard named Lalore, believed to be the assassin, has been arrested.

Hand-to-Hand Encounters.

There were many hand-to-hand encounters between the rioters and the police before the mob was driven away from the neighborhood of the embassy. It then proceeded along the boulevards, shouting in wild delirium and anger. It was long after midnight before it was finally dispersed.

Another demonstration of Anarchists took place at Clichy, in the outskirts of Paris, but here the manifestants were quickly dispersed.

There were numerous demonstrations throughout the provinces, and the Da partmental Council of Bouches du Rhone adjourned as a token of mourning.

NO OUTBREAK IN BARCELONA.

Elaborate Precautions, However, Had Been Taken Against Bombs.

PARIS, Oct. 14.—A dispatch to the Matin from Barcelona says that the execution of Ferrer did not produce the effect expected. The Barcelona newspapers print brief details of the affair without comment. Ferrer was never popular in Barcelona, and latterly the censorship has been very stringent, so that the public is ignorant of the manifestations abroad or has been led to believe that they were organized and paid for with Ferrer's money. Thus there has been little expression of sympathy.

The execution took place simultaneously with the announcement of the sentence and surprised the public, but here has been no demonstration. Elaborate precautions, however, were taken by the authorities, who feared that bombs might be used. What to-morrow will bring forth cannot be foretold.

Owing to the strict censorship at Madrid nothing with reference to the effect the execution has had in Madrid reached Paris to-night.

By his will Ferrer leaves the bulk of his fortune to his children, with the express desire that they turn it over to two well-known revolutionaries to continue his schools.

Scientific World Indignant.

The news of the execution of Ferrer at Barcelona created a tremendous sensation when printed here to-day. The newspapers issued extra editions with glaring headlines, some of them expressing the belief that King Alfonso had compromised his future by failing to intervene. Interviews printed show that many persons prominent in the scientific and political world are both indignant and pained at the day's events in Spain. A member of the Institute said he was stupefied at the execution, which he characterized as an act of political cannibalism.

M. Reinach said he had thought it incredible that the King would decline to intervene. He added:

"Ferrer was the victim of the monks, who are all powerful in Spain now that they have been reinforced by their colleagues who were expelled from France. It was impossible of belief that Spain would dare thus to defy the universal conscience."

M. Picavet, Secretary of the College of France, who said he had read all of Ferrer's books, declared that the "modern school" which the author advocated was simply neutral instruction, such as prevailed in France.

The fate of Ferrer had aroused since the beginning of his trial the most intense interest in France. The Paris papers devoted pages to the case this morning before the sentence of death had been carried out. Even those which are most moderate in tone expressed the hope that King Alfonso would intervene to prevent the consummation of "a political assassination" of "a revolutionary ideaist," while the radical papers indulged in the most violent language, placing responsibility for Ferrer's condemnation upon the supremacy of the Clerical reaction in Spain.

Jaures Predicts Revolution.

M. Jaurès, the Socialist Deputy, had an interview in a morning paper in which he predicted that if Ferrer was shot a conflagration would be started which would not be extinguished until "Spanish political life has been purged of the clerical influences which are paralyzing the progress of the nation and shocking the conscience of Europe."

A special dispatch to the Temps from Madrid says the Spanish Minister of the Interior announced to-day that he intended to publish the threats received by him since Ferrer was incarcerated. The press of Madrid is permitted to print only the official communications regarding the case of Ferrer. The dispatch adds that hundreds of persons assembled on the hillsides surrounding Montjuich Fortress and remained through the night. They were prevented by the troops from approaching the prison.

Ferrer's daughter, who has been thrown on her own resources and since her father's arrest has been working in a biscuit factory here, is prostrated to-day by the news of his death.

In a letter written to the Siècle by Ferrer on Oct. 7 he says that the evidence against him at the court-martial consisted of depositions made by 3,000 persons confined in the prisons in Catalonia and the hearsay testimony of others. There was not a single witness who gave a scintilla of direct evidence implicating him in the insurrection.

FERRER SHOT IN A DITCH.

One Volley Kills Him—He Shows Bravery to the End.

BARCELONA, Oct. 13.—Prof. Francisco Ferrer, the Spanish educator and convicted revolutionist, was executed to-day by shooting at the fortress of Montjuich, where he had been confined since his condemnation by court-martial. He faced the firing squad without flinching and fell dead at the first volley.

Except for a momentary expression of emotion immediately before the execution, Ferrer retained his composure to the last. His attorney, M. Galceran, who had defended the prisoner so loyally as to bring about his own arrest for improperly addressing the court, had secured permission for a brief talk with the revolutionist before the latter was led to the ditch where he was to die. To his attorney Ferrer spoke feelingly of the work for which he had sacrificed his life and of the future of his daughter, whose brave attempt to save his life touched the father more deeply than any other incident of his trial and conviction.

On Ferrer's arrest his family was left dependent upon this daughter, who at once secured employment in a biscuit factory. When it was known that her father had been sentenced to death she made a personal appeal to King Alfonso, calling upon him in the name of his known generosity and chivalry to spare her father's life.

When these facts were related by Galceran, Ferrer broke down. It was but a passing emotion, and presently he was himself again.

Ferrer declined to receive the last sacraments, and turned away from the two priests of the Order of Peace and Charity who had been sent by the prison authorities to offer him the final consolation of the Church.

When the hour of his execution arrived he walked bravely through the prison yard to the ditch in the shadow of the encircling wall. Without a quiver he faced the twelve infantrymen, who at the word of command fired a single volley. When the report had died away Ferrer was dead upon the ground.

The firing squad was drawn by lot, and the command to fire was given by Gen. Eserin. Just before his eyes were bandaged Ferrer examined his will, which had been drafted for him by Señor Permayer, dean of the notaries, while the preparations for the execution were going on. The contents of the will have not been made public.

Before the execution precautions had been taken to forestall a possible attempt at rescue by doubling the sentinels on the walls of the fortress.

FERRER PROSECUTED BEFORE.

Was Accused of Plotting the Life of the King.

With the execution of Francisco Ferrer the authorities have removed from the affairs of Spain one who has long been suspected of revolutionary activities, and who, because of his education and influence, was deemed of peculiar danger to the State.

The decree of the court-martial was carried out in the face of protests, at times violent in form, by sympathizers with the prisoner, not only in Spain, but in parts of France and Italy. In Paris and Rome these protests were voiced at mass meetings of workmen of Socialistic tendencies. In these capitals attacks were attempted upon the Spanish Embassies, which, however, were protected by police and soldiery.

Alfonso Threatened With Death.

Many petitions for clemency were addressed to King Alfonso, who was also threatened with death as the alternative if he failed to spare Ferrer's life. The Council of War and Marine at Madrid, to which the papers of the court-martial were submitted, made no move toward clemency, and it was subsequently announced that the Cabinet had approved the court's findings, and found no warrant for a recommendation to the King for mercy.

Ferrer's attorneys claimed that he did not have a fair trial, as the witnesses were not examined in open court, only their depositions being read.

Ferrer was formerly a Director of the Modern School of Barcelona, and was repeatedly accused of teaching revolutionary doctrines. In 1906 he was arrested, charged with complicity with Manuel Morales in the attempt upon the life of King Alfonso, which was made on the day of the King's marriage to Princess Ena of Battenberg on May 31 of that year.

Acquitted on Former Charge.

After a trial in which the prosecution sought to obtain a long term of imprisonment for him Ferrer was acquitted.

On Sept. 1 last he was arrested, charged with having incited rioting which occurred in Barcelona last Summer. This outbreak, which spread through the Catalonian provinces, was in the nature of a protest against the sending of Spanish troops against the Moors on the Riff coast, and for a time assumed alarming proportions. It was alleged that Ferrer was a principal in the uprising against the Government. At his trial documents were submitted alleged to have related to revolutionary movements and to have included the proclamation of a Spanish republic. His counsel declared that Ferrer was the victim of the hatred for him of the Conservatives.

MOBS PROTEST IN ROME.

Police Succeed in Keeping Them from the Spanish Embassy.

ROME, Oct. 13.—The execution of Francisco Ferrer at Barcelona caused a profound impression here, and tonight there was a serious demonstration of protest against the action of the Spanish Government. There were cries of "Long live Ferrer!" "Down with reactionism, down with the Jesuits, down with Merry del Val!" The police and troops succeeded in maintaining comparative order and prevented the approach of the demonstrators to the square where the Spanish Embassy stands.

It is reported that a few days ago Ferrer's daughter telegraphed to the Pope from Paris asking his intervention to save her father's life. The Pontiff was deeply moved and exclaimed: "Poor child, if I could succeed in softening the grief of her afflicted soul it would be a great consolation for me."

The Spanish Ambassador to the Holy See, in an interview to-night, said that neither he nor his colleague accredited to the Quirinal had ever been informed of any request for a pardon for Ferrer. He added that the Pope may have asked for a pardon independently of him.

It is believed that the execution was hastened by the fear that the Pope would intervene. According to this theory, the Spanish authorities wished to prevent their sovereign from being placed in a position where he might have to grant or refuse a Papal request for pardon.

What attitude the Vatican assumed toward the Ferrer case cannot be learned, as the officials maintain complete reticence in the matter. They will neither deny nor affirm that any step looking to a pardon for the revolutionist was taken, but it is understood that if anything was done the negotiations were carried on directly between the Pope and King Alfonso.

The one phase of the affair that the Vatican emphatically denies is the assertion that the Spanish Ambassador here took any action to prevent the intervention of the Pope to procure a pardon.

SPAIN'S ACT CONDEMNED.

London Papers Say Ferrer Trial Should Have Been a Civil One.

LONDON, Oct. 14.—The execution of Ferrer is denounced in strong terms by the Liberal morning newspapers. The other papers are more moderate in tone, and consider that Ferrer ought to have been tried by the ordinary process of law. Fears are expressed that the affair will lead to grave internal troubles for Spain.

No public demonstrations of protest have yet been reported in the United Kingdom except at Liverpool, where a mass meeting of citizens last night adopted a resolution of sympathy for Ferrer's widow and of denunciation of the Spanish Government.

DEMONSTRATION IN BRUSSELS.

Socialist Paper Thinks Alfonso Has Signed His Own Death Warrant.

BRUSSELS, Oct. 13.—The organized Socialists paraded the principal streets tonight in protest against the execution of Ferrer. There was no disorder.

The Peuple, a Socialist organ, announced the death of Ferrer in a special edition to-day. Editorially the paper says:

"The awful news will unchain a tempest. We fear that in refusing to stop the execution Alfonso has signed his own death warrant."

TAMMANY CAPTAIN ARRESTED.

Charged with Substituting Ballots at Primaries—Three Other Prisoners.

Detectives made yesterday the remaining four arrests resulting from the series of nine indictments returned by the Grand Jury in connection with the alleged primary frauds by which the Independence League passed into the hands of Tammany Hall.

Jacob Ernst of 116 St. Mark's Place was arrested in the morning, and, pleading not guilty, was held in $1,000 bail. He is the Tammany Captain in the Second Election District of the Tenth Assembly District, and is specifically charged with having added six Independence League ballots containing the names of Tammany officers.

David R. Freedman of 54 East 116th Street, William Kursman of 652 East 117th Street, and Leopold Michel of 534 West 138th Street are charged with being colleagues of Cohen, who was taken to the Detective Bureau on Tuesday. All four are Inspectors in the Nineteenth and Twentieth Election Districts of the Twenty-ninth Assembly District. They are accused of taking advantage of the upsetting of a ballot box to slip in a number of extra ballots, which they had concealed about their clothing. The men are being held in $1,000 bail each.

MT. M'KINLEY GUIDE COMES TO SEE COOK

The announcement of the north pole discovery at first struck the funny bones of both, and they laughed about it. They were openly and frankly skeptical and made no bones of saying so.

"Cook did not find the north pole," said Printz, "but I thought all the time that he would claim that he had if ever he got back from up there."

Printz still maintains that attitude of frank disbelief. But Barrille developed a canny streak very soon after the polar controversy arose and has been much more guarded in his language. He has managed to maintain a fairly non-committal attitude, and the nearest he has come to an open declaration was the statement that after he had seen Cook he would make an affidavit as to the Mount McKinley ascension. Whether that affidavit would say that Cook reached the summit or failed to do so Barrille has never given any intimation.

He has let it be known, however, that he still has the diary. In fact, he has shown the little red book very recently and has permitted a few persons to read the major portion of it. There is a man in Missoula who read all Barrille had recorded about the alleged ascent of the big Alasgan peak. He saw the book in confidence, however, and is not at liberty to discuss the statements it contains.

Book Shows Its Usage.

This man says that the book bears on its face the evidence of its authenticity. It shows its age and the usage it has had, and in the manner and matter of its contents gives every reason for belief in its truth. This man was especially struck by the rough sketches Barrille made of the camping places along the route and of the other mountains visible from their positions. There is a particularly interesting sketch of the camp at Glacier Point and another from that camp showing eight other peaks in a group near McKinley.

There is much frank discussion in Missoula as to Barrille's purpose in going East. It was assumed at once that he had gone to see Dr. Cook. He has said that he had received a telegram from Cook asking him to come on at Cook's expense. He also said that he would not go at Cook's expense, as that might obligate him to Cook in some way, and he did not care to be under any such obligations. There are men around Hamilton who have seen the diary who say that the only possible thing Cook could want with it would be to destroy it.

The especial value of Barrille's testimony lies in the fact that after Cook had apparently abandoned his first attempt to climb McKinley and had sent the rest of his party to other places he kept Barrille alone with him, and his story has always been that he and Barrille were the only men of the original expedition to get to the summit.

With Barrille's diary out of the way the explorer would be in a position to make, at least a good argument for his case. But there are substantial business men of Hamilton who have seen the diary and have heard from Barrille the declaration that Cook did not reach the summit of Mount McKinley.

May Give Diary to Peary Club.

zIt is also suggested here to-day that Barrille has gone not to see Cook but to consult with members or representatives of the Peary Arctic Club. If the diary is all that those around Hamilton have seen it represent it to be its value to that club needs no explanation. There is also a possibility that representatives of the explorers have been in communication with Barrille and that he has gone to take his evidence to them.

It was on the initiative of Prof. Tarr of Cornell, who started out as a supporter of Cook but changed his mind, that the Explorers' Club undertook an independent investigation of Cook's claim that he had climbed Mount McKinley.

Parrille unquestionably had evidence on that point that would be accepted at once everywhere when he left here for the East. It only remains to be seen what is done with that evidence.

That little diary can supply a flood of light both on the Mount McKinley question and on the polar controversy.

COOK TALKS OF GUIDES.

Declares That Any One in New York May Question Them.

Special to The New York Times.

BUFFALO, Oct. 13.—Just as Dr. Frederick A. Cook was leaving for Atlantic City to-night he was asked by a correspondent if he expected Ed Barrille to come from Montana to discuss with him the Mount McKinley charges. Dr. Cook said he had sent to Missoula, Mon., for Barrille and Printz, the two guides who accompanied him on his ascent of Mount McKinley.

"I expect that they will be in New York City," he said, "on Friday, when I will be there."

"Where will they go?"

"I don't know, but I suppose they will find me, as I am to be the guest of the Danish-American Society that night."

"Why did you send for them?"

"I want to have them where everybody can question them and end this talk about my ascent of Mount McKinley. By having them in New York, where everybody can get at them, the facts can be known."

"Will you see them before anybody else does?"

"That I don't know. If they don't reveal their identity I suppose I will see them first, but that is not what I sent for them for. They are at liberty to see anybody they wish. I want them to have as many audiences as they desire and answer all questions that may be put to them."

"Dr. Cook, it is reported that Barrille has collected claims against you amounting to $900, and is coming East to make you settle. How about that?"

"It is true that after the expedition was over there was money owing to several persons. I was not responsible for the bills, but the society that had charge of the expedition must have overlooked these payments. When my attention was called to the bills I promptly paid them. As in everything else, I invite the closest inquiry in this matter."

Dr. Cook arrived here this morning in the midst of a heavy snow storm.

"I can only say that the actual living human witnesses of my journey to the pole will themselves be able to disprove the distorted declarations put into their mouths in the statement issued by Commander Peary," said Dr. Cook. "There could not be better testimony than that given by the men themselves before an unbiased body of inquirers. Commander Peary evidently regards their evidence as of the most profound importance, and so do I.

"It seems to me that he might have brought them along with him if he was so confident that they would corroborate his story. He, however, chose not to do so. I will therefore send for them as soon as possible and place them at the disposal of any scientific or other body that may desire to examine them with the aid of any competent interpreters whom the examining body may appoint."

Asked whether he would make a direct reply to Peary's statement, as had been intimated in an interview at Cleveland last night, Dr. Cook said:

"There is nothing to add to what has already been said. I do not intend to enter upon a newspaper controversy with any one. I shall depend upon the witnesses who have already been brought into the case and prove my claim by them."

Dr. Cook had a public reception on the 'Change floor of the Chamber of Commerce at noon. He was escorted from his hotel by a committee composed of Vice President A. H. Burt and Evan Hollister. Business on the floor of the Exchange was suspended for half an hour while Dr. Cook, standing between Mayor J. N. Adam and President Elliott C. McDougall, shook hands with several hundred persons. In reply to the welcome of the Mayor Dr. Cook said:

"You have given me the first suitable reception—snow, frost, and a warm cordiality. I am glad to be with you, but I do not wish for you a permanent position nearer the arctic. The pole is a good place to go to once, but I have no desire to bring it to you. As a camp site Buffalo is much better.

"Now, I know you want to ask me about this controversy. I can say that, so far as I am concerned, there is no controversy. The Eskimos have been made to talk in a way to suit rival interests. My reply to this is that I will bring these same people here to prove my case."

DOUBTS MT. McKINLEY STORY.

Nearby Mine Superintendent Says Cook Couldn't Have Scaled It.

The committee of the Explorers' Club which is investigating Dr. Cook's ascent of Mount McKinley has decided not to make public any of its proceedings until it has finished its work.

Anthony Fiala, a member of the committee, said yesterday that it would be unfair to Dr. Cook to reveal the evidence until there has been a finding, either for or against the explorer.

"The investigation has been instituted at the request of Dr. Cook," said Mr. Fiala, "and in fairness to him the committee considers that secrecy should be maintained."

One of those who will probably go before the committee is Dennis Donahue, Superintendent of a copper mine in Alaska, who is now visiting here. In a talk with a member of the Explorers' Club yesterday, Mr. Donahue said that he spent all of last Summer in the vicinity of Mount McKinley and talked with natives concerning Dr. Cook's report that he had reached the top of the peak.

"They told me that Dr. Cook did not accomplish the feat," said Mr. Donahue. "There is a mountain 8,000 feet high to the southeast of Mount McKinley which would have had to be crossed before Dr. Cook could have reached Mount McKinley by following the course he says he took. I tried getting to Mount McKinley that way, and could not accomplish it.

"The natives declare that no one ever did it. To climb the peak from that side it would be necessary to go up a wall that is more than 1,000 feet high—right up the mountain side, with nothing to hang to. There are also glaciers in the way, and they are impassible.

"There are plenty of men in the region of Mount McKinley who will tell you that Dr. Cook could never have got to the summit by the route he describes. They know all that goes on, and they do not err when they say that Dr. Cook failed to climb to the top of Mount McKinley."

HOE'S WILL IGNORES WIFE.

Mrs. Hoe Explains It Was Agreed She'd Have Dower Right.

The will of Robert Hoe, head of the press manufacturing concern of R. Hoe & Co., who died in London, England, on Sept. 22, was filed for probate yesterday. No mention is made of his wife, Mrs. Olivia P. Hoe, living at 11 East Thirty-sixth Street. The bulk of the estate is left to his children, Arthur I. and Robert Hoe, Jr.; Mrs. Laura Carter, Mrs. Olivia Slade, Mrs. Ruth Hoe Sterling, his granddaughter, Thyrza Benson, and the children of his deceased daughter, Mrs. Ellen James Evans.

The petition accompanying the will did not give the value of the estate, and Edward G. Pringle, who filed it on behalf of the executors, would not give any information about it. Neither would he express any opinion on the fact that Mrs. Hoe was not mentioned in the document.

Mrs. Hoe, however, told a TIMES reporter last night that before the death of her husband it was agreed that she was to have her dower right of one-third of his realty. She already owns the house 11 East Thirty-sixth Street.

Mr. Hoe left $5,000 in trust, the interest of which is to be paid to Ella M. Johns, wife of H. E. Johns of Lake Waccabac, Connecticut. He also left $1,000 to Augustus Solari of Hartford, Conn., and $500 to Pierre Rasmussen of 11 East Thirty-sixth Street. The will stated these bequests were made "in appreciation of the long and faithful services of the legatees."

The executors are permitted to have a period of two years in which to arrange the distribution of the residuary estate. Mr. Hoe stated that "it is my especial desire and expectation, and I advise that after my death the business carried on by and under the name of R. Hoe & Co. shall be incorporated under the laws of such State as may seem advisable and with the name nearly the same as the present title of firm, and that such portion of my estate as is now invested in the business shall be sold, conveyed, and delivered to such corporation, my granddaughters and children, respectively, receiving their proportionate share of the capital stock of said corporation."

The testator also directed that the executors sell at auction, either in this country on in Europe, all furniture, personal property, works of art, and his library. He especially authorized them to take expert advice as to his books and sell them either in London, Paris, or New York, as they should deem most advantageous to his estate.

WHY GAYNOR'S A CANDIDATE.

The Justice's Own Reason as Told in a Letter to His Brother.

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio, Oct. 13.—Col. Thomas L. Gaynor, a brother of Supreme Court Justice William J. Gaynor, Democratic candidate for Mayor of New York, is showing to many people here a letter he received from his brother recently explaining and justifying his candidacy. This is the letter:

Brooklyn, Oct. 4.

My dear brother: You may well be surprised that I have consented to run for Mayor when you know that I desired to be left where I am, principally for the best interests of my large family of children. But, my dear brother, other people have children also, and after all what are my children any more than any one else's children?

To let you know what has led me to run for Mayor at last I would have to go back many years. When I came to Brooklyn the government there was very corrupt. Probably 50 per cent. of the money paid in as taxes was stolen and wasted. Government here now is not so bad as that. My attention one day was called to a long line of people extending from the City Hall a block away. I was then a reporter on the newspapers. I found it was the first day for payment of taxes, and that these people were paying their taxes. I walked along the line on the opposite side and looked at them.

There they were, the men and women whom you and I knew as boys, and have known ever since; good, intelligent people, whose lives are a continuous struggle to bring up their children and make both ends meet from month to month. Their bony hands and bent bodies gave evidence of their life of toil, and most of their faces were anxious. As I looked at them my mind became filled with the awful baseness of men who, having got into office by the votes of these people, turn around and betray them and rob them of their hard earned money paid in as taxes.

I made a covenant then and there that from that time onward, however much or little I might advance in life, I should devote some time every year in work against low, base, and corrupt officials and government, and to lift government up. I have worked on the outside all these years, helping to do something against great obstacles and difficulties all the while. And now, finally, when the opportunity has again come to me to run for Mayor, I have felt it my bounden duty to run, for if elected I shall be able to work on the inside instead of from the outside.

If I am defeated no harm will be done to any one except myself and family, for you know I have to resign my present office in order to run. I do not know whether I shall run well or not. I have always been a very poor judge in all things that concerned myself. Of course you know there are people here who hate me dreadfully, for no just reason that I know of, and they may be able to beat me.

You fought for your country during the whole civil war, and made the country your debtor. I have tried in my way to do something for the community, but did not have the opportunity which came to you.

Give my regards to your wife. I know she will be anxious, but tell her I have counted up everything and shall be satisfied with the worst. Tell her not to mind the abuse already started against me. She will remember the Scripture: "Woe unto you when all men shall speak well of you." You know that I never act from impulse, thought I sometimes act quickly.

I hope I may visit you again soon. Maybe I shall run and not be elected for a rest [illegible] for them no mind. [illegible] you in [illegible]

Affectionately yours,
W. J. GAYNOR.

ELDER BACKS IVINS IN ACCUSING GAYNOR

Supports and Amplifies Charge That He Sought to Nullify the Race Gambling Act.

IVINS CHALLENGES A SUIT

No Reply from Gaynor Yet—Elder in a Long Statement Cites Other Gaynor Decisions Which He Suspected.

Robert H. Elder, the young Assistant District Attorney who has been prosecuting the race-track gambling cases in Brooklyn, and was said by William M. Ivins to be cognizant of the facts underlying Mr. Ivins's charge that Justice William J. Gaynor, Tammany's candidate for Mayor, consulted with Senator McCarren, Eugene Wood, and others with regard to declaring the race-track gambling law unconstitutional, issued a long and detailed statement yesterday afternoon in which he virtually corroborated Mr. Ivins's charge.

Mr. Elder in his statement asserted that he had been informed on what he regarded as reliable authority that the Brooklyn jurist, who is now the Tammany candidate for Mayor, did consult with Senator McCarren, Eugene Wood, and others as to how to nullify the Agnew-Hart law; that he believed this to be so then and was of the same opinion still. He went on to tell how, as he says, he had fought to prevent the taking of a "framed up" habeas corpus case before Justice Gaynor in aid of the gambling interests, and how Justice Gaynor decided the famous golf betting case in a way which Mr. Elder regarded as helpful to racing men indicted as common gamblers.

Still other things were said by the Assistant District Attorney against the man whose name heads the Democratic ticket, not the least of these in common interest being that he suspected Gaynor in the race track cases, because of his former rulings on the bench. He referred to the Sheriff Guden affair and the ten-cent fare decision, which latter was followed by rioting on the Coney Island railroad lines.

Gaynor Declines to Reply.

With copies of the statement issued by Mr. Elder, a group of reporters met Justice Gaynor as he was entering his home in Eighth Avenue, Brooklyn, late yesterday afternoon on his return from a walk. The Justice, however, passed into the house without giving any of them a chance to speak to him and went upstairs to his study. Through John F. Scanlon, his personal representative at the house, a request for a statement in reply to the Elder charges was sent to him. Justice Gaynor sent back word that he had nothing to say about the matter.

It was reported yesterday that Justice Gaynor's political advisers had cautioned him not to reply too readily to attacks made upon him in the campaign. There was an impression consequently that if he intended to reply to Mr. Elder he would do so in a carefully prepared statement, which might be issued to-day or be made in his speech in Carnegie Hall to-night. Mr. Elder would not add to his statement later. He said in the afternoon that he "had not promised any one" he would take the stump against Justice Gaynor. It was announced on Tuesday that he would speak at the Hearst meeting to-night, but he said that this announcement was "unauthorized and erroneous."

There was a belief in Brooklyn last night that now that Mr. Elder had come out with so hostile a statement against the Tammany candidate, he would see fit to enter the campaign as a speaker. There were also rumors of a rupture between Mr. Elder and District Attorney Clarke over the anti-Gaynor statement, but neither would admit that there was any friction between them.

Elder's Superior Supports Gaynor.

It was regarded as significant that District Attorney Clarke went to the home of Justice Gaynor yesterday, a short time before the Elder statement was issued and spent some time in conference with the candidate. There was a belief that his visit was to assure Mr. Gaynor that Mr. Elder was making his statement solely on his own responsibility, so far as the District Attorney's office was concerned.

"I am deeply interested in the campaign Justice Gaynor is making and will do all I can to help him win," said Mr. Clarke on his return. "It has always been my policy not to interfere with the politics of anybody in this office. For myself, I am heartily in favor of the candidacy of Justice Gaynor."

Asked if he personally believed the charge of Mr. Ivins that Justice Gaynor conferred with gamblers about the race-track law, Mr. Clarke replied:

"Most decidedly I do not. I firmly believe in Justice Gaynor and what he says. I have assured him that I am with him heart and soul in this matter, and will aid him in repelling these attacks upon his judicial honor."

It would appear from this that Mr. Clarke and his first assistant are divided over Gaynor. Whether or not this difference of opinion will lead to Mr. Elder's retirement from the District Attorney's office could not be learned. There is a belief in political circles in Brooklyn that Mr. Elder's ambition lies in the direction of the Supreme Court bench. He has been the man most active in prosecuting race track gamblers, and is believed to stand high in the favor of Gov. Hughes, who will name Justice Gaynor's successor.

What Elder Heard of Gaynor.

Here is Assistant District Attorney Elder's statement:

"I am pressed on all sides to make a statement of what I know in relation to the charge which Mr. Ivins has made against Judge Gaynor in relation to the new law that was passed to stop public gambling on the race courses. I have hesitated to say anything because the subject is an unpleasant one, and I did not wish to become involved in it. Nevertheless, I suppose the public is entitled to have the facts from a public servant.

"The new law against public gambling on the race courses went into effect on June 11, 1908. At that time the racing was going on at the Sheepshead Bay race course. Mr. Schuyler Parsons was then The Jockey Club official in charge and management of the races there. The gamblers a few days before the law went into effect sought to devise means by which the law could be evaded, and continued to do so after the 11th of June.

"A few days after the law went into effect a public official of prominence who had been aiding me in my efforts to enforce the law upon the race courses came to me and stated that he had, but a few moments before, engaged in conversation with Eugene Wood, and that Wood had stated to him that he (Wood) and Senator Patrick H. McCarren had been present at a conversation with Judge Gaynor in which the constitutionality and the vitality of the new gambling law were discussed, and in which conversation they discussed how the law could be nullified, and that a case in the nature of a habeas corpus proceeding was being arranged to be brought before Judge Gaynor to get a decision that would allow the gamblers to do business on the race course.

What Others Told Him.

"At that time I did not know who Eugene Wood was, but he explained to me that he was a well-known lobbyist and a wealthy man.

"Probably an hour after this information was brought to me another public official of high prominence, whom I met upon the race course, stated to me substantially the same thing, and asked me what I thought about it. That day a consultation was had among the public officials whose duty it was to enfoce the law in relation to this matter.

"I believed then that this conversation did take place because of the direct and official way in which the information came to me. I have had no reason since to change my opinion. I believe yet that it took place.

Jockey Club Framed a Case.

"A very short time after these public officials had discussed the subject with me, counsel for the gamblers and for the Jockey Club came to me and proposed the bringing of a case that should be arranged, a case in the nature of habeas corpus, in order to get a decision upon the law. Counsel, however, mentioned the name of no Judge. I declined to enter into any such arrangement. I stated that arranged cases would not meet the situation; that we must have real cases that were to be litigated in the ordinary way.

"For several days efforts of counsel were exerted to arrange a case with me, a case on habeas corpus, to get some judicial expression upon the subject of the law. When I persistently refused to accede to this I discovered that the gamblers had planned to arrange a case for themselves. I communicated with all the Police Magistrates in Brooklyn to whom I thought they might apply for a warrant and requested these officials not to issue any warrants upon any such application without first giving me an opportunity to oppose the application.

"What I was seeking to prevent was a cooked-up case that would give a Judge who was friendly to the gamblers an opportunity to render a decision which would interfere with the enforcement of the law, and which might seriously embarrass the efforts of the public officials in Kings County in enforcing the law. For some days I was successful in preventing any such case coming to an issue. Finally, however, they succeeded in getting a warrant in the case of the People against Collins.

Why He Suspected Gaynor.

"It is true that before this warrant was issued I made a public statement, which at the time was published in various newspapers, in which statement I expressed my hostility to these arranged, or so-called test, cases, and said that, in any event, I would oppose the bringing of any case before a Judge who had decided the issue or who had written his opinion before the case was brought. It is also true that when I made this statement I had Judge Gaynor in mind. It was natural that I should have believed that the plan was to bring such a case before Judge Gaynor, not alone because of the statement of Mr. Wood, reported to me, but also because it was current talk in Brooklyn that Judge Gaynor had done similar things before.

"It was current report and gossip that he had arranged to have the case known as the Guden case brought before him so that he could render a decision adverse to Gov. Odell, who had removed Guden, the Sheriff of Kings County, for having entered into a corrupt agreement in relation to his office. In this instance Judge Gaynor did render a decision adverse to Gov. Odell's ruling, but was reversed both by the Appellate Division and the Court of Appeals. It was also common report and gossip that Judge Gaynor had encouraged the institution of the MacFarlane habeas corpus case, which was brought before him, and in which he decided a question of the right of a railroad company to charge a ten-cent fare for a ride to Coney Island, which decision caused, as is well known, much public disorder in Kings County.

"Understanding all these things, I was much distressed about the situation, and told counsel for the gamblers that if they brought a habeas corpus proceeding before Judge Gaynor to test the new gambling law I should certainly find some means of preventing his acting in such instance.

What the Gamblers Wanted.

"It was after this that the Collins case was brought before Judge Bischoff. Judge Bischoff rendered a decision which was very unsatisfactory to the gamblers. It was hard to understand. It was not quite clear that it allowed oral gambling of a public nature, and it certainly did not allow the recording of bets and wagers. What the gamblers wanted was a decision that would allow oral gambling and that would permit them to register and record their bets and wagers. The statute specifically made it an offense to engage in bookmaking or to register and record bets and wagers

"The Collins case was decided in July, 1908. After the race meet was finished at Sheepshead Bay horse racing was resumed at Gravesend, and after about a fortnight went from Gravesend to Brighton Beach. The Brighton race course was the course commonly spoken of as belonging to William Engeman, who was the chief owner thereof, and who was also a personal acquaintance and friend of Judge Gaynor. For what took place on the Brighton Beach race course Mr. Engeman was indicted, with others, as a common gambler for allowing public gambling upon his race course, and was also indicted for conspiracy to permit public gambling on his race course. The common gambler bill was found on the 22d of July, 1908, and the conspiracy bill on the 31st of July, 1908.

The Golf Case.

"A few days thereafter counsel who had been acting for the gamblers informed me that another 'test' case was to be brought, but he told me that it would not be brought in Kings County. A few days thereafter the case of the people ex rel. George Sterling against the Sheriff of Nassau County was brought. It was not brought in Kings County, but in Nassau County, and before Justice Gaynor. In this case Sterling was not accused of any offense committed on a race course, but it was alleged that he made a bet with another on the result of a game of golf, and that he recorded and registered this bet on a card. The man was not accused of being a common gambler, but it was Engeman who was accused of being a common gambler. In his opinion Justice Gaynor gave a definition of a common gambler. Under this definition Engeman was not a common gambler. The learned court also decided that it was no offense to make a bet on a race course, and that it was no offense to register and record the same.

"This was the sort of decision the gamblers were trying to get from Justice Bischoff, as they themselves frankly admitted. Justice Gaynor said in his opinion: 'An ordinary bet is not a crime, whether made in your parlor, or on a golf links, or a race track, nor is the making of a note or memorandum thereof.'

Nassau Official Thought It "Queer."

"After this decision was rendered I requested the District Attorney of Nassau County to give me a history of the proceeding. He stated to me that he had not known that this case was to be brought; he said that he did not wish to have anything to do with it because the case looked queer to him; that he did not wish to appear in the matter, but, he said, that Judge Gaynor had told him to do so.

"Later the Court of Appeals criticised Judge Bischoff for having rendered the decision which he did, saying: 'The District Attorney disclaims any responsibility for the preparation of the information upon which the warrant against the defendant was issued, and asserts that he is compelled to make this a test case relating to such important act against his protest. * * * There is great doubt whether the facts in this case have been so carefully and thoroughly developed as to justify a determination of the important questions discussed by counsel in this proceeding. We are of the opinion that except in rare cases where the facts before the court cannot be materially changed, qualified, or explained, the determination of important issues ought not to be made in a habeas corpus proceeding.'

"The golf case that Judge Gaynor decided never went to the Court of Appeals."

Ivins Challenges Gaynor.

William M. Ivins issued another statement in regard to the race track matter yesterday from his home in East Twenty-fifth Street, in which he again openly challenged Judge Gaynor to take action against him on the charges.

"I fail to notice any denial by the Judge of his having met Mr. Wood, Mr. McCarren, and Mr. Block," said he. "He knows perfectly well what is meant by 'the order of proof.' I do not intend to try the case out with Justice Gaynor in the newspapers or in his way, at his time, and at his pleasure. If what I have said is slanderous there is only one way to try the issue, and that is at law.

"If what I have said is of such character as to justify his moving for my disbarment, let him take that course. He takes himself as an able and serious lawyer. He knows perfectly well where the issues of the case should be tried and how they should be tried. He knows perfectly well that the only ultimately satisfactory way of making proof is through witnesses under subpoena, but I cannot sue him. He can sue me."

"I have other witnesses in addition to Assistant District Attorney Elder, who saw the three men get together at the Hoffman House on the night in question. Justice Gaynor knows where he can get those witnesses and question them if he wants to bring suit or proceedings for disbarment against me, and thinks their testimony will do him any good."

Murphy Keeps Out of It.

Leader Murphy of Tammany Hall refused to discuss the Ivins-Gaynor controversy in any way yesterday.

"It's between them, and let them settle it," he said.

Republicans of Rhode Island Praise Aldrich and the Tariff Bill.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 13.—Gov. Aram J. Pothier was nominated to succeed himself by the Republican State Convention which met here to-day. The rest of the prearranged ticket, which was nominated without opposition, follows:

Lieutenant Governor—ZENAS W. BLISS of Cranston.
Secretary of State—J. FRED PARKER of Providence.
Attorney General—WILLIAM B. GREENOUGH of Providence.
General Treasurer—WALTER A. REED of Gloucester.

The main features of the platform were indorsement of the Payne-Aldrich Tariff bill and praise of Senator Nelson W. Aldrich. On these points the resolutions said:

"The recent tariff bill will assure to the citizens of this country and especially this State a season of prosperity more universal and more enduring than they have heretofore enjoyed.

"The people of the State of Rhode Island are justly proud of the fact that the enactment of this important measure was largely the result of the efforts of that eminent statesman, Nelson W. Aldrich, senior Senator from this State. In behalf of the people of busy Rhode Island we express our gratitude to Senator Aldrich for his efficient and untiring efforts in advancing American prosperity. We rejoice in the public utterance of President William H. Taft, great even among the great Presidents of the United States, that Senator Aldrich is certainly one of the ablest financial leaders in either house of Congress.

"The name of Nelson W. Aldrich will be remembered among the most illustrious in the history of the State."

Rabbi Dies from Morphine Overdose.

Rabbi Kovalsky M. Loeb of 27 East 111th Street died yesterday in the Harlem Hospital from what the physicians say was an overdose of morphine, taken to relieve his suffering from asthma. He became very ill Tuesday night and was sent to the hospital. He was 61 years old and leaves a widow and eight children. One of his sons said that his father's suffering from asthma caused his retirement from active life fifteen years ago. He had been accustomed to taking morphine to allay pain.

BANNARD HAILED ON THE EAST SIDE

Fusion Candidate Gets a Rousing Welcome at Three Mass Meetings.

A NEW CAMPAIGN YELL

Whitman, Too, Is Enthusiastically Cheered When He Joins the Fusion Ticket Leader.

In a tour of the lower east side last night Otto T. Bannard, Fusion candidate for Mayor, everywhere received a great welcome. He was more at ease as a speaker than at the beginning of the campaign, and so cordial and apparently so sincere were the greetings he received from three big east side audiences that he laid aside his prepared speech and delivered some telling shots offhand. The first two speeches were made in East Broadway, one before the James G. Blaine Republican Club, and the other in the rooms of the exhibit of the Committee of One Hundred, a few doors nearer Jefferson Street. The third speech was delivered before an audience that packed every inch of space in the big auditorium of Clinton Hall, Clinton Street, near Grand.

Mr. Bannard appeared to be greatly pleased with the cordiality that marked his reception by the east siders. A feature of all the meetings was the cheering of members of the Swarthmore Athletic Club, who preceded Mr. Bannard to each speaking place and joined in the noisy welcomes by giving a yell especially composed they said for the welcoming of the candidate to the crowded east side. Their yell made a hit. Here it is:

Alibibo, alabebo, alababo,
Bibo, bum, olaf, baze,
Gimmel, dalet, siz,
Boom, bah,
Bannard, Bannard, Bannard,
Rah, Hoo, Rah.

This greeted Mr. Bannard as he entered the meeting hall of the Blaine Republican Club, where he made his first speech of the night. Joseph Levinson, the Republican leader of the Second Assembly District, was in charge and he introduced Mr. Bannard as an old friend and a man who, as he put it, "had once been financially nothing, yet had become very much something."

A Poor Man Once.

"I have been advertised," Mr. Bannard began, "as a poor speaker, and I sometimes think that it may be curiosity that brings you out to hear me. However, I am glad to be with you and I think I know the conditions down in this part of the city. I have been as poor as any of you may possibly be. It is about twenty-seven years since I began with a few dollars and I've worked hard ever since.

"My short talks are necessarily solemn," continued Mr. Bannard. "I cannot help dwelling on certain practical questions which interest a business man. They look to the future and are intended to be constructive and not destructive.

"The total number of tenements in the Borough of Manhattan is about 42,500, and they contain 2,275,000 people. No city in the world has such a proposition to deal with—and I am only speaking of one borough to-night, to bring it home to the people of Manhattan. To-morrow night I shall speak in Brooklyn. Each borough has its own conditions and needs. The density of population in Manhattan far surpasses all others.

"Do I need to explain that this congestion is a cause of poverty as well as a result? After twenty-seven years of persistent work on these subjects don't I know that giving temporary relief to those who stumble and fall is like a farmer scraping the surface of the ground? Unless he digs deeper he will get no results.

"For years religious societies and humanitarian associations have been engaged in work, the result of which has furnished to a very great extent only this 'temporary relief' to which I have referred.

"That more has not been accomplished through their splendid efforts in behalf of the great cause of charity is due to the fact that we have not been striking at the causes, but rather dealing with the efforts of congestion and its attendant evils. And now, while not abandoning the helpers, we strike at the causes, we are digging deeper.

"Two and a quarter millions of people should not live in 42,500 houses. While they do they should have all the light and air obtainable, cleanliness, and sanitation. Why not encourage them to move to the Bronx and to Kings and to Queens and to Richmond? Give them swift transportation and plenty of it for a five-cent fare. Only in this way can we relieve the congestion.

"To my mind it is not a scheme to increase the value of suburban lots, but the first and primary purpose is to save life, to save the children and their fathers and mothers from vice and disease and crime, and give them a chance to compete on even terms in this fierce struggle for existence. Let us keep up the cry for subways and for rehabilitation of our surface roads.

"We are assured that effort and money will control the great white plague, tuberculosis. I am glad to see an item asked for in the budget of $432,000 for this fight against tuberculosis. I hope it will be granted. That is no place to save.

"We must have clean streets as a necessary part of our health programme. Dry sweeping fills the air with germs and should receive serious consideration; and, can anything be done to make the garbage cans less offensive and less dangerous to health in these crowded east side streets, where people live in the streets all day and a greater part of the night?

"Water should not be wasted, and the introduction of meters here and there serves that useful purpose, but must it always be necessary to pay the city plumbers $140 for work and materials worth $40?

"Here is where Tammany makes progress oppressive for the sake of graft—and not by any means petty graft.

"How long will good citizens submit to such outrages? Patience has long since ceased to be a virtue, and I ask you to join with me on Nov. 2 in a new era where you will have some voice in how your own money is to be spent."

The next stopping place on the programme was at the exhibit of the Committee of One Hundred, where another enthusiastic audience was awaiting to welcome the candidate. At this meeting Mr. Bannard repeated his plea of Tuesday night for more schools and teachers, declaring that education was the one sure cure for public evils.

"The question is," said Mr. Bannard in concluding his speech, "whether you want to trust a business man with the responsibility of spending the people's money where it should be spent. The question is, Do you want to stand with us and have a voice as to how your money shall be spent? Give us a chance and we will stand with you."

The largest meeting of the night, and by far the most enthusiastic, was the one in Clinton Hall. There the Whitman League, under whose auspices Mr. Bannard spoke, welcomed him with an ovation that lasted several minutes. Louis Zeltner was in charge there, and as one of his followers put it, "Louis is some orator."

Ovation for Whitman.

"I told you he was coming, and he's now here. I take pleasure in introducing him," shouted Mr. Zeltner.

Just at that moment Charles S. Whitman, the Fusion candidate for District Attorney, entered the hall, and he, too, got an ovation. When the Whitman demonstration ended Mr. Bannard stepped to the front to be greeted anew by the yell of the two previous meetings.

"I congratulate you on this meeting," said Br. Bannard. "It's the finest one I have attended yet. I am glad so many of you are here, for it shows you are thinking. You have had Tammany for six years, and I think you need a change. I am not a talker, but I have worked all my life, and I will work just as hard for you if you want me to."

Mr. Whitman followed Mr. Bannard. He was introduced as the "father of the Night Court."

"I don't know whether it is a compliment," began Mr. Whitman jocularly, "for a man who was a Magistrate as long as I was to come here and say that I recognize your faces. But talking seriously I don't think there is much that we can tell each other. We have worked together, and I think that you and I and others have accomplished some things to better conditions just a little. When the men of the east side get together and work for something that is good they get it."

Mr. Whitman then discussed the rent question and the increase from year to year. He said it was not the owner but the poor tenant who had to pay the increased taxes.

BANNARD TO COLLEGE MEN.

Urges Them to Enter Politics, but Not for the Money in It.

"My advice to young men entering politics is not to depend on it for income, and not to let it interfere with their chosen career," said Otto T. Bannard, the Fusion candidate for Mayor, addressing a large audience of Columbia students in Earl Hall yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Bannard, Columbia Law School, '78, was the principal speaker at the organization meeting of the Columbia Republican Club. Some of the other Fusion candidates who followed Mr. Bannard were Charles S. Whitman, '93 Law; John Purroy Mitchel, '99, and William A. Prendergast.

Introducing Mr. Bannard as the first speaker of the meeting, Francis S. Bangs, '10, referred to Justice Gaynor as "the gentleman whose want of understanding leads him to believe that a commission from Tammany Hall is the work of God." Mr. Bannard read from manuscript. He said in part:

"I want young men to interest themselves in the needs of this city. To do this effectively they must interest themselves in city elections. Bryce said twenty year ago that 'the government of the cities is the one conspicuous failure of the United States,' and he added: 'In New York the evils have revealed themselves on the largest scale. More than half the city debts are the direct results of intentional and corrupt misrule.' Municipal government is still to-day the weakest point in this country.

"In speaking of politics it is popular to call organization a machine and a leader a boss. Don't let mere words discourage you too much in any walk of life. If you believe in what you are doing, do it regardless of names. My advice to young men entering politics is not to depend on it for income, and not let it interfere with your chosen profession. You must make your own place in the world outside of politics, but just as you give spare time to church and charitable work, to helping others, and to social pleasures, save out a little time as a regular habit for political improvements."

BANNARD TORCHLIGHT PARADE.

Non-Partisan Clubs, 500 Strong, March to a Fusion Gathering.

The non-partisan Bannard campaign was opened last night with a torchlight parade of 250 members of the Non-Partisan Bannard Campaign Club and 250 more from the Madison Square Republican Club. They marched from the Yale Club Building in Forty-fourth Street up Broadway to Fifty-ninth Street, and down Fifth Avenue to the Assembly Hall of the United Charities Building, where speeches indorsing Mr. Bannard for Mayor were made by prominent Democratic and Republican citizens. There Mr. Bannard wound up his round of speeches for the evening.

Among the members of the non-partisan club are Albert B. Kerr, a Democrat, President; Henry H. Curran, Secretary; Edwin O. Holter, Treasurer; Robert Grier Monroe, Robert de Forest, and Jacob A. Riis. Its object is primarily to support the fusion nominee for Mayor. It already has 1,000 members.

The meeting in the hall was presided over by Albert B. Kerr. Before the paraders arrived the audience had been listening to a speech by John Henry Hammond, in which the non-partisan character of the meeting and the entire campaign was set forth. Mr. Hammond declared that the city needed a business man as Mayor instead of either a Tammany candidate or "a newspaper editor who will make the city merely an adjunct to his paper."

Mr. Bannard's brief speech was greeted with enthusiastic applause.

MORE SUPPORT FOR BANNARD.

American Hebrew National Organization Indorses the Fusion Ticket.

The American Hebrew National Organization, of which Henry Green is President, came out for Mr. Bannard and the Fusion ticket yesterday. The society will open two campaign headquarters, from which the Bannard propaganda among the Jews will be carried on. One of these will be at 174 East Houston Street, the other at 1,812 Pitkin Avenue, in Brownsville, on the outskirts of Brooklyn.

Congressman Bennet, Mr. Bannard's campaign manager, announced yesterday that owing to other duties the candidate would be compelled to discontinue his "open-door hour" between 5 and 6 in the evening, which had been set aside for the reception of anybody who cared to call.

CRANE STILL WAITS FOR TAFT TO SPEAK

But State Department Takes Position That He Is Out and the Case Is Closed.

PAWN IN GAME, SOME SAY

Suggestion That Knox Wanted to Drop Hint to Japan—How Tokio Will Look Upon It.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 13.—Charles R. Crane, the Minister to China, whose resignation has been called for by Secretary Knox, and who has placed that resignation in the President's hands, is still in Washington with the date for his departure; he says, still undecided. Up to a late hour this evening Mr. Crane said he had received no reply from the President to the long telegram of resignation and complaint sent him yesterday, and until he hears from the President he feels that he cannot make any move. The opinion is forming here that the President will not reply at all, treating the incident as closed by Mr. Crane's resignation and its acceptance by the Secretary of State.

It was asserted without qualification by those in the confidence of the Secretary of State that Mr. Knox was perfectly assured of the approval of the President; that he was not the kind of man to take such a step without knowing in advance that he would be supported in it. Even the friends of Mr. Crane—and several very astute friends have stood beside him in this crisis—while highly indignant at the treatment which he has met at the hands of Mr. Knox, admitted that the developments since he left San Francisco at the peremptory summons of the Secretary had, regardless of the merits of the case, utterly destroyed any possible usefulness on his part at Peking, and that in all the circumstances he could not now with self-respect do otherwise than insist upon the acceptance of his resignation.

While the case of Mr. Crane is considered as officially closed, his continued presence in the capital keeps up the stream of comment and criticism aroused by Mr. Knox's statement. Officials here are still discussing the case, and the general sympathy seems to be with the retired Minister. It is pointed out that however great Mr. Crane's indiscretions may have been he was handicapped in that he received no instructions from Mr. Knox nor any one else, and that what instructions were given him at last reached him only after his arrival in San Francisco long after his error had been made.

Mr. Crane's statement that he had no interview with Mr. Knox save a perfunctory one in the Summer until he came to Washington to have his resignation demanded and that his efforts to see First Assistant Secretary of State Huntington Wilson were fruitless have not been answered. Ordinarily the Secretary of State has many consultations with a Minister going to an important post and gives him detailed instructions as well as the benefit of all information in the Secretary's possession. In this case it is suggested that Mr. Crane was marked from the outset, and that while his New York speech was not in itself enough to cause his retirement, the freedom from instructions to which he was left was simply the rope with which he was allowed to hang himself.

That, however, is the purely personal side of the matter. In official circles here people are still aghast at the statement Mr. Knox issued in regard to this country's suspended judgment in regard to the China-Japanese treaty. It is regarded as a full admission that this country has not yet decided to view Japan's course in that matter with confidence. His remarks on that point are considered the flat statement of what Mr. Crane's indirect interview only told by inference.

How the whole affair will be viewed by both China and Japan is still a puzzle. It is known that China has been none too pleased at the manner in which the Peking post has been offered around to politicians and refused by them. Now the one man who accepted the offer to represent this country in China is sent to his post practically without instructions and then recalled and discharged before he leaves the country.

Japan, on the other hand, may see in the matter—as some well-informed persons here think she must see it—the complete disclosure of the State Department's move to block her Manchurian policy. That this country should look into the terms of the China-Japanese treaty was only natural, but that Mr. Knox should state officially that he and the Government had not yet decided that American interests were not affected "adversely" thereby or that Japan was not infringing the treaty rights of the powers is considered extraordinary.

A possible interpretation of the Secretary's action and the whole incident was discussed with much interest in some diplomatic quarters last night and to-day. Japan, it was said, has incidentally received unmistakable notice in the words of Mr. Knox's statement, that this Government looks with disapproval upon her gains in Manchuria through the two new treaties with China, which have been so much discussed in connection with the Crane affair. According to this view, Mr. Crane, intentionally or unintentionally, has been made the pawn in the game of expediency.

YESTERDAY IN POLITICS.

Assistant District Attorney Robert H. Elder of Kings made a statement intended to partly confirm the assertion of William M. Ivins that Justice Gaynor was involved in a deal to nullify the anti-race track gambling law. Mr. Ivins declared that he had other witnesses besides Mr. Elder who could tell of the alleged meeting at the Hoffman House, and challenged Justice Gaynor to sue him for libel or begin disbarment proceedings against him.

Senator Patrick H. McCarren, the Democratic leader of Brooklyn, was suddenly taken ill last night at the Clarendon Hotel. He was at a hospital in a critical condition last night.

Otto T. Bannard, the Fusion nominee for Mayor, made a tour of the east side last night, where he spoke to at least 5,000 people and was enthusiastically received.

More than 20,000 signatures were on the petitions for the nomination of William R. Hearst filed with the Board of Elections up to midnight, when the time for filing expired.

Certificates of independent nominations filed with the Board of Elections make it certain that the ballot this year will be the biggest in the history of the city.

CAMPAIGN OF ABUSE.

It Calls Forth a Protest from Calvin Tomkins—"Like Old Women," Says He

Calvin Tomkins enlivened the annual meeting of the Board of Trade yesterday by making a speech in which he raised the campaign managers and candidates for not paying sufficient attention to the issues that will come before the Board of Estimate next year. He succeeded in having a resolution passed voicing his ideas.

"The city campaign has degenerated at the beginning," said he, "into a campaign of vituperation and abuse, a shame and disgrace to the city, and something should be done to redeem it from this condition of personalities in which it is now being conducted as if by a party of old women."

His resolution said in part:

It is the sense of this board that the candidates for office which carry a seat in the Board of Estimate and speakers supporting them should at least devote part of their discussion to the really important issues of the pending campaign including the constitutional debt limit amendment, municipal versus private subways, and efficient administration.

Common sense, due regard for political perspective, and the interest of the city alike demand this.

Resolutions were also adopted urging voters to indorse the proposed new constitutional amendments. Twelve new Directors of the board were elected to serve until 1912 and three to hold office until 1910.

CANDIDATE OR TIGER?

The Hundred's Show After a Live Animal to Do a Swallowing Act.

Just now the fervent wish of Dr. Henry Moskowitz, Director of the Hundred's Civic Chamber of Horrors at Union Square West, is that before long the megaphone man at the door may be justified in framing his invitation to passers-by in this language:

"Step in, gents, and take a look at the real live tiger Tammanee in the great swallowing act entitled 'The Candidate or the Tiger?'"

Joseph Johnson, Jr., who is managing the rival Tammany show known as the Acorn Musee, two doors further down the block, has a real goat, a monkey, and a live elephant to point the campaign lessons as Tammany sees them, while all the faunal exhibits of the Hundred's show are made of papier mache.

For the last two or three days it has been an open secret that the committee is out to buy a real live tiger. Dr. Moskowitz won't mind if it has been slightly used, and believes the prospects of getting one second hand should be good now that Coney Island and other Summer resorts have closed for the season.

The stage managers of the Hundred's civic show are rather reticent when questioned regarding the swallowing act and how it is going to be engineered.

BATTLE FOR COURT REFORMS.

Tammany Candidate for District Attorney Tells More About His Plans.

George Gordon Battle, Tammany candidate for District Attorney, issued a statement yesterday in which he further explained the innovations in the office which he intends to install if he is elected. One of the most important is the assigning of an Assistant District Attorney to each of the police courts.

"These courts are those to which the poorest and most helpless class has recourse," says he. "The decision of the Magistrate in most of these cases, which often involve the most vital questions, is final.

"The Magistrate hears and determines these cases under great stress and frequently and necessarily in great haste. It is impossible for the Magistrate to sift out the evidence and to determine the true merits of the cases as they are brought before him.

"If an Assistant District Attorney could be assigned to each of these courts, he would have the time, and it would be his duty, to carefully investigate each case before it was submitted to the Magistrate. This preparation of cases in advance will greatly expedite the work of the Magistrates, and relieve an over-burdened court."

Roger A. Pryor sent this letter to Mr. Battle yesterday:

My Dear Battle: Allow me to congratulate you on your speech of acceptance. It is altogether admirable. From our long and intimate acquaintance I can attest the sincerity of your promises and the certainty of their performance. Faithfully, your friend,
ROGER A. PRYOR.

RUSSIANS EXPEL AMERICAN.

New Yorker, His Passport Expired, Ejected from St. Petersburg Hotel.

ST. PETERSBURG, Oct. 13.—Ralph Wilner of New York, an engineer, was expelled from his hotel by the police today upon the expiration of his permit of sojourn in the country. Wilner will have no place in which to stay unless the American Embassy, to which he has appealed, succeeds in bringing about a mitigation of the police order.

Wilner, who is traveling in Russia as a representative of an American firm, got into trouble through his misapprehension of the intent of his passport. He came to Russia provided with a permit of sojourn good for six months only. He assumed that the six months would begin on the date that he crossed the frontier, but too late discovered that the six months was reckoned from the date that the permit was issued. To-day the police discovered that his passport had expired and stamped upon the document a notice forbidding any one to harbor the bearer.

TAXICAB HITS AMBULANCE.

Overturns Driver, Doctor, and Patient in J. Hood Wright Vehicle.

An ambulance of the J. Hood Wright Hospital, at 131st Street and Amsterdam Avenue, was wrecked last night by a collision with a taxicab while taking a patient to that institution. This is the third ambulance of the hospital to be wrecked in as many days.

The ambulance, driven by W. Lancett and occupied by Dr. Creglia and a rheumatic patient, Thomas McAndrews of 135 West Ninety-seventh Street, was going north on Broadway. At 111th Street a taxicab, operated by M. J. James, turned into Broadway from 111th Street, and the two vehicles crashed together. The ambulance was overturned and partly wrecked.

The three occupants were thrown to the street. The driver and the doctor were on their feet, uninjured, and immediately gave their attention to the patient. They found him frightened, but unhurt.

ARREST MURPHY'S CHAUFFEUR

No License on Tammany Leader's Car —Discharged in Court.

The chauffeur of Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany Hall, was arrested yesterday at Forty-third Street and Fifth Avenue for failing to have the State license on the rear of Mr. Murphy's automobile. The chauffeur, Irving Babcock, of 1,124 Bedford Avenue, Brooklyn, was taken to the East Fifty-first Street Station.

Babcock was discharged later by Magistrate Herrman in the Yorkville Court. The chauffeur's statement that when he left the garage the number was on the rear of the car was partially corroborated by the policeman, who said that there were two pieces of wire hanging from the rear of the machine, which showed that the number might have fallen.

A Pupil of Mrs. Eddy.

Twenty-two years ago Mrs. Stetson lived at Somerville, Mass. She was an elocutionist at the time, and was studying at the Boston Conservatory of Elocution. She became interested in the teachings of Mrs. Eddy and joined a class then being instructed in Christian Science by the recognized head of the Church. Her sister, Mrs. Stimpson, five years her junior, also became interested in the new form of religious worship and joined Mrs. Eddy's class.

At that time Mrs. Eddy had personal supervision over the classes. They were afterward discontinued, and the Metaphysical College succeeded them about ten years ago. This institution follows out the general plan of instruction taught by Mrs. Eddy and gives certificates to its graduates, just as Mrs. Eddy gave certificates.

During her studies under Mrs. Eddy, Mrs. Stimpson took her son Harold along. He is at present a member of the First Church congregation and lives in this city.

The fortunes of Mrs. Stimpson seem to have been cast in an obscure way with those of her sister, for when Mrs. Stetson came to this city and gathered about her men and women converts of wealth to build what is now the First Church, Mrs. Stimpson became a member of her household. She is seen occasionally in public, sometimes riding with Mrs. Stetson in the automobile which was recently given to her by a former pupil, sometimes driving in the Park, and always at the services on Saturday evenings and Sundays at the church. She and her son Harold, his wife, and Mrs. Stetson, it is said, have the only reserved pews in the sanctuary. Their pew is the sixth from the front on the right centre aisle.

Although the members of the congregation are usually instructed to be in their places a few minutes before the regular hour for the service, it is said that Mrs. Stetson, her sister, and nephew usually wait until the music begins, then walk impressively down the aisle and take their seats.

Revelations About Mrs. Stetson.

An investigation of the manner in which Mrs. Stetson has conducted her leadership in the First Church and of her home life has brought out many facts until now unknown to many of the First Church members. From various sources the information has come that Mrs. Stetson has profited largely through the generosity of her pupils during the last few years. The handsome dwelling next door to the church is only a small part of the gifts she has received.

The Stetson dwelling is furnished sumptuously. There is a Persian rug which was woven especially for her at a cost of about $10,000. A baby grand piano also was built especially for Mrs. Stetson and given to her by one of her wealthy pupils. Also there is a panel in the Stetson house depicting Christ with the Physicians, which covers the entire side of the drawing room, the side facing Ninety-sixth Street. Six grandfather's clocks of exquisite workmanship stand at various places about the house, the floors are covered with costly rugs, and the walls with exquisite tapestry and paintings.

Mrs. Stimpson's bedroom is richly furnished. Its walls are covered with pink satin, and the carpet also is pink in color, woven especially for the room. Most of the interior furnishings were given to Mrs. Stetson by her pupils.

Mrs. Stetson has a large collection of jewels. She wears many of these in public places and in her church work. Several large diamonds usually sparkle upon her hands. Mrs. Stimpson also is fond of jewelry and expensive clothes, but her collection of jewels is smaller than that of her sister.

In spite of this large store of worldly goods, Mrs. Stetson has not exacted large fees for her services in First Church. While officiating as First Reader several years ago her salary was $5,000 a year. She resigned, however, when an order from the Mother Church made that office a temporary one.

Those who are close to the Stetson household say the salary was continued, however, by the Board of Trustees, and that Mrs. Stetson did not suffer from the order of the Mother Church in that respect. From her pupils the regular fee was $50, but at the end of the course of instruction a purse was usually made up. Most of her worldly possessions came in gifts and bequests. Six or seven years ago a Miss Bush of this city died and left Mrs. Stetson an estate worth $50,000. There was a contest by the heirs, it is said, but Mrs. Stetson won. "The Divine love triumphed," as members of the congregation expressed it afterward.

Last Summer Mrs. Stimpson went to Europe. It is said that her expenses while abroad were defrayed by wealthy members of the congregation at the request of Mrs. Stetson.

According to one who has been thrown in close contact with affairs in the Stetson home, there is a general belief there that thought force plays an important part in all things. This pupil expresses it as follows:

Thought is force. The better the thought the better the thing. The more love you have in your heart the more affluent you are. Persons who do not give liberally have poor thoughts. Our surroundings are our thoughts externalized. Therefore, who has the best surroundings naturally can have the best thoughts. If you are poor and attract poor people you have poor thoughts. If you live in the slums, you live in the slum consciousness. Your clothes are your thoughts externalized.

While acting as teacher last Winter, Mrs. Stetson dressed always in white. A medallion of Mrs. Eddy, surrounded by diamonds, was worn on her breast. Unlike most other teachers in the Church, she conducted her classes in the main sanctuary, she being seated on the platform, her pupils in the pews.

Long before the First Church was built, Mrs. Stetson taught classes in Christian Science here. Among the converts to her teaching are Mrs. John Hoxey of Chicago, who responded with a gift of $100,000 when Mrs. Stetson called for funds with which to build the First Church. Most of the $1,250,000 raised to build the sanctuary was collected by Mrs. Stetson herself in a short time. All the money was in hand before the church was built.

Donors to the Church.

Mrs. Kassan Babcock also is a follower of Mrs. Stetson and a former pupil. It was she who donated largely to the organ in First Church. Henry P. Taylor, the well-known golf player, is another who was instructed in Christian Science by Mrs. Stetson, and he gave liberally to the Church. In Mrs. Stetson's classes there have been Judges, lawyers, merchants, bankers, college professors, and many men and women in society. Most of them have given liberally to Mrs. Stetson and to the Church.

Among the wealthy members of the Board of Trustees, chosen by Mrs. Stetson, and known to be in sympathy with her in the present controversy with the Mother Church, are William H. Taylor, Joseph B. Whitney, Edwin F. Hatfield, John R. Higgins, ex-Mayor of Oswego, and Mrs. Susanne Thomas. Those who are in a position to know say that Mr. Higgins and Mr. Taylor gave a large part of the money used in building the house for Mrs. Stetson.

When the first note of warning against Mrs. Stetson's teachings in the First Church came from the head of the Mother Church in Boston many in the congregation sought out Mrs. Stetson to learn what was wrong. This first note of warning appeared in the Christian Science Sentinel under date of July 17. It was this letter from Mrs. Eddy:

Box G, Brookline, Mass., July 12, 1909.
Mrs. Augusta E. Stetson, New York City:

Beloved Student: I have just finish reading your interesting letter. I thank you for acknowledging me as your Leader, and I know that every true follower of Christian Science abides by the definite rules which demonstrate the true following of their Leader; therefore, if you are sincere in your protestations and are doing as you say you are, you will be blessed in your obedience.

The Scriptures say, "Watch and pray, that ye enter not into temptation." You are aware that animal magnetism is the opposite of divine Science, and that this opponent is the means whereby the conflict against Truth is engendered and developed. Beloved! you need to watch and pray that the enemy of good cannot separate you from your Leader and best earthly friend.

You have been duly informed by me that, however much I desire to read all that you send to me, I have not the time to do so. The Christian Science Publishing Society will settle the question whether or not they shall publish your poems. It is part of their duties to relieve me of so much labor.

I thank you for the money you send me which was given you by your students. I shall devote it to a worthy and charitable purpose.

Mr. Adam Dickey is my secretary, through whom all my business is transacted.

Give my best wishes and love to your dear students and church.

Lovingly your teacher and Leader,
MARY BAKER EDDY.

Mrs. Stetson's View of It.

One of those in close touch with the First Church situation said yesterday that Mrs. Stetson explained to her friends that she was the favorite student of Mrs. Eddy, that she represented to Mrs. Eddy what the Apostle John did to the Saviour, and that Mrs. Eddy could not have inspired what Mrs. Stetson termed the unjust persecution of the Mother Church.

One who represents that he heard Mrs. Stetson's explanation of the letter of warning quotes her as saying:

Mrs. Eddy had no hand in this persecution from Boston. She is just standing by to see how Christlike I will bear up under it all in standing the test put to me by the Directors of the Mother Church. They put Jesus Christ on the cross. See what they are doing to me. Mrs. Eddy did not inspire this. The Directors of the Mother Church permit themselves to be an avenue for malicious animal magnetism to work through in attacking me. All the attacks of the Directors centre on me because I am strong in purity and spirituality.

But there were many members of the First Church congregation who considered Mrs. Eddy's letter as a serious rebuke and a forerunner of what was to come. Mrs. Stetson, however, is said to have instructed her practitioners to inform their patients that the letter was in reality a compliment in letting her and all other Christian Scientists see that she was being warned against the Directors of the Mother Church, who represented the malicious animal magnetism.

But on the heels of that letter by Mrs. Eddy came an order making a new provision in the church constitution, which forbade any church organization to allow practitioners' rooms to be maintained in the sanctuary or adjoining the reading rooms.

At that time Mrs. Stetson had allowed twenty-six practitioners to have offices in the church, and she had been calling meetings of the practitioners from noon to 2 o'clock daily. At these meetings she gained a general idea of the patients who were being treated, and was enabled to keep a general supervision over the work. The new provision abolished this, and the practitioners sought offices elsewhere.

It was about that time that Mrs. Stetson was called to Boston to appear before the Mother Church Directors and be questioned concerning her methods of conducting her organization here. The twenty-six practitioners also were called to Boston and were questioned by the Directors. The majority of them upheld Mrs. Stetson and sought to justify her teachings. As has already been published, sixteen of the practitioners were afterward ordered to stop practicing, and Mrs. Stetson was suspended for three years.

Mrs. Stimpson was not called to Boston by the Mother Church Directors.

Mrs. Stetson is said to have told her intimates recently that the "malicious animal magnetism which has been exerted against her is a supposititious force opposed to her personally through jealousy of her position in the church here."

When a reporter called yesterday at the Stetson home, 7 West Ninety-sixth Street, he was met at the door by a young woman who appeared to be a secretary for Mrs. Stetson. She declined to send a card to Mrs. Stetson, and said that the latter had nothing at all to say to the public at present.

TAFT FOR STATEHOOD; HE TELLS ARIZONA SO

Says in Making Her Constitution She Must Take Warning by Oklahoma.

EL PASO PREPARES WELCOME

Mexican Juarez Across the River Will Close Saloons When Taft and Diaz Come.

PRESCOTT, Ariz., Oct. 13.—President Taft won a hearty welcome in Arizona to-day by proclaiming wherever he went that he was heartily in favor of Statehood for each of the territories of Arizona and New Mexico. Mr. Taft had also some sober words for his hearers, in which he sought to impress upon them the necessity for deliberation in framing a State Constitution.

He declared that such a constitution should follow the simplicity of the Constitution of the United States and should consist merely of fundamental laws with simple rules as to limitations. Mr. Taft urged the people of Arizona to profit by what he termed the mistakes of Oklahoma in constitution making. He characterized the Oklahoma Constitution as a "zoological garden of cranks."

The President's train was whirled along at break-neck speed to-day through scorching desert wastes of sage brush and cactus. At times the alkali stirred up by the rushing cars filtered in a cloud through ventilating screens and closed windows and was well-nigh stifling.

EL PASO, Tex., Oct. 13.—The Mexican authorities to-day issued orders closing every saloon in Ciudad Juarez, opposite El Paso, from Friday noon, five hours before the arrival of President Diaz, until Sunday morning, ten hours after he leaves.

This is done, it was explained, as a precautionary measure for the protection of Presidents Taft and Diaz. The latter reached Chihuahua City to-day.

Both El Paso and Juarez are a mass of red, white, and blue and green, white, and red flags and bunting. Eight thousand in the two towns were busy to-day rehearsing their parts in the reception programme.

It was given out to-day that no newspaper men would be allowed to be present at the personal greetings of the two Presidents, either in Juarez or El Paso, and there will be no witnesses except the Cabinet officers of the two countries who may be in attendance.

Troop trains bearing Mexican soldiers continued to arrive last night and Juarez has the appearance of an armed camp. Nearly 3,000 troops are in tents around the town. United States troops are expected to begin arriving to-day. One of the special trains yesterday carried the gold and silver service brought to Mexico by Emperor Maximilian, which is to be used at the banquet in honor of President Taft.

CALERA, Mexico, Oct. 13.—President Diaz's trip from Mexico City has been a continuous ovation. At every stop crowds have gathered with flags and flowers and cheered those journeying northward to meet President Taft's party from Washington. At all of the most important stations along the route the train has stopped for from five to ten minutes and the President has saluted the crowds from the rear platform of his train.

At Encarnacion hundreds of workmen gathered, and when the President appeared they almost mobbed the platform of the observation car in an effort to touch the hand of Diaz. He extended both hands, which were grasped and kissed by scores of workmen. For nearly ten minutes the workmen paid a remarkable tribute to the aged ruler, while the band played the National anthem and a long line of infantry and cavalry stood at attention. More enthusiasm was evident at Aguas Caliente, a cavalcade of horsemen following the train for more than 200 yards waving farewells.

The President has expressed a desire not to travel at night, and last night the train was stopped in the open country. The party will reach the City of Chihuahua this afternoon, where the President will be entertained for two days. He will then journey north to meet President Taft on Saturday morning.

BIGGER SALARIES IN COURTS.

"I Plead for My Successor," One Judge Says—May Succeed Himself.

The increases asked by the Controller and the Borough Presidents came up for consideration before the Board of Estimate yesterday. These increases were:

	1909.	1910
President, Manhattan....	$2,697,808	$3,024,581
President, Brooklyn.....	2,337,421	2,569,836
President, Bronx.....	1,289,928	1,665,585
President, Queens.....	1,327,307	1,500,000
President, Richmond....	776,069	932,588
Department of Finance..	1,489,090	1,527,640
Charitable institutions...	4,760,650	4,887,759

Judge Humphreys of the Queens County Court appeared to request an increase in the salary of several court attendants. In reply to President McGowan he admitted that nothing these attendants do could not be equally well performed by policemen regularly detailed to the courts.

"Yet policemen," remarked the Mayor, "get from $1,000 to $1,300, and in Manhattan the Supreme Court Justices want to increase a number of their attendants to $3,500 a year."

"Our attendants have to get along with $1,500," replied the Judge.

"Are your increases mandatory?" asked the Mayor.

"I believe the court has the power to make the increases mandatory," said the Judge, "but I have never exercised it."

Then he went on to ask for an increase in the Judge's salary from $4,000, with an allowance from the Board of Estimate of $2,500, to $10,000.

"I plead for my successor," he said.

"Will you kindly tell us who your successor is likely to be?" asked the Mayor.

"I strongly suspect it will be myself," answered Judge Humphrey. "You see I have the nomination of both parties. I regret that I had to turn down President Gresser's nomination the other day."

Police Commissioner Baker applied for an appropriation of $54,500 for the School Census Board. The former appropriation for this purpose was $294,000. District Attorney De Witt of Queens wanted an appropriation of $33,000 instead of $20,000.

The first of the public hearings on the budget will be held this morning at 10:30 o'clock.

POLICE HOLD BETTING RING.

One Arrest at Jamaica Track for Offering Odds and Taking Cash Bets.

Following the raid on the betting men at the Jamaica race track on Tuesday, uniformed policemen under Borough Inspector Kelly, took possession of the old betting ring yesterday before the races began, and did not permit the crowd to enter.

The betting men were moved out on the lawn and uniformed policemen moved through them until the racing was over. It was said that fifteen plain clothes policemen were also circulated through the crowd trying to make cash wagers, and one arrest was made on evidence furnished in this way.

The prisoner was William Arnold, formerly a "back line" bookmaker. He was arrested on the charge of offering odds and accepting cash bets. He had no clerks, and it was alleged that what betting he did was with men who made offers to bet with him.

At the Jamaica Police Station he furnished bail to appear in the Far Rockaway Court to-day before Police Magistrate Gilroy.

Subway Holdup Men to Sing Sing.

Frank Ganter of 345 West Thirty-fourth Street and Gustav Singer of 727 Lexington Avenue, young men who have been successfully robbing men in the Subway, were sentenced yesterday by Judge Rosalsky in General Sessions to serve from three to six years in Sing Sing. William Wray, Jr., an actor in "The Third Degree," living at 1,883 Vyse Avenue, the Bronx, was instrumental in their capture despite their threats.

LINER ANTILLES SAFE.

Passengers on Stranded Ship to be Taken Off To-morrow.

HOUSTON, Texas, Oct. 13.—The following wireless dispatch was received at the offices of the Southern Pacific Company to-day from the steamer Antilles:

Antilles ashore on Bahama Islands. Everybody on board safe and well. Comus leaving New Orleans to-day, reaching here about Friday morning, will take off passengers and carry them to New York. Everything all right on the Momus, westbound, and she will arrive on time to-morrow morning at New Orleans.

KEY WEST, Fla., Oct. 13.—News reached here late this afternoon of the sinking of the tugs Sybil and Sadie at Bahia Honda during Monday's hurricane and the loss of the eleven members of the crew of the Sybil, including Capt. Parker.

The crew of the Sadie escaped.

The loss of life on the tug Sybil includes besides Capt. Parker, Engineer Fox, Pilot Whitmere, Engineer Peterson, and seven deck hands.

The following statement was given out at Miami to-day by Engineer Ernest Cotton of the Florida East Coast Railway:

The loss of life on the Florida East Coast extension is limited to the crew of the tug Sybil and Timekeeper J. H. Brown at Marathon, a total of twelve persons. The floating equipment of the road, and uncompleted work were badly damaged. There was, however, no damage to the concrete work at any point. All of our camps were more or less wrecked, but the large forces of workmen are being cared for and have sufficient supplies of food.

Hundreds of laborers to-day are clearing the streets and the waterfront of Key West of the debris resulting from the hurricane which virtually destroyed half of the city Monday. It will be many days before normal business conditions may be resumed here. The property damage along the Florida Coast is the heaviest in the history of the peninsular.

Acting on a resolution of the City Council last night, Mayor Fogarty issued an appeal for help from the people of the United States. The appeal says that there is scarcely a house in the city but has been either demolished or damaged. Many persons are homeless, and those who have homes are hardly in a position to help the other sufferers. It continues:

"Starvation and distress face our people. Cash contributions for the poor will be gladly received."

SIX DROWN IN LAKE WRECK.

Cleveland Boat Goes to Pieces on Canadian Shore—Twelve Saved.

DETROIT, Oct. 13.—In the wreck of the steamer George Stone of Cleveland on Point Pelee, Ontario, to-day, six lives were lost. Twelve men were saved.

The six men lost their lives when Capt. Paul Howell, Peter Daley of Erie, Penn., who was a passenger, and six members of the crew were captized in the surf while attempting to go ashore for assistance. Two of the crew clung to the overturned boat four hours until they drifted ashore. The remaining ten members of the crew were taken off the wreck by the steamer F. M. Osborne of Cleveland and brought to Detroit late to-day. One of the ten brought to Detroit, John Deidrich, was knocked into the Detroit River by a crowd of strike sympathizers on the docks, and narrowly escaped drowning.

The wrecked steamer was owned by M. A. Bradley of Clevelard, and was not insured. She went ashore last night during the height of the gale. At daylight to-day she was pounding badly, and the waves were washing over her.

STOCKWELL CRITICISES COOK.

Astronomer Listens to Lecture and Finds Room for More Doubt.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Oct. 13.—Prof. John H. Stockwell, an astronomical authority, well-known in America and abroad, was one of the audience at the lecture of Dr. Frederick A. Cook here last night. Prof. Stockwell was greatly interested in what Dr. Cook had to say, as he had found in the explorer's observations of the midnight sun reason to believe that Dr. Cook was hundreds of miles out of reckoning.

Prof. Stockwell afterward declared there were some points in the lecture which might bear further investigation by scientists. He alluded particularly to the statement of Dr. Cook that he had used an artifical horizon of glass in making his observations on the dash to the pole. He declared it would have been practically impossible for him to have done this in a region so far north, as the sun there is so low on the horizon as to obscure the plane of vision.

He also commented on the failure of Dr. Cook, both in his lecture and written articles, to make any reference to the use of a nautical almanac. He said that while he might have been able to tell when he he arrived at the pole, it would have been impossible for him to determine the latitude after he got the elevation of the sun without the nautical almanac. He said he had in no instance heard or read of either Dr. Cook or Commander Peary using the almanac.

"Dr. Cook said a great deal about taking his observations, but he did not once tell what the observations were that he had obtained, either at the pole or on the way there," said Prof. Stockwell. "It is what the observations were that the scientists of the world want to know. He could settle the whole controversy by simply making public his observations."

Prof. Stockwell said that while there were some observations that Dr. Cook might have made without being on the spot, he asserted that there were others which could not mislead scientists. He declared that the explorer in his lecture dwelt much on the details of his trip so far north as Cape Thomas Hubbard and little on the dash from there to the pole. He held that the latter part of the journey was the one most interesting to the public and scientists alike, and for this reason should have had more attention.

PROOF AGAINST COOK NOT ALL IN---PEARY

Further Facts to be Published If Recent Statement Is Not Conclusive.

GEN. HUBBARD WILL DECIDE

Cook's Statement That Eskimos Are Unreliable Answered by His Offer to Prove Claim by Them.

Special to The New York Times.

PORTLAND, Me., Oct. 13.—"If the statement given out by the Peary Arctic Club is not conclusive enough proof that Dr. Cook did not reach the pole there is more to come; our argument is not all in," said Commander Robert E. Peary to THE TIMES's correspondent at Eagle Island to-day. "Aside from this I have no statement to make."

"If it should be necessary to adduce further evidence when will this be done?" he was asked.

"I have left the whole matter in the hands of Gen. Hubbard. I have the utmost confidence in him. He may publish the further proofs all at once or in sections. He will use his own judgment."

"Commander," it was suggested, "the foundation of this statement of yours is Eskimo testimony, and Dr. Cook, in an interview this morning, says Eskimos are only too willing to say something that they think will please their questioners."

Mr. Peary read the paragraph referred to, then he straightened up in his chair and tapped with his forefinger a paragraph in the same interview, in which Dr. Cook was reported as saying:

"I will bring the Eskimos to New York at my own expense, and they will prove all I claim."

"Does Dr. Cook think Eskimo testimony unreliable?" queried the Commander.

"If Dr. Cook doesn't bring the Eskimos to New York, will you bring them?" was asked.

"You know I said I had no further statement to make about my future proofs," was the reply.

Though Commander Peary had so little to say concerning his published statement and its value as proof against Cook's claims, he seemed supremely confident of the ultimate result.

"You don't seem to be worrying while Dr. Cook is abroad telling how he reached the pole," was suggested.

"No," answered Mr. Peary. "I am very happy and very comfortable here on this island with my family. I hope that I shall be able to stay here for some time yet. I am ready for instant departure, however, if the call comes."

BURDEN OF PROOF ON COOK.

Prof. Hall Says That Is Effect of Peary Statement.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Oct. 13.—Speaking of the testimony given by the two Eskimos regarding Dr. Cook's journey, Prof. Wilhelm Pickering of Harvard said to-day that as the matter stands now it is an issue between the statement of Dr. Cook on one side and that of the Eskimos on the other.

"It would have been better," he said, "to refer the matter to an impartial commission or a court rather than to an Arctic club. A judge would really be better qualified to decide, because of his experience in weighing evidence."

Prof. E. H. Hall of Harvard said he might be slightly prejudiced because he was a college friend of Commander Peary at Bewdoin.

"Peary," he said, "has never doubted before to my knowledge the furthest north claims of any of the great Arctic explorers. Peary's party took all precautions in cross-examining the Eskimos to get at the truth, having examined them separately, and the Commander himself having left the examination to the other men in the party. The burden of proof should rest with Cook, because Peary has been willing to offer his record for examination, while Dr. Cook will not do this for at last ninety days."

John Ritchie, the astronomer, said:

"Whether Peary or Cook has reached the pole can be decided only by the next man who goes there. The suggestion to refer Peary's or Cook's records to the National Academy or to the University of Copenhagen seems foolish. I cannot see how they are any more competent to pass on the matter than any one else."

Asked what importance he attached to the signed statement of Peary, Capt. Robert A. Bartlett, D. B. McMillan, George Borup, and Matthew A. Henson, that two Eskimo boys had indicated by a map that Dr. Cook had not reached the pole, Mr. Ritchie replied:

"That is police work, detective work, but it is not scientific proof that would satisfy a scientific man. That one of them was there and photographed an eclipse visible at the pole but not on the American side might serve to prove his point, but it does not seem as if an eclipse would split itself at the pole.

"The public has been driven into an attitude of desiring to see Peary force Cook to prove his claim. This is not the proper scientific attitude. It is for both to prove that they have been at the pole. Cook has advanced no proof at all that he has been any further north than Greenland. Peary's claim rests upon the general credibility of his testimony, backed by that of Matt Henson, who appears to be of more than ordinary intelligence, and by the fact that Peary has been known to have approached the pole before.

"Peary has also the statement of his movements corroborated at various points. The records, however, rest at the pole, and it is for the next arctic explorer to prove or disprove the claims of both or either."

Asked if he believed the Eskimo boys were capable of tracing on a map where they had been, Mr. Ritchie replied:

"It would be difficult to tell just what an Eskimo could do with a map."

Dr. Frederick P. Gay of the Harvard Medical School, a member of the Arctic Club and the scientist attached to Dr. Cook's Miranda expedition to the arctic in 1894, speaking of the Peary statement, said:

"This testimony may be taken as corroborative detail, interesting and in its way important. Dr. Cook's obvious rejoinder is that the Eskimos have not told the truth.

"It will never be possible to convince everybody that Dr. Cook did not succeed. The average man is influenced by sympathy, rather than by proof, and, thinking of Cook as 'the under dog' in this controversy, sides with him accordingly. From my knowledge of Cook, I hesitate to say that he may not have reached the pole by a 'fluke.' He has personal courage, and nothing upsets him, and if circumstances favor such a man he is likely to gain his point."

Prof. A. Lawrence Roth said to-day: "The question of prior polar discovery is still unsettled. Mr. Peary is a man of his word. He says he knows the Eskimos' traits like a book, but his deductions are based on circumstantial evidence alone. With Eskimo evidence valued at its true worth, we still find ourselves at sea in determining the true polar discovery."

Gen. Thomas H. Hubbard, when asked last night if he would make public the additional material prepared by Commander Peary on Dr. Cook's trip toward the pole, said:

"I have received some data from Mr. Peary other than that which was published to-day, but I do not see that it ought to be made public at this time."

Then Gen. Hubbard smiled and asked: "Don't you think the statement of to-day is enough?"

SAY COOK MUST GIVE PROOF.

Judgment of Those Who Have Considered the Story of the Eskimos.

Deep interest was manifested in this city yesterday in the detailed statement issued by Commander Peary through the Peary Arctic Club, giving his reasons for holding that Dr. Frederick A. Cook did not reach the north pole.

Partisans of Dr. Cook argued that the word of the Eskimos, upon which Commander Peary based his statement, was not to be depended upon, although admitting that Dr. Cook himself was relying on the very same Eskimos to support his contention. Those in sympathy with Commander Peary said he had made out a strong case, and that Dr. Cook would now have to present absolutely conclusive proof if he is to overcome the evidence given by his Eskimos.

F. S. Dellenbaugh, explorer and librarian of the American Geographical Society, who is also a member of the special committee of the Explorers' Club which is investigating the assertion of Dr. Cook that he climbed to the summit of Mount McKinley in 1903, was averse to committing himself in the controversy, but did say that it seemed as though Commander Peary had presented a logical argument to support his allegations against Dr. Cook.

"I dislike saying anything about Commander Peary's statement. In view of the fact that I am a member of the committee that is now investigating Dr. Cook's Mount McKinley climb," said Mr. Dellenbaugh. "One thing that does strike me, however, is that the Eskimos who went with Dr. Cook have stated so positively that he did not go further north than a short distance above Cape Hubbard. I would not say that I would believe the word of all Eskimos, but under certain circumstances I would accept their testimony. Commander Peary seems to have gone to much trouble to get their statements accurately, and it is not for me to say whether the Eskimos told the truth or not. We are all anxious to see Dr. Cook's proofs, and, after all, they will probably have the most convincing weight, one way or the other."

"In view of what Commander Peary has brought out, do you believe Dr. Cook reached the north pole?" Mr. Dellenbaugh was asked.

"That I do not care to say," replied Mr. Dellenbaugh. "Let some one else talk about it."

Herbert L. Bridgman, Secretary of the Peary Arctic Club, would make no comment, beyond saying that he knew that Commander Peary had used extreme care and thoroughness in getting at the facts about Dr. Cook, and that he had cautioned the Eskimos that he wanted nothing but the truth.

"As an official of the Peary Arctic Club, I feel that the public does not want to hear any comment from me," said Mr. Bridgman. "Commander Peary considered that the statement issued by himself and those of his party would be sufficient. I believe it carries conviction with it."

The Standard Union of Brooklyn, of which Mr. Bridgman is the publisher, had this to say editorially of Commander Peary's statement:

Comment on Commander Peary's statement to-day of his reasons for believing that Dr. Cook never attained the pole is unnecessary. * * * If the force of the Eskimo testimony is denied, the twofold answer is obvious that Dr. Cook has publicly said that the Eskimo would prove his case, and that he should, next Summer, bring them to do it, and also that he had instructed them to lie for him. Discussion of ethics which develops counsels like this is impossible. If any Brooklyn clergyman should take for a text next Sunday "a good name is rather to be chosen than great riches," it would seem to have local application and illustration.

Prof. Marshall H. Saville, Curator of Archaeology of the American Museum of Natural History, declared that he did not attach much weight to the word of the Eskimos.

"In view of all the experience I have had with primitive people, I do not feel that I can see the importance of anything the Eskimos might have told Commander Peary," said Prof. Saville. "Their word one way or the other would not impress me. What is needed is the proofs that Dr. Cook says he has brought back. With those at hand we can get at the truth of the matter. Scientific data and not the word of Eskimos is desired."

"Do you think Dr. Cook will have sufficient proofs?" was asked.

"He says he has, and we shall have to wait for them," was the reply. "I can't imagine that he would make such positive statements with nothing to back them up."

"Would you require proofs of Commander Peary?"

"I think almost every one believes Commander Peary," replied Prof. Saville. "His position is different from that of Dr. Cook. He has twenty-three years of experience in the arctic behind him, and the people have confidence in him."

Dr. Roswell O. Stebbins of the Arctic Club of America, which recently dined Dr. Cook, said he had thought Commander Peary would have other evidence than the word of the Eskimos to produce against Dr. Cook.

"I cannot say that Commander Peary's statement convinces me," said Dr. Stebbins. "I stand where I did before. I shall believe Dr. Cook until the proofs he has are passed upon. If they are rejected as insufficient then it will be time enough for me to change my mind."

WHITNEY DECLINES TO TALK.

No Comment on Peary Statement—May Testify at Inquiry.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 13.—Harry Whitney, who saw both Peary and Cook in the north, declined to-night to make any comment on Commander Peary's formal statement in regard to Dr. Cook's claims. He said he intended to take no further part in the controversy.

While he would not admit the truth of the report, it is said that he is willing to testify before the National Geographic Society in case that body investigates the matter.

COOK TOO PRECISE, SAYS PROF. GIDDINGS

In a Lecture at Columbia He Asserts That the Explorer's Report Didn't Ring True.

'A GOOD STORY'—THAT'S ALL

Considered Scientifically, He Thinks It Hardly Worthy of Belief—Points on Observation.

In a lecture at Columbia University yesterday afternoon Prof. Franklin H. Giddings, who holds the Chair of Sociology at Columbia, severely arraigned Dr. Frederick A. Cook for scientific inaccuracy in his accounts of his polar journey. He said that Dr. Cook's statements of fact were "altogether too precise to be scientifically true," and that his published narrative struck him as being marked more by the quality of a desire for popularity than for truth.

The allusion to Dr. Cook was incidental to a lecture which Prof. Giddings gave on "The Scientific Method in the Determination of Fact," and Dr. Cook's narrative was used as an instance to prove his contention that scientific observations are never absolutely true.

"The scientific man never accepts a fact as absolutely determined until it is confirmed by more than one observation or measurement," said the professor in illustrating his point. "A fact in the scientific sense of the word is an agreement of many observations or measurements touched with an element of error which exists in all measurements and observations. In all careful work we find that co-efficient of error.

"Dr Cook in his book on the ascent of Mount McKinley gave us a statement of the altitude of the summit as determined by his instrumental observation, which was in such precise agreement with the altitude as determined by triangulation that the scientific man would at once suspect it. In like manner in his account of his journey to and from the pole he gave a record of day by day determinations of longitude, which couldn't possibly be so precisely made by observations in those high latitudes.

"The man of true scientific temperament," concluded the professor, "never makes those statements of alleged precision under circumstances where precision is impossible."

Prof. Giddings was asked later for a more explicit statement regarding his belief in Dr. Cook's report of his dash to the pole.

"While I don't care to take sides in the present controversy," said Prof. Giddings, "I don't mind saying that all of Dr. Cook's narrative forcibly struck me as being marked more by its quality of a desire for popularity than for its scientific truth.

"To me it didn't sound at all like a scientific statement. It sounded more like a good story. It didn't impress me as coming at all from a really scientific point of view."

Asked if he cared to state whether or not he believed Dr. Cook had actually reached the pole, he replied that he didn't care to enter into such a personal view of the matter; that he formed his conclusions entirely from Dr. Cook's scientific presentation of his facts.

A QUESTION OF VERACITY.

Prof. Jacoby Thinks the Peary-Cook Controversy Will Come to That.

Harold Jacoby, Rutherfurd Professor of Astronomy at Columbia University, lecturing in Schermerhorn Hall yesterday on north polar astronomy, expressed his conviction that while the whole world is waiting for the proofs of both explorers who lay claim to having discovered the pole, the matter will, after all, resolve itself largely into a question of individual veracity.

Prof. Jacoby expressed the view that observations apparently taken in the polar region might be fabricated. At the same time, he said, he hoped both explorers would produce indubitable proofs. He went on to show, by means of such instruments as are used by explorers, how observations are made, and explained how it is possible for an explorer to know that he is at the north pole. Touching immediately upon the question of the actual discovery of the pole, Prof. Jacoby said:

"The vital question that presents itself to every arctic explorer, at his highest attainable latitude, his 'Farthest North,' is how shall he ascertain how far north is that farthest north?

"In the temperate zone navigators determine their latitude by measuring with a sextant the angular elevation of the sun above the horizon at noon. The sextant is simply an instrument for making such measures. After they are made a very simple calculation enables the navigator to compute his position.

"Now in ordinary latitudes the sun reaches its greatest altitude at noon; therefore, the navigator has merely to wait for the greatest altitude that occurs on that day, and it will be the noon altitude.

"At the pole this method is useless, for the sun practically circles horizontally around the sky. Near the pole the altitude changes but little, and very slowly. The navigator must meet this difficulty by observing as near noontime as he can guess, allowing as well as he can for the error of his chronometer.

"But when the explorer reaches a point he supposes to be the pole itself, and remains there for a couple of days, this difficulty becomes an advantage in a way. For at the exact pole the sun's elevation is almost perfectly constant throughout the day of twenty-four hours.

"If several sextant observations are made at intervals of several hours, and they show the sun's altitude to have been practically without variation during those hours, we have complete proof that the pole has been reached.

"If the date is known, these altitudes must not only be nearly equal to each other, but also equal to a definite angle that can be computed in advance. Irregularities of atmospheric refraction could not impair the precision of such observations more than a few miles.

"It is precisely such a series of polar observations that Dr. Cook and Commander Peary must produce for the inspection of scientific men. I have written on the board here, as a specimen, an exact and complete copy of all the astronomic observations secured by Nansen on the day when he was 'furthest north':

1895, April 7. Bar. 30 in.; ther. 35.5 degrees. Height of eye, 24 feet. Index corr. 0. Mer. Alt. of sun, Lower Limb, 10 degrees 27 minutes.

"Nansen did not know at the time that his extreme latitude was reached on that day; the observations are therefore only such as would naturally be taken on any ordinary occasion in the arctic.

"But the total of observations taken by Cook or Peary at the pole itself should not occupy more than a few times the space of this one. The complete original astronomical record of either explorer made at the pole itself can probably be written on a single sheet of paper. The popular impression that such a record needs to be boxed up in something larger than a vest pocket—that popular impression is a mistake.

"Still another important conclusion can be drawn from an inspection of this Nansen record. As far as the astronomic records go, it would be possible to fabricate them without ever visiting the locality at all. Change this number (ten degrees) by one unit, and you put Nansen sixty-nine miles nearer the pole.

"Next comes the question, Has the pole really been reached? The astronomic records, when unboxed out of the explorer's vest pockets, will settle this question; until then, proofs are but conversation; they carry simply the weight of the explorer's personal word; no more, no less.

"And even after the records become public, we shall still perforce depend on the explorer's veracity, on account of the possibility of fabrication. The public exhibits of the actual instruments with which the observations were made is quite immaterial.

"Showing us a sextant with which certain observations were made will not render one whit more certain the fact that those particular figures, stated to be the results of real observations, were actually observed with that particular sextant.

"When the Captain of a transatlantic liner posts the ship's position and the day's run, we passengers do not expect him to hang up his sextant in the smoking room as a proof.

"I believe the pole has really been attained; that both explorers will, soon exhibit their astronomic observations. I trust that the personal credibility of neither explorer will be impaired by circumstantial or direct evidence."

SAYS COOK'S FOOD SUPPLY WAS SHORT

George Kennan, the Explorer, Certain He Couldn't Have Made the Pole with It.

ANALYSIS OF THE SUPPLIES

Using Dr. Cook's Own Figures, the Writer Shows Why the Polar Dash Was Impossible.

The amount of food which Dr. Cook says he took with him on his north pole dash was wholly insufficient to keep his party of three men and twenty-six dogs alive during their eighty-four-day sledge trip, says George Kennan, the explorer, in an article entitled "Arctic Work and Arctic Food" in this week's Outlook.

In Dr. Cook's fifth installment of his amplified narrative, as published, he says that his party of three men and twenty-six dogs took with them the following provisions:

	Pounds.
Pemmican	800
Musk-ox tenderloin	50
Todnu	25
Tea	2
Coffee	1
Sugar	25
Condensed milk	40
Milk biscuit	60
Pea soup, powdered and compressed	10
Sundries	5
Total	1,018

By means of a series of carefully compiled calculations, Mr. Kennan points out that this amount of food would have allowed the men and dogs in the party only eight ounces of food each a day, even when the eating of the slain dogs by the surviving ones is allowed for. After giving Dr. Cook's list of the amount of food carried on the north pole dash, the writer quotes Dr. Cook's further statement that each man and dog received one pound of pemmican a day during the eighty-four-day journey, and that no game was killed after leaving Heiberg Island.

Mr. Kennan asserts that Dr. Cook's pemmican, consumed at the rate the pole hunter says his party consumed it, would have lasted the party only forty-two days—one-half their eighty-four-day journey from Heiberg Island to the pole and back to Crown Prince Gustav Sea. He gives this table to sustain his contention:

CREDIT.

Lbs.

March 21—Amount of pemmican at start...800

DEBIT.

March 31—Pemmican eaten by three men and twenty-six dogs in first ten days at one pound each per day.....290
(Eight dogs died.)

April 10—Pemmican eaten by three men and eighteen dogs in next ten days, at one pound each per day.....210
(Six more dogs died.)

April 21—Pemmican eaten by three men and twelve dogs in next eleven days at one pound each per day.....165

May 2—Pemmican eaten by three men and ten dogs in next eleven days at one pound each per day.....135

Total pemmican eaten in forty-two days.800

The Writer's Conclusions.

"But his narrative shows that he was absent from his base of supplies for eighty-four days," says Mr. Kennan. "Heiberg Island to the pole, thirty-one days; at the pole, two days; from the pole back to latitude 84 degrees, thirty-one days; from latitude 84 degrees to Crown Prince Gustav Sea, twenty days. His pemmican, therefore, lasted only half the time that he spent in the field. Where did he get the food for three men and ten dogs from May 2 to June 13?"

Mr. Kennan says that Dr. Cook could not have got food by killing game, because the explorer distinctly says in his narrative that from the time he left Heiberg Island until on his return trip he reached Crown Prince Gustav Island, his party killed no game. On the authority of the scientist Chossat and the arctic explorer Lieut. Schwatka, he stated that the flesh of the sixteen dogs that died and were eaten by the other ten dogs during Dr. Cook's journey was equivalent to about five pounds of pemmican apiece or eighty pounds altogether. The flesh of the dead dogs, Mr. Kennan points out, would therefore have kept the three men and ten surviving dogs going for six out of the unaccounted for forty-two days.

"There remains only the third possible source of food supply, viz., pemmican saved by cutting down the one-pound daily ration," continues Mr. Kennan. "But how much would Dr. Cook have had to cut his ration, from the very beginning, in order to save enough for the whole journey, or, in other words, to make 800 pounds of pemmican last his men and surviving dogs eighty-four days?

"This, again, is a simple question of arithmetic. I have already shown that 800 pounds of pemmican, consumed at the rate of a pound a day per capita, would have lasted Dr. Cook's men and surviving dogs just forty-two days. In order to make it last twice that length of time, he would have had to reduce his daily ration by one-half, and give his men and dogs only eight ounces a day per capita, and this while they were doing hard work on circumpolar ice in temperatures that ranged from 40 to 60 degrees below zero.

An Untenable Statement.

"The mere statement of this assumption is enough to show its utter untenability. No man and no dog has ever lived and worked for twelve weeks, under polar conditions, on eight ounces of pemmican, or its equivalent, per day. It never has been done, and, if we may believe the physiologists, it never can be done, for the reason that eight ounces of food will not replace the used-up tissue and maintain the body temperature of a man or dog if either is forced to do hard and long-continued work in Arctic cold.

"Take, first, the case of the men. No arctic explorer, I think, has ever tried to live and work out of doors in Winter cold and for a long period on less than 32 ounces of the most nourishing food per day.

"Shackleton's standard ration was 32 ounces; Dr. Rae's, 33.8 ounces; Schwatka's, 35 ounces; McClintock's, 40 ounces; Mecham's, 40 ounces, and Peary's, 40 ounces.

"Dr. Cook's full ration at the outset was only 29.8 ounces, viz., 16 ounces of pemmican and 13.8 ounces of other food. If he cut the pemmican constituent of this ration in half, as he would have had to do in order to make his 800 pounds last 84 days, his daily allowance would have been 21.8 ounces, or about half the amount regarded as necessary by such explorers as McClintock, Mecham, and Peary.

"If I may be permitted to refer to my own three years' sledging experience in the desolate region lying between the Arctic Ocean and the Okhotsk Sea, I will add that my men never lived upon so small a quantity of food as that contained even in Dr. Cook's full ration, and that if I had been ordered to go to Wrangell Land, in the Arctic Ocean off the Siberian Coast, with two men, two sledges, twenty-six dogs, and a daily per capita allowance of eight ounces of pemmican, I should have expected to perish on the ice in less than thirty days.

Uses Cook's Own Report.

"Dr. Cook seems to have been well aware that even his full ration was insufficient to supply the needs of the body, because in the sixth installment of his amplified narrative he says that at the very beginning of his sledge journey there was a short allowance of food and fuel. One pound of pemmican per day for the dogs, about the same for the men, with just a taste of other things. * * * We filled up insufficiently on two cold meals, and used superfluous body tissue.' (The italics are mine.—G. K.)

"If there is any other case on record in which an arctic explorer began an eighty-day sledging trip by living on his body tissue for lack of sufficient food, it has not come to my knowledge. But if the one-pound ration of pemmican was insufficient, as Dr. Cook admits that it was, what shall be said of the eight-ounce ration to which he was inevitably reduced if he made his pemmican last eighty-four days?

"No arctic sledge party has ever been able to keep its dogs in working condition for two or three months on so small a ration as eight ounces of pemmican per day," Mr. Kennan concludes. "Dr. Hayes, in 1861, crossed Smith Sound on the ice at the same time of year that Dr. Cook crossed the circumpolar pack, and with the progenitors of the very same dogs that Dr. Cook used. He never succeeded in getting his dog ration down below twenty-eight ounces, although his dog food consisted of dessicated beef mixed with fat, and therefore did not differ essentially from Dr. Cook's pemmican.

"When, at last, on his return journey, his food supply was so reduced that for twenty-two days he could give his dogs only sixteen ounces a day, four out of the fourteen died, and the rest became so weak that, upon reaching Cape Hatherton, he turned them loose and abandoned his sledges altogether. Only three of these surviving dogs had strength enough left to follow the party to the ship."

Mr. Kennan's article concludes with the statement that "if the reasoning upon the facts set forth above is sound, it was not possible for Dr. Cook's party to stay eighty-four days in the field" and that "the story of the alleged achievement must be dismissed as in the highest degree improbable, if not absolutely incredible and impossible."

First Imperial Edict Recognizing Provincial Assemblies Is Issued.

PEKING, Oct. 13.—The first imperial edict recognizing the forthcoming Provincial Assemblies was issued to-day, with the order that copies of it be posted in the meeting places of the Assemblies. The Provincial Assemblies will make up the Imperial Assembly, which is charged with the responsibility of drafting a constitution for the empire.

The edict cautions and admonishes the members to be faithful to the trust imposed in them, and at the same time encourages the purpose for which they will be brought together.

THURSDAY, OCT. 14, we will offer 100 high-grade "G. M. Wheeler" Elgin Watches in gold-filled cases, at $12.98 each. These watches are Trust controlled goods. This company, together with the Waltham and two case companies, control nearly the entire watch industry of the country. They dictate prices and terms to the retail jewellers. For instance, this watch (which compares favorably with the "Riverside Waltham") is being advertised and recommended to the public to-day by the Elgin company itself at $28.00 each. Our price for the above date is $12.98. Every one will be sold with the distinct understanding that the purchaser has the privilege of returning it any time within ten days for the full amount in cash if it can be duplicated elsewhere for less than $28.00.

FREE On the above date I will present FREE to every purchaser a Peraglin Patent Watch Protector. It prevents the watch from being stolen from the pocket. This, in a sense, is almost as valuable as the watch itself.

SCHOOL FOR FLIERS OPENED BY Y. M. C. A.

The Aeroplane Yet in Its Infancy as a War Machine, Hiram Maxim Tells Students.

TAKES A FLING AT CONGRESS

Its Intelligence That of the Corner Grocery, He Says, Criticising Its Indifference Toward Aviation.

Aeroplanes in their present status are like a man afflicted with locomotor ataxia, Hiram Maxim told the members of the West Side Young Men's Christian Association last night.

"The flying machine now," he said, "has to be guided by the conscious will of man. To attain wide practical use and be available for scouting purposes in war, which will be the great field of the aeroplane's usefulness, the control must be almost automatic. It must be able to right itself instantly to all changes of wind, for hostile armies before attacking will not wait for mild winds, as the aviators prefer to-day."

The meeting was held in the large assembly hall of the Young Men's Christian Association Building in West Fifty-seventh Street, and it marked the formal opening of the new aeronautic school to be conducted by the association.

Winthrop E. Scarritt, in speaking of the advantages of aeroplanes for military purposes, criticised the refusal of the lawmakers at Washington to make adequate appropriations for practical experiments in aeronautics. This gave Mr. Maxim an opportunity to retort that "the intelligence of our National Congress does not exceed very much that of the corner grocery. When the people are educated to the utility of flying machines," he added, "the aeroplane enthusiasts will then get what they want."

"It is a flight of fancy only," continued Mr. Maxim, "to imagine that aeroplanes will ever be able to work wide destruction by dropping explosives from the air. The aeroplane will be the strong arm of the Signal Corps, and fleets of aeroplanes, each armed with a raiders' outfit, will be the actualities of the next great war, in the destruction of bridges, magazines, powder mills, and storehouses.

"Napoleon's dictum that God fights on the side of the heaviest artillery will be changed to one that God fights on the side having the best fleet of flying machines in addition to powerful artillery."

Wilbur R. Kimball is to act as the instructor in the school. He exhibited several models of aeroplanes, some of which were successfully launched from the gallery, making erratic but creditable flights to the platform. To encourage the building of models among the students, the first competition for a silver cup will be held on Saturday, Oct. 23, on the athletic field adjoining the building.

DISPUTES AIRSHIP RIGHTS.

French Company Holding Wright Concession Takes Action Against Rivals.

PARIS, Oct. 13.—The Compagnie Générale de Navigation Aerienne, which controls the patents of the Wright Brothers so far as their exploitation in France is concerned, to-day caused a theoretical seizure to be effected of virtually every biplane on exhibition at the Aeronautic Salon now in session here on the ground that certain details of their construction were infringements of the Wright patents.

Hart O. Berg, American representative of the Wright brothers in Europe, said that the object of the French company was to test the validity of the patents which it had purchased from the Wrights, and to exact damages for their infringement. The particular detail of construction upon which the claim of infringement is based is described by Mr. Berg as "any appliance used to vary the wind's resistance on one side or the other, as modified by a vertical rudder."

HALTS FLIER TO BE A HERO.

Boy's Tale of Railroad Wreckers False and He Is Arrested.

SOUTH LEWISTOWN, Penn., Oct. 13.—The Pennsylvania Railroad's eighteen-hour flier from New York to Chicago was halted last night at Juniata Bridge, a lonely spot sixteen miles west of Harrisburg, by the swinging of a red lantern across the tracks. As the train came to a standstill John Kretsinger, 17 years old, of Duncannon, near here, walked up to the locomotive and reported to the engineer, Harry Greenwood, that two men, heavily armed, had forced him at the point of a revolver to carry heavy rock on to the tracks for the purpose of wrecking the train. He gave a description of the men and said he watched his chance, ran across the tracks, and flagged the train in time to prevent an accident.

The members of the train crew were unable to find any rocks on the tracks. The boy was taken to Duncannon, where he was examined by Pennsylvania Railroad police. He finally confessed that he alone was responsible for the stopping of the train.

The police say the boy had been reading cheap literature and had flagged the train either to make himself a hero or to receive a reward from the company for saving the train. He is being held for further investigation.

HASKELL AGAIN ON TRIAL.

Oklahoma Governor's Counsel Attempt to Overturn Indictments a Second Time

ARDMORE, Okla., Oct. 13.—Gov. Charles N. Haskell and five codefendants, indicted last May on charges of obtaining titles to certain town lots in Muskogee by illegal methods, appeared before Judge John A. Marshall in the United States District Court here to-day for trial.

The Government is represented by Special Prosecutor Sylvester J. Rush and United States District Attorney Greggs.

All the defendants were originally indicted last Winter, but the indictments were quashed on a technicality last April. The cases were again taken up by the Federal Grand Jury in Tulsa in May and true bills found against six men.

Attorneys for Gov. Haskell entered a motion to quash the indictments, which were declared to be defective, and arguments on the motion were immediately begun. They may require several days.

WON'T STOP SHUTTLE CARS.

Commissioner Bassett Quiets the Fears of a Delegation from Queens.

Commissioner Bassett of the Public Service Commission quieted the fears of a big delegation of property owners yesterday that the commission proposed, in summoning the New York & Queens County Railroad to show under what authority it is operating shuttle cars across the Queensboro Bridge, to do something that would curtail the service across that structure. It had been reported after the commission had called the road's officers before it that the commission's action would tie up operation of the shuttle service installed over the bridge by that company. Hence the protesting delegation.

Commissioner Bassett explained that the Public Service Commission realized the necessity of having the largest traffic facilities over the bridge as clearly as any one, and was as anxious as any one that such should be provided.

The hearings were called, said the Commissioner, for the purpose of finding out whether the operation under a temporary permit from the Bridge Commissioner pending action by the Board of Estimate on the franchise came within the law.

James L. Quackenbush, counsel for the New York & Queens County Road, expressed the opinion that the present arrangement was within the law. Commissioner Bassett said he would like to receive briefs, and after a little legal argument the hearing was closed. The Queens County folks filed out without saying a word.

ONE WIDOW'S HARD LOT.

Husband Unburied and Undertaker Drunk—On My Last Money, She Says.

Mrs. Fanny Martin of 17 City Hall Place told a hard luck story in the Criminal Court Building yesterday afternoon which stirred her hearers to no little sympathetic indignation. Shabbily clad and much upset, Mrs. Martin recited the history of her wrongs with a pronounced brogue and many a graphic gesture.

She was nursing her husband through an attack of typhoid pneumonia, she said, when the Hudson Street Hospital authorities took charge of him on Monday. That evening she learned he had died two hours after leaving her home. The news came suddenly, but Mrs. Martin had no time to lament. She must think of the burial and the money it would cost. After much scraping she obtained $15 due her in wages, and with this trudged off through the rain to a Pearl Street undertaker.

According to Mrs. Martin the undertaker agreed to do the job and accepted her $15 and the deeds to her lot in Calvary Cemetery as part payment, promising to get the body from the hospital.

Learning on Tuesday that it was still there, Mrs. Martin hastened to Pearl Street to find the undertaker's office locked. Father Gilmore of St. Andrew's Church went to her assistance, and, forcing an entrance, discovered the proprietor dead to the world after an all-night party.

"On my money, I'll bet," cried Mrs. Martin. "But wan satisfaction I'll have. Father Gilmore give him a good poonch."

But this and a summons issued by Magistrate Barlow had no effect. When she brought a policeman she says that the man departed on the pretext of looking for her money. She followed and there was a great chase around corners and down alleys until the man escaped her in a saloon. She hasn't seen him since.

Her money is all gone and her husband lies at the Morgue, to be buried in Potter's Field unless something can be done soon. While there is a chance of that Mrs. Martin is reserving her tears. In the Tombs Police Court yesterday she did not succeed in getting a warrant for the undertaker's arrest.

BANK ROBBER SUICIDE AFTER RUNNING DUEL

Unknown Man in Auto Had Held Up Cashier and Staff in Broad Day.

HAD A CHAUFFEUR ALONG

But Prompt Citizens of Chicago Suburb Captured Car and Driver and Left Him Afoot.

CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—A fashionably dressed bandit this afternoon drove up in an automobile with a chauffeur and robbed the savings bank of D. M. Erskine & Co. in Highland Park, Ill., an aristocratic suburb on the lake shore twenty-five miles north of Chicago. A few minutes later he committed suicide by shooting himself in the mouth, having been brought to bay after a running fight by the Highland Park Marshal and a posse of citizens. The man who acted as chauffeur had already been caught and the principal was on foot.

Marshal John Sheehan was the target for many bullets from the fugitive's revolver, and one bullet went through the sleeve of Sheehan's coat. After running several blocks and failing to drive back his pursuers, the robber ran into a shed closely followed by Sheehan. When he saw Sheehan enter the shed with his revolver levelled, the man put the muzzle of his own revolver in his mouth and fired a shot which resulted in death almost immediately.

The robbery was conducted in a deliberate and spectacular manner, the bandit securing about $500 in gold coin and bills after he had forced John C. Duffy, cashier of the bank; Miss Nellie Fitzgerald, the bookkeeper, and Joseph F. Richards, the receiving teller into the cashier's cage just after the closing of business for the day.

In the morning the automobile bearing the robber and his chauffeur drove up to the bank. The man who is now dead entered the bank and inquired of Cashier Duffy if a Mr. Williams was in the bank. Duffy said he knew of a Mr. Williams at Libertyville, Ill., some miles west of Highland Park. The visitor thanked him and left. He drove away and returned a little after 2 o'clock in the afternoon. He entered the bank, while his companion remained outside in the car.

"Did you find Williams?" asked Duffy when his visitor re-entered.

"No, he wasn't there," the stranger replied, and went to the street and conversed with the chauffeur only to return to the bank and stand in a remote corner of the room while Duffy closed the front doors. The side door the cashier left open for the stranger to depart.

Fearing that something was wrong Duffy hurriedly took a large amount of money and locked it in the vault. Several hundred dollars were still in his cage, however. As he entered the cage Duffy was confronted by the robber, who covered him with a revolver.

"Call every one in here into that cage," said the bandit, "or I'll blow your head off. Hurry up!"

Duffy, who was unarmed, complied with the demand. Miss Fitzgerald and Richards went into the cage, while the intruder helped himself to all the money in sight. He carefully tucked the gold and bills into his pockets, and then exclaimed:

"If any of you attempt to follow me I will kill you."

When he started for the door, Duffy telephoned the Marshal's office across the street. By the time the robber reached the automobile Marshal Sheehan was running toward the bank. At sight of him the robber broke into a run and citizens held the chauffeur. The chase lasted only a few minutes. All the money taken from the bank was found in the dead man's clothing.

Neither of the robbers has been identified, the man who acted as chauffeur having refused since his arrest to reveal anything.

The Knabe-Angelus
THE WORLD'S BEST PIANO. THE FIRST AND BEST PLAYER-PIANO.

88 NOTE—FULL RANGE OF KEYBOARD.

The proud title, "THE WORLD'S BEST PIANO," could not have been won by the KNABE if it did not possess in a superior degree all those qualities which a piano must have to be worthy of consideration by pianists and musical critics. Its enviable position had been gained and is maintained by its exceptional musical value—the permanency of its extraordinary tonal qualities, its splendid responsive action—in short, its adaptability to the perfect interpretation of any piano composition.

The ANGELUS, the pioneer piano-player, introduced by us in 1895, is recognized as the highest possible attainment in the invention and manufacture of piano-playing devices. This marvellous instrument to-day makes good our bold assertion that with its aid you can produce music which cannot be distinguished from that of a finishod pianist.

The KNABE ANGELUS is equipped with all the patented devices and exclusive features which have kept the ANGELUS so distinctly in the lead of all other piano-players. These include the famous PHRASING LEVER, the wonderful MELODANT, the DIAPHRAGM PNEUMATICS, the MELODY BUTTONS and the ARTISTYLE music rolls. The playing compass of the ANGELUS is 88 note—the full range of the keyboard—and it is so constructed that both the 65 and 88-note rolls can be used.

KENNETH GALT
By WILL N. HARBEN

The scene—as it should be—is the rural Georgia Mr. Harben has made famous, and the author goes still deeper in passionate realism. He has set a new mark of artistic workmanship. Kenneth Galt, brilliant and able, with a theory of life which allows human beings to make their own moral laws, providing they call them by high-sounding names, betrays a young girl. Six years elapse; Galt comes to power and fame; he returns to the village and meets his own child. The boy captivates the father's heart; the man and woman face each other—in the most unexpected manner. As a plea for lawful living, the book is very strong.

Talks on Teeth
By G. GORDON MARTIN
(Incorporated)

False Plates

Teeth Troubles? Are you having trouble with a partial plate?
You can eat properly with it, can you?
Ever heard of the Martinolar Method? Do you know it is possible, through this wonderful discovery, to put teeth in the mouth without plates?
We are doing that work daily.
A New Plan—This method is one of the greatest achievements ever known in the science of dentistry.
No Plates—Heretofore the dentist has demanded an anchorage in the shape of a suction plate or a "Bridge" before he could supply any teeth. We only ask for two or more teeth in either jaw, no matter whether they are tight or loose ones. If they are loose we cure the cause of the looseness. With these to work with we give you the teeth you have lost, upper and lower, big, solid, natural looking teeth, that will enable you to eat anything in comfort—practically the same comfort as you used to have when you had all your own teeth.
Not Implantation—This work is not done by implanting teeth in the jaws, nor does it call for any cutting or pain.
Mass of Proofs Ready—If you will come to our offices we will be glad to submit such a mass of proof from satisfied patients that you will want us to get to work on your mouth at once.
The following is a sample of letters we are receiving daily:

153 Boyd Ave., Jersey City, N. J.
G. Gordon Martin, Inc.
Gentlemen:
In reply to your inquiry as to how I am pleased with the work you did for me, I would beg to state that when I called at your place I was a discouraged man, as I was led to believe there was no help for my teeth, only to lose them all, but after your treatment I was more than pleased, and it would give me great satisfaction to recommend you to any one who needs your services, as in my opinion you are the First in your Profession. You are at liberty to show this letter to any one or to refer any one to me.
Very truly yours,
EDWARD DE FORGE.

Examination Free—We make a careful examination of your case first of all, and this service is entirely free and puts the visitor under no obligation to have any work done. We are general practicioners and do the very highest class of dental work. Don't confound us with the so-called "Dental Parlors" just because we believe in advertising.
We are doing a marvellous work, and must tell the world about it.
If you cannot come to one of our offices write for our book, "Martinolar Dentistry," which tells about us and our great work. The book is free for the asking.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 13.—Pittsburg took the lead in the great battle now being waged for the world's baseball championship by defeating Detroit, 8 to 4, in the fifth game of the series, at Forbes Field to-day. This gives the National League champions three victories to two for Detroit, the winners of the American League pennant. The scene will shift to Detroit again to-morrow, where the sixth, and possibly the last, game of the series will be played. By winning to-morrow Pittsburg will clinch the world's championship, but if Detroit wins the series will be tied again and a seventh game will be necessary.

Despite its announcement that it would meet in Detroit to-morrow to decide where the seventh game is to be played, the commission met to-day and decided to play the crucial game, if it is needed, in Detroit. It was also decided to postpone the seventh game until Saturday in order to give the Detroit Club time in which to sell reserved seat tickets. President Garry Herrmann flipped a coin, and President B. B. Johnson of the American League won and chose Detroit.

The game was played with the thermometer hovering between 35 and 40 degrees above zero. A chilling wind from the southwest swept across the field, but the immense grand stand protected the great majority of the spectators. Despite the untoward conditions, 21,706 persons saw the game, and the receipts were $32,173. Of this sum the National Commission receives $3,217.30 and each club owner $14,477.85. The players no longer share in the receipts, as the first four games is their limit. This makes the receipts for five games $156,108 and the total attendance 117,347. Each club owner has now received $36,786.15, and the National Commission $15,610.80.

A home run by Manager Fred Clarke, which scored Byrne and Leach ahead of him, turned the tide of victory to Pittsburg in the seventh inning, after Detroit had tied the score at 3 to 3 by scoring two in the sixth.

Detroit had two home runs to its credit, but neither came with any one on bases. D. Jones, the first man up in the first inning, hit the ball into the enclosure which had been built around the outfield for the overflow. There was no overflow from the permanent stands, and it appeared easy to hit the ball over the low fence. Sam Crawford made the other Detroit home run in the eighth inning.

Crawford's homer nearly deprived Pittsburg of the services of the brilliant Tommy Leach. Leach gave chase to Crawford's long hit, and while running backward at a good clip he struck the low fence. The impact of his body smashed the boards and he shot over the fence head first and turned a complete somersault. A groan went up from the crowd, as it appeared as if it were impossible for the little centre fielder to escape injury. After a short delay he returned to his place in the field, apparently none the worse for his spectacular mishap.

Charles Adams, the phenomenal youngster of the Pittsburg team, achieved the high distinction of being the only pitcher to win twice in the series by annexing to-day's game. Adams clearly outpitched Summers, who worked the first seven innings for Detroit, but he was lucky in having the team behind him hitting, as he allowed the losers four runs. Adams allowed six hits—two home runs, two two-baggers, and two singles, while Summers was hit safely ten times, including one home run and one double.

Davy Jones's home run gave Detroit a run in the first inning, but Pittsburg immediately tied the score because Summers gave a base on balls with the bases full, thereby forcing a runner home. A wild pitch by Summers allowed the second Pittsburg run to score in the second inning, and another came in the third. The score remained 3 to 1 in Pittsburg's favor until the sixth, when Detroit bunched a single and a two-bagger and, aided by Wagner's costly bad throw, scored two runs. Then came Clarke's home run in the seventh, and the National Leaguers then had a commanding lead. Each team scored one more run in the eighth inning.

The mighty Wagner had a bad day in the field, making two errors in five chances. His first error was a bad throw of Delehanty's grounder in the sixth, and it allowed Crawford to score from second. His other misplay was a muff of Tom Jones's pop fly into short left in the ninth.

At the bat Wagner made one hit in four times up, but reached first three times. The first time he drew a base on balls, but was left on second, and in the third inning he singled to left, but was on third when the inning was ended. In the fifth he was an easy out, and in the seventh he was hit in the back by a pitched ball. He dropped to the ground and was evidently in great pain, but he soon recovered and trotted to first base.

Cobb made only one hit—a single to left in the sixth. In the field he did not have a single chance.

After getting three balls and two strikes, Davy Jones, in the first inning, hit the ball into the centre field stand for a home run. Bush walked, but Cobb flied to Leach. Crawford's single to left sent Bush to third, as it was a hit-and-run play. Crawford stole second, but Delehanty struck out and Moriarty popped to Abstein.

Pittsburg tied the score in its half of the first inning. Byrne hit past Bush and Leach laid a safe bunt along the first base foul line. Clarke sacrificed both runners along, Stanage to T. Jones. Wagner drew a pass and the bases were filled. Miller struck out, but Abstein worked Summers for a pass and Byrne was forced across the plate. Wilson ended the inning by striking out.

The Pirates added another run to their total in the second inning. Gibson beat out a hit to Bush and Adams sacrificed, Summers to Delehanty. Delehanty made a wonderful one-handed scoop of Byrne's fast bounder and threw him out to T. Jones, Gibson going to third. A wild pitch allowed Gibson to score.

The National Leaguers added another one in the third. Clarke started by drawing a base on balls and went to third on Wagner's neatly placed hit to left. Miller's out, Bush to T. Jones, scored Clarke.

Detroit tied the score by landing two runs in the sixth inning. After Bush struck out Cobb singled to left and scored on Crawford's double to centre. Delehanty grounded to Wagner, who threw poorly to Abstein, and Crawford scored, while Delehanty continued to second. Moriarty flied to Clarke and T. Jones popped an easy foul to Abstein.

Pittsburg broke the tie in the seventh. After Adams struck out Byrne singled to left and went to third on Leach's hit to the same place. Clarke's home run accounted for three scores. Wagner was hit in the back, but as soon as he reached first base he forgot all about his pains and stole second, and then third, scoring on Schmidt's high throw past Moriarty. That gave Pittsburg four runs and enough to make victory certain.

Detroit scored in the eighth on Crawford's home run. Wilson opened Pittsburg's eighth with a double between D. Jones and Crawford, which the former lost in the sun. Wilson scored on Gibson's single to right. Gibson stole second, but was caught trying to steal third, Schmidt to Moriarty. The score:

TWO MORE PLAYERS FINED.

Ty Cobb Dodged Cleveland to Prevent Probable Arrest for Assault.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 13.—The National Baseball Commission to-day announced that it had fined Miller of Pittsburg $50 for his conduct in yesterday's world's series game, and a penalty of $25 was inflicted on Donovan of Detroit for his actions, which caused Umpire Klem to send him from the field. The fining of Manager Clarke, Gibson, Leach, and Camnitz for their actions in Monday's game makes six fines that have been inflicted during the last two games.

Ty Cobb, the star rightfielder of the Detroit team, did not accompany his teammates on the National Commission's special train last night because of his desire to avoid Cleveland. Manager Jennings of Detroit received information that the Cleveland authorities intended to arrest Cobb as he passed through Cleveland in the special train. Cobb had trouble with a hotel watchman in Cleveland recently, and it was reported to Jennings that an indictment for felonious assault had been brought against Cobb by the Grand Jury.

Cobb came from Detroit to Pittsburg by way of Buffalo, and did not arrive until long after his teammates.

President of Chicago Nationals Accepts Penalty in Pfeffer Case.

CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—Charles M. Murphy, President of the Chicago National League Club, to-day sent his check for $500 to President Herrmann of the National Baseball Commission in payment of the fine inflicted by the Supreme Court of baseball for alleged tampering with Pitcher Pfeffer of the Toronto Club of the Eastern League.

The commission acted upon the complaint that President Murphy had attempted to obtain the services of the pitcher through improper means, and the $500 fine was the result.

Murphy appealed for a reopening of the case, and the National Commission this week took further action in the matter, Murphy having not paid the fine. While the commission did not announce its final action, it is understood that it gave Murphy seventy-two hours in which to pay the fine, or still further action might banish the Chicago Club's President from organized baseball.

BEAUCOUP DEFEATS NIMBUS FOR STAKE

Montpelier Stable's Colt Easily Takes the Garden City at Long Odds.

ANAVRI'S LUCKY VICTORY

Favorites and Outsiders Exactly Divide the Six Races at the Jamaica Track.

One comforting circumstance at the Jamaica race track yesterday was that even if the police did bar every one from the old betting ring, that same betting ring was the coldest and most cheerless spot on the grounds. The wind swept through the big open grand stand, and a limited patronage huddled wherever a wind break could be found, the betting men, barred from their "ring," alone braving the cold out on the lawn.

Well-filled fields ran for most of the races, but on a dull and soft track, the public favorites and outsiders making just about an equal division of the six events.

The longest chance winner in the most surprising result of the day was the Montpelier Stable's sometimes good colt Beaucoup, which at 10 to 1 romped away with the stake feature of the card, the Garden City, at a mile and a sixteenth, easily running away from the odds-on favorite Nimbus in the stretch. Beaucoup was suspected once of being a truly good horse, and his achievement when as a two-year-old he ran the unbeaten Colin to a head will long be remembered by turfmen. Beaucoup has run some indifferent races since then, and he really was not much considered in the field of five horses that went out for the Garden City.

Nimbus went away from the post in front, but always Beaucoup was on his heels. On the last turn Nimbus tried to slip away in front in his usual style, but Beaucoup went with him, and from the moment that the two turned into the short stretch lapped, Beaucoup held the favorite, and coming away at the end won rather easily by three lengths, with Nimbus second, clear of Arasee.

Of three post favorites that got home first the Oneck Stable's two-year-old Anavri carried luck as well as Jockey Glass. Anavri, with the extreme outside position, broke well up with his field of eleven horses, but was kept tiptoed all the way to hold his place in front, and after taking the lead from Hibernica at the head of the stretch, was tiring when Rustem moved up and challenged. There was a sharp brush down the straight, and Rustem had just showed his head in front and taken on the look of a winner when the apprentice jockey Benschoten, on Rustem, felt his cap blow off. It was not much of a loss, but Benschoten hesitated about permitting the loss and stopped riding just long enough to let Anavri come on again and nip him on the post by a head.

Taboo had to work her way to the front in the second race, but won handily at the end, and Sou ran off with the first race at the end. Summaries:

Lipton Sails for New York Saturday.

LONDON, Oct. 13.—Sir Thomas Lipton has engaged passage on the steamer Cedric, which will sail for New York Saturday. While in the United States Sir Thomas expects to discuss with members of the New York Yacht Club the status of international yachting. There is reason to believe that he cherishes little hope of arranging another race for the America's Cup. He will reiterate his desire to challenge under the universal rule and explain once more his frequently repeated views concerning the attitude of the New York Yacht Club.

Monmouth County Drag Hunt.

Special to The New York Times.

LONG BRANCH, N. J., Oct. 13.—Only a half dozen huntsmen braved the bitinz Fall winds this afternoon to follow the hounds in the midweek drag of the Monmouth County Hunt Club. The run was conducted under the auspices of the Rumson Country Club, the course being from the kennels at Eatontown to Oceanport and return, over a fine hunting country. There was some excellent jumping, but aside from this the drag was devoid of any marked incidents. Robert J. Collier, master of hounds, did not take part.

BOSTON BLANKS GIANTS.

Teams Must Return to Polo Grounds To-day to Play Fifth Game.

BOSTON, Oct. 13.—The Boston Americans shut out the New York Nationals in the fourth game of the post-season series here to-day 2 to 0. Collins, one of the youngest of the local twirlers, outpitched the veteran Mathewson, holding the visitors to four scattered hits.

Speaker was again the star of the game. His hit in the first inning, after two were out, resulted in the first run when Stahl followed it with a three-bagger. In the eighth he sent Collins in for the second tally with another drive over second, and in the ninth he saved two hits by capturing two long flies after hard running.

Doyle, Bridwell, and McConnell carried off the fielding honors.

The attendance was 5,240, with $2,328 in gross receipts. Of that amount $232 goes to the National Commission, $838 to the owners, and $1,257 is divided among the players.

Both teams left for New York to-night to play the fifth game to-morrow on the Polo Grounds. It was intended to play the remaining games here, but the National Commission would not sanction the plan; therefore, if the Giants win on Thursday, the teams will return to Boston to play another game. A CHAPTER OF BLUNDERS.

If prior to the appointment of Mr. CRANE as Minister to China it had been difficult for the President to find a man of high qualification willing to accept that post, we should say, in view of the circumstances of Mr. CRANE'S resignation, that it would now be impossible. Certainly the friends of any self-respecting man would be well justified in warning him against the risks of accepting an appointment that might bring upon him the humiliations which Mr. CRANE has been compelled to endure. It is impossible to acquit Mr. CRANE of indiscretion, but it is also impossible in justice to put all the blame upon him. The responsibility must be shared, and rather fully shared, by the Secretary of State and by the President himself.

It is not easy to believe that President TAFT told Mr. CRANE after his appointment that, because of his wish that the people should be aroused to a keen interest in the Pacific situation, he told the Minister to China to accept all available invitations to public meetings and dinners, "and, when you go, insist on speaking, and let them have it red hot." Yet Mr. CRANE says in so many words that that was what the President told him. Successful diplomatic negotiations are commonly carried on at somewhat lower temperature than the President's words would indicate. Mr. CRANE was mistaken, of course, in assuming that the President wished him "to discuss realities and not platitudes." After taking his place in his country's diplomatic service the assumption with him should have run the other way—that he must not discuss realities, and that his public addresses must, of necessity, consist of platitudes. Even if the President did not know that, Mr. CRANE ought to have known it.

Again, it is amazing to be told by Mr. CRANE that the difficulty of his position has "been increased by the absence of specific instructions from the State Department, and of any adequate discussion with its officials as to the policy of this Government." Is it possible that the Secretary of State permitted the Minister to China to depart upon his journey without discussing fully and minutely the policy of the Government and the course it wished its Minister to pursue? Mr. CRANE had a right to expect that specific instructions should be given to him immediately after his appointment. Yet he seems to have been left to wander rather aimlessly around the corridors of the State Department without being able to find anybody authorized to tell him what he was to do. It is not surprising, therefore, but, in view of the President's most ill-judged admonition about "giving it to them red hot," it is unfortunate that the Minister should have turned to the White House for guidance.

If it was necessary to recall Mr. CRANE, certainly it should have been possible to recall him without putting the stamp of official authority upon the newspaper revelations of the Government's attitude toward the affairs of China and Japan in Manchuria. Mr. CRANE is certainly chargeable with indiscretion if he said anything at all to a newspaper correspondent upon that subject, but the greater indiscretion, it seems to us, is the wholly superfluous recital of the history of that breach of propriety in the statement given out by the Secretary of State. For now the whole world knows that, in fact, we regard as prejudicial to our interests certain agreements reached by China and Japan with respect to Manchurian affairs.

Under a former Secretary of State we used occasionally to hear of our "shirt-sleeve diplomacy." In the matter of Mr. CRANE'S appointment and sudden recall the proprieties and formalities of raiment seem to have been even more conspicuously disregarded. Tennis is an agreeable pastime, golf a useful form of physical exercise, long Summer vacations and much touring of the country build up the bodily strength and bring information, the jocular informality of club smoking-room discourse is at times an agreeable relaxation. But the business of the Government of the United States is a serious business. It demands the pretty constant attention of those who are charged with directing it, and it would be just as well, better, even, if in so important a matter as the naming and the instruction of a Minister Plenipotentiary respect should be paid to those forms of procedure sanctioned by custom and prescription, even if, by adhering to them, the ease and picturesqueness of off-hand happy-go-lucky methods were sacrificed.

THE GAYNOR CHARGES.

The charges made by Mr. IVINS against Judge GAYNOR, which are now supported by the statement of Assistant District Attorney ELDER of Kings County, constitute something more than a campaign "attack," they are the gravest possible imputation upon the judicial and personal honor of the Tammany candidate for the Mayoralty.

It is charged that Judge GAYNOR consulted with the most notorious lobbyist in this State and with a Brooklyn politician equally well known in respect to the laws forbidding race-track gambling. There is no possible theory of the duty of a Judge that would excuse or palliate his conduct in holding a conference with such persons. It is further charged that an attempt was made to get a "fake" case brought before Judge GAYNOR, in order that his view of the Constitutionality of the statute might be declared. A case involving another kind of "gambling" actually was brought before the Judge, and in his opinion the principles involved in the race-track gambling law were passed upon and a definition of "common gambler" was given that favored the race-track men.

This is the accusation Mr. IVINS brought against Judge GAYNOR. It is supported by the Kings County prosecuting officer who was active in resisting the efforts of the gamblers to have the law set aside. It was easy, but it was not a satisfactory defense, for Judge GAYNOR to say that he was not called upon to contradict any statement made by Mr. IVINS. Mr. ELDER'S confirmatory statement imposes upon him a still more urgent obligation to clear himself. He knows very well that if the Legislature were in session, and if he were to remain upon the bench, he would be called upon to put in his defense in impeachment proceedings. He is to come down from the bench, but he is running for Mayor. He is appealing for the suffrages of the people to raise him to another office of trust and responsibility. A man under these grave charges, not disproved, is not in a position to invite the confidence of the people.

HINDERING TRANSIT BETTERMENTS.

The hearing before the Public Service Commission as to whether or not the Queens County Railway should be fined $5,000 for operating under a temporary franchise a line across the Queensboro Bridge, without the Commission's assent, is untimely and blundering. If there were any intention to avoid the Commission's jurisdiction, or to prejudice the public interests in any way, the Commission might be excused for asserting its dignity and jurisdiction. But the facts were otherwise. The company made public application to the authorities in control of the bridge, and are proceeding regularly for the grant of a permanent franchise, upon which the Commission will have opportunity in due course to exercise its discretion and authority. Meanwhile, as the proceedings are tedious, a temporary franchise was granted in kindness to the Queensboroites, who are profiting by it to the number of 20,000 daily. Now comes the Public Service Commission to say that this accommodation must stop—for that is what the infliction of the fine would mean—in order that its dignity may be asserted.

This is not the first time that the Commission has appeared before the public in this manner. The Third Avenue Railway also needed the Commission's assent to work necessary in the interest of its passengers, and the assent, to an admittedly proper proposal, was so slow in coming that the company proceeded without the permission. It was wrong, of course, and upon a judicial hearing the company was fined $1. It will be recalled also that the Board of Estimate having granted the South Shore Company a franchise across the Queensboro Bridge, the Public Service Commission sought to annul the franchise for reasons which the court disapproved. The Commission appealed, and the matter is pending, so that there is no formal decision yet about the merits of that case. But the three cases together go to show that the Commission thinks that its part in the promotion of rapid transit improvements is more important than all other factors together.

The Commission takes itself too seriously, and is mistaken in thinking that the exercise of an invariable veto is what its duty calls for. In this particular case the Commission might very well have cautioned the company that it was under observation, and that the Commission would intervene at an appropriate time. Perhaps no great harm would have come if the Commission had closed its other eye, and had waited until after election before doing anything at all. But to intervene obstructively just now, at the height of a campaign in which rapid transit is a leading issue, is to exhibit a capacity for blundering exceeding its own previous record. The effect is not confined to the Commission. It extends even to discrediting the law itself. The intent of the law was to promote rapid transit as speedily as possible and compatibly with the public interests. But the Commission is proving itself as much an obstruction as the Elsberg law, which has been amended already, and apparently must be amended again, if the city is to get any more subways. This is not what people expected, or what they want. It is not unlikely that the subject may be made an issue in appeals to the Queensboro electorate. It is true that the Commission is not running, fortunately for itself, but rapid transit is an issue and candidates may think that they can advantage themselves by taking a position regarding the Commission's unfortunate interpretation of what it is judicious for it to do in the execution of the law.

SENSIBLE.

In that branch of the Panama libel case which involves the Indiana defendants Judge A. B. ANDERSON of the United States District Court renders a decision that is commendable and satisfying from the point of view of common sense, justice, and a reasonable interpretation of the laws of the land. The Government attempted to remove to the District of Columbia for trial in this case the proprietors of The Indianapolis News on the theory that, as certain copies of the paper are sold and read in the District, the offense complained of was there committed. Judge ANDERSON refuses to take that view of the law.

There are but two possible theories of the matter. Either the offense was committed in Indianapolis, where the paper was actually published, and there alone, or it was committed in every State and county of the Union where the newspaper was circulated. The theory that a publisher charged with a libel may be put on trial all over the country before any tribunal the prosecutor may select would be plausible and consistent in a despotic land, where the Government for its own purposes might, now and then, desire to harass and destroy persons charged even with minor offenses. That our laws intend or will permit such procedures is a theory that will be maintained only by persons of an absolutist temper.

Judge ANDERSON puts his view of the law in this way:

> If the history of liberty means anything; if the Constitution means anything, then the prosecuting authority should not have the power to select the tribunal, if there be more than one to select from, at the capital of the Nation, nor should the Government have the power to drag citizens from distant States there for trial.

So the Indianapolis newspaper men will not go to Washington. The Judge in some remarks upon the merits of the case declared that he felt "a natural curiosity to know what the real truth was" in the Panama transaction. The real truth is now concealed from view in the sealed recesses of an inchoate negotiation. Judge ANDERSON might derive some slight inkling of its nature from a simple and easy mathematical computation. If your asking price for a commodity is $109,000,000, although you are willing to sell, and intend to sell, for $40,000,000, there exists, obviously, a most inviting opportunity for the organization of an underwriting syndicate to help along the bargain. Between $40,000,000 and $109,000,000 there is room for a pleasant and attractive profit. But if the prospective purchaser throws up his hands and says he does not want the property at all, and then in haste and alarm you come down to $40,000,000 and the trade is closed at that figure, obviously the profits disappear and the syndicate dissolves into its constituent units. Nobody is the wiser, and few, if any, are the richer. The Judge says, also, that "the revolution in Panama, the circumstances concerning it, were unusual and peculiar." They were, indeed, but that is another matter.

GOMPERS'S SUFFRAGETTE METHODS.

Mr. GOMPERS is fighting his way into jail with an energy and methods worthy of the most advanced of the British suffragette sisterhood. If Mr. GOMPERS succeeds in his contention anybody can print anything without fear of the result. His contention, nominally for the liberty of the press, is really for license to injure your neighbor to your own satisfaction and without penalty. In his own words:

> Either we have free speech and a free press in this country, or we have not. The imposition of a fine of one cent or the imposition of imprisonment for one hour for the utterance of conscientious belief and the faith that is within us is a denial of free speech and of a free press.

We never have had free speech and a free press of this sort, and we ought not to have. The freedom of print and speech has always been accompanied with responsibility for what was said and printed. But Mr. GOMPERS printed what he intended to injure others, and persisted after he was cautioned that he was in the wrong. And he declares that he ought not to pay a cent, or be imprisoned an hour. It is a pity that we cannot have a vote about it, so that Mr. GOMPERS might learn that Americans like fair play, and think that the use of the printing press for the intrinsic injury of those you dislike is not an utterance of faith or conscience.

WHAT PERSONS ARE "WHITE?"

Since the first of July Asiatics, whatever their ethnological strain, have not been considered "free white persons" by the authorities on naturalization at Washington. Members of Caucasian or Aryan stocks such as the Syrian, the Persian, the Armenian, the Afghan, and the Hindu, may prove that their blood is the same as that in the veins of the German or the Englishman or the Yankee, but because their home was in Asia they are debarred from American citizenship.

Section 2,169 of the Revised Federal Statutes declares that the provision admitting aliens to citizenship "shall apply to aliens being free white persons, and to aliens of African nativity and to persons of African descent." Mr. RICHARD K. CAMPBELL, Chief of the Naturalization Bureau, says he does not pretend to be an ethnologist. But neither were the fathers who passed this statute ethnologists. What they meant by "white persons" was, Mr. CAMPBELL says, persons of European birth and descent. If that was the intent of Congress the courts may rule that the law be enforced according to its present official interpretation. Many Asiatics of wealth and consequence are contesting this interpretation, which they intend to bring, if need be, before the United States Supreme Court for a final ruling. The strength of their plea must lie in the principle that the words of a law should be taken to express the intent of its framers.

PROF. FERRER'S EXECUTION.

Prof. FRANCISCO FERRER, who was shot to death yesterday by order of the Spanish throne, was a wealthy man, and scholarly. He was also a "philosophical" Anarchist. Illustrious Frenchmen sympathized with his practical aim to establish a republic in Spain, a republic he would force upon its people without their consent. FERRER was imprisoned, tried, and acquitted three years ago of aiding in an attempted assassination of the King. He was arrested last year as a leader of the Barcelona revolt, during which the bombs were hurled at the newly-wedded King and Queen of Spain. The radical Socialists of Italy, France, Germany, and England have been stirred mightily by his taking off. With the appeals for his reprieve came the threat that his death would be followed by the death of the Spanish King.

FERRER'S trial was secret. Had his treason been proved in open court, Spain would be justified in his death. But the manner of his condemnation furnishes the pretext for powerful leaders in Rome and in Paris to hold him up as a martyr.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Problem from the North.

Cometh to us, now, The Ketchikan Miner, a small but sprightly newspaper, revealing to us for the first time, not only its own existence, but that of the town Ketchikan, which is, it seems, in Alaska, where the gold also comes from. And not only is The Miner well supplied with the latest news of the day; it even has notable things to say about the news. For example:

> If Dr. COOK didn't reach that pole he is the most magnificent bluffer the world has even seen, and the great American principle of bluff is about as highly respected in this country as scientific achievement.

Whether, in making this statement, The Ketchikan Miner is speaking for Alaska or for the whole United States, of which, after all, Alaska is but a part, its use of the words "this country" leaves in some uncertainty. For present purposes, however, we prefer to take the assertion as to bluff and the popular admiration therefor in the broader sense, as the declaration, or confession, of a National peculiarity. And we wonder if it is true. That is, does the American public respect success when it has been attained through false pretenses?

This leads to an inquiry as to what "bluffing" really is. We understand that, in the game whence the term derives its meaning, the players start with a mutual agreement that each of them shall "bluff" the others if he can, and that he who draws inaccurate conclusions from the data submitted for his judgment has only his own lack of perspicacity to blame for the consequences of his mistakes. Bluffing, properly so called, is therefore strictly in accord with the rules of the game, and cannot be considered in any way reprehensible. But when extended to cover other activities the significance of the word seems to have been changed and extended, for some rather mysterious reason, so as to include, or be, out-and-out lying and swindling.

Neither of those things, in our opinion, is as highly respected as is scientific achievement, or, indeed, respected at all, in "this country." We would not like to believe and for the present will not, that either is esteemed in Alaska. Of course we all have what may be defined as an abstract or aesthetic admiration for skill and efficiency, no matter what may be the field of its display. Murder itself, as murder, can be done well or ill, and burglary may illustrate clumsiness and stupidity or adroitness and intelligence. But murder and burglary cannot be made respectable, and we feel sure that, if Dr. COOK did not reach the pole, he will be pardoned in "this country" no more easily than in any other for pretending to have done so.

Cuba in Need of Help.

Disastrous as have been the effects of the recent hurricane at Key West and along the Florida Coast, the material injury to the country as a whole will be inappreciable. Cuba is not so fortunate, or, rather, is much more unfortunate, and for her the storm may have very serious consequences.

It came at a time most unlucky for the island, for only a few weeks ago the great Vuelta Abajo district was devastated by a similar frenzy of the elements, and the planters there, upon whose crop the prosperity of Cuba so largely depends, were almost in despair over the destruction which the first storm had wrought. The Cuban Congress had been convened in special session to devise relief measures, but had found itself able to appropriate only the inadequate sum of $100,000 to be loaned to the inhabitants of the valley as assistance in starting a new crop, and now their necessities have been vastly increased.

The trade paper, Tobacco, which tells these facts, suggests that the people of the United States might well make another display of their generosity by giving to the Cubans the prompt aid of which they are in somewhat desperate need, its idea being, doubtless, that the number and importance of the benefits we have bestowed upon the island in the past have created an obligation upon us to continue them—an idea which, though somewhat paradoxical, is not on that account unsound.

That the loss of life in this storm has been comparatively small is due, of course, to the fact that the Weather Bureau gave timely and adequate warning of its approach. It was a piece of work highly creditable to the bureau, and by this one service it probably more than made up for all it ever cost. That should be remembered by the people who are so fond of saying that the weather predictions are never right. That they are sometimes wrong cannot be denied, but the average of accuracy is far above the impressions of careless critics, and it is in regard to just such great storms as this one that failures are least common.

Another lesson of the hurricane is that the East Coast Railway is going to stand, in spite of all the fears that have been expressed as to its ability to resist the sea when in its most furious moods. The bridges between the keys are not likely ever to be called upon to stand a severer test than this one has been.

They Will Never Go Back.

We find it hard to believe that Prof. MILUKOFF is right in saying that the Russians who have emigrated to the United States will return home as soon as their native country ceases to persecute its children and gets a government under which a free life is possible.

Were this change to come at once, no doubt many of the Russian immigrants would go back, but in spite of what Prof. MILUKOFF says about the "hearts" of these expatriates, it is the teaching of experience that they, like every other race, remain in this country when once they get well settled and prosperous. They still talk and sing about "the fatherland," but at most they pay it only brief visits, and their children do hardly that.

Of course, this is true only of assimilable races, but they include practically all of the many varieties of Russians. The people who will free Russia are those who remain there and fight with her enemies. The emigrants she can count as lost forever.

CELEBRATION AT WEST POINT.

Thinks Honors Extended to Hudson-Fulton Guests Deserve Notice.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In the general rush attending the Hudson-Fulton Celebration it seems to me that the reception given by the authorities at West Point to the Celebration Commission on Sept. 29 and 30 did not receive adequate attention.

The official guests, accompanied by the Commission, were met on their arrival by the Superintendent, Col. Scott, and other officials, and by the Military Academy detachment of cavalry, mounted, in full dress. They were escorted to Cullum Memorial Hall and to all public buildings, which were decorated with flags of all nations represented among the official guests. The guests were requested to wear special badges, which were furnished, in order that the officers of the post could recognize them and extend the usual courtesies. A salute of nineteen guns was fired.

At Memorial Hall all officers and instructors were present in military full dress, and a very pleasant reception was held, where all the guests met all officers, and during the hour of the reception and luncheon were enabled to exchange views. The visitors were given opportunity to ask questions as to the methods and system at the Military Academy, and were afterward escorted by all the officers of the academy through the various buildings, the officers' mess, library, ordnance museum, chapel, headquarters offices, academic building, cadet mess and kitchens, and the cadet barracks. This occupied another hour, after which the visitors were conducted to the grandstand on the large plain, where the corps of cadets paraded for review in honor of the official guests. Admiral Seymour, Admiral von Koester of Germany, his Excellency Youssouf Zia Pasha of Turkey, Rear Admiral Lindor Perez Gacitua of Chile, J. T. Cremer of the Netherlands, and M. J. Gaston Darboux of France accompanied Col. Scott.

All the visitors were enthusiastic in their admiration of the Corps of Cadets, their appearance, uniform, and precision. The arrangements were carried out without a hitch of any kind.

The party left on a special train for New York City with expressions of appreciation to the authorities of the Military Academy for their courtesy and kindness and for their interesting and instructive visit. A VISITOR.

TRAILS OF THE YOSEMITE.

Would Regret to See Them Turned Into Broad Roads for Carriages.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I noticed in your paper of recent date, under Topics of the Times, some comments on the Yosemite, its beauty and the need of improvements in its roads, and the hope that President Taft might see that these improvements were made.

The suggestion was that it would be much better if all the trails were made into roads and that possibly a trolley up the valley would also be an improvement.

I spent some very pleasant days there this Summer and can echo the writer's wish for better roads and less dust. That is, better roads into the valley; but I should enter a vehement protest against the trails being made into "broad roads" and there being a trolley up the valley. To me the greatest charms of the valley are its primitiveness and wildness. The trails, as they now are, enhance the beauty and the charm of the valley from my viewpoint, and I think from the viewpoint of many others who have visited it. Some one on the train remarked that the Yosemite was not a place for great-aunts, great-uncles, and grandmothers. It is possible there may be some truth in this, for unless one either walks or rides horseback or muleback he will miss some of the beauties.

Still, even to the infirm or decrepit, there are many beauties that are reachable, and I think to the genuine mountain lover the valley with its trails is far preferable to the same valley with all those winding, deviating, sometimes elusive, trails made into carriage roads. I for one hope that the time is far distant when such a change will take place. My most pleasing memories are of those trails, and of the feeling of exultation and satisfaction that comes to one after having attained to some point particularly difficult to reach. I am sure the beautiful views were much more indelibly stamped on my memory than as though I had ridden up in a luxuriant carriage, said, Oh, how beautiful! and driven away again. Long live the trails! C. K. W.

New York, Oct. 12, 1909.

A Denial for R. Fulton Cutting.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your issue of this morning I observe an account of some of the statements at the exhibition of the "Acorns," among others one repeating the long-ago-disproved statement that Mr. R. Fulton Cutting had something to do with the sale of a ferry to the City of New York. This statement has been so often denied that it seems impossible that any intelligent man—certainly that any honorable man—should repeat it. However, as it is repeated, I once more assert that Mr. R. Fulton Cutting had no interest whatever in the ferry in question—or in any other ferry; that he knew nothing whatever of its sale to the city, and that it was a matter of absolute indifference to him whether it was sold or not, or at what price it was disposed of.

Your reputation for fairness will, I am confident, insure me a prominent place for this statement. W. BAYARD CUTTING.

The Old Maid.

Though matrons give me of their scorn
Or pity, as they may,
And Rose-buds mourn my lot forlorn,
I go upon my way
With something of that inner glee
Which one, perforce, relieves
By pausing, wheresoe'er one be,
And laughing up one's sleeves.

PEARY AND COOK.

Faith in Dr. Cook Disturbed by the Story of the Two Eskimos.

From The New York Globe.

It is no manufactured recital that is laid before the world, but a veracious account of the examination that took place at Etah last Summer when the Peary party, knowing Dr. Cook, began to suspect him of a purpose to "fake" the world. As much faith and credit attaches to the record then made and now published as attaches to a record of a court. In considering the statement the starting point must be that it is no fiction—that its averments are truthful and accurate.

It appears that the two Eskimos boys, before credible witnesses, denied that Dr. Cook had gone to the pole or anywhere near it. It is preposterous to think of any sufficient motive for the telling of so complicated and detailed a joint lie even though possible. Every consideration of personal and tribal pride would lead them to assert that they had been to the pole if they had been there. From Dr. Cook's request for them to keep silent they must have suspected something. If they lied to Commander Peary and Prof. McMillan they were lying against their self-interest.

The backbone of the Cook narrative is thus smashed. Even should the two boys be brought down and induced to reverse themselves there is greater likelihood of their having told the truth last Summer. Finally it is preposterous to think these lads reached and returned from the pole and refrained from telling their father and members of their tribe about it. Yet the father had no knowledge of pole reaching, and when the Roosevelt first encountered the Eskimos on their return it received an accurate hearsay account of where Cook had actually been.

Most disagreeable inferences are natural, in view of Dr. Cook's haste to make money out of his alleged exploit and his refusal to submit his so-called proofs. It may be suspected that there are no proofs. Finally, the alleged climbing of Mount McKinley, the more it is inquired into, is more and more doubted. It is certainly a remarkable circumstance that the men of science and repute who journeyed to Alaska, and who are familiar with all the facts, unanimously say that Cook never reached the summit of the mountain. If Cook pulled off one hoax with fair measure of success one can readily understand how he convinced himself that it was possible to do it again on a larger scale. It looks as if we are approaching the exposure of the biggest piece of humbuggery the century has known—an exposure so complete that even the credulous will be convinced.

From The Sun.

Some curious speculations are prompted by reflecting on what would have happened to Dr. Cook had Peary's statement been published here the day before the following cablegram appeared in The New York Herald:

"Reached north pole April 21, 1908. Discovered land far north. Have left sealed exclusive cable of 2,000 words for you with Danish Consul at Lerwick. I go by steamer Hans Egede to Copenhagen."

The irrefutable evidence of the validity of his story furnished by the manner of his reception in Copenhagen would have been lacking. Indeed, his welcome by the warm hearted Danes remains to-day his strongest credential. He could hardly, with propriety and effect, have suggested, as he did, the sending of an expedition to fetch I-Took-a-Shoo and Ah-pe-lah to testify in his support. The inevitable and fatal objection would have been instantly advanced: "How is it possible that you have come here without them?"

Would he have sent the dispatch just quoted had he not been certain that Peary was far behind him? Was his exit not breathless as he raced southward to snatch his indispensable priority? Priority, the sole hope of advantage? Priority, the key to opportunity beyond imagination?

He achieved his priority, and he demonstrated its value and his own marvelous competency to turn it to fullest account. Everything that he touched turned to gold. Even the indelicate language of the baffled, denuded, and outraged Peary helped to fill the measure of his apotheosis!

Would Peary's rough and brutal phrase have had the same tone if it had been preceded by the narrative of I-Took-a-Shoo and Ah-pe-lah?

From The New York Evening Post.

There ought to be some way of bringing the question to a head at an earlier date than the long perspective of Dr. Cook's programme of preparation and submission of his data indicates. And we believe that such a way exists. Why could not a committee of impartial and competent persons take hold of the facts as thus far developed, and formulate a common-sense method of getting such additional light on them as it is evidently proper to demand at this juncture? Dr. Cook's story has been spread out at considerable length before the public. It could not fail to suggest to a group of competent inquirers a greater or less number of points upon which additional light is plainly called for. Dr. Cook has answered, with great good nature, the comparatively random questions of newspaper men; there is no reason why he should refuse to meet such a committee as we have indicated, and make replies to the questions which they might carefully prepare in advance of the interview. They would be questions which it would be easy for him to answer if his story is true, but which he might have great difficulty in answering if he has not been where he says he has been, has not done what he says he has done. No question should be put that involved any personal indignity whatever; the questions should simply ask for additional information, and information easily supplied if the story is authentic.

From The New York Evening Mail.

Commander Peary's Eskimo testimony about Dr. Cook's arctic journeying bears down pretty hard on Cook's claims. The evidence follows the route of Cook with great circumstantiality, and it does not follow it to the pole.

At the same time, these witnesses are far away, and the paths of the arctic are terribly obscure. The most that can be said is that there can be no actual certainty as to what Cook did until the verdict of science and of time has been passed upon all the evidence. The controversy certainly cannot be closed until Cook has been more fully heard than is now the case.

ARTILLERY HORSES.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The First and Second Batteries of Manhattan and Bronx respectively are unequaled by any volunteer organizations of the kind in the United States, and are commanded by officers whose years of experience and knowledge of this branch of the service place them on an equal footing with the regulars. At the outbreak of the Spanish war the present Bronx Battery to a man volunteered for service and was actually ordered out, with not a horse in sight fit for the campaign.

And this splendid artillery, with magnificent half-million-dollar armories furnished by the City Government, with modern rapid-fire guns, uniforms, harness, &c., supplied by the United States Government, is compelled by the State Government, when ordered out on short notice for war, riots, camp instruction, parades, &c., to depend on "green" hired or leased horses, unmatched and untrained, horses of various sizes and weights, such as can be secured quickly in the local markets. They are expected to ride forth and hold their own with the matched and trained horses of the regulars—horses owned and trained for years by the United States Government, horses that know every bugle call, that anticipate every order even when under fire, so thoroughly trained that the slight loosening of a rein or the pressure of the knee is an obeyed command.

CONTESTS WOMAN'S LEGACY TO FIANCE

Mrs. Vogel's Father Contends She Was in No Condition to Make a Will.

WAS ILL OF APPENDICITIS

And Was About to Undergo the Operation of Which She Died—Wore Her Engagement Ring During Operation.

A proceeding to revoke the will of Minnie H. Vogel, widow of Max Vogel, a contractor and builder of this city, by which she cut off her family with about $20,000 and left the remainder of her estate, amounting to about $50,000, to Nathan D. Stern, to whom she was engaged to be married, was begun before Surrogate Thomas yesterday. The action, brought by David H. Heine of 101 West 140th Street, Mrs. Vogel's father, alleges that this testament, made July 9, 1906, and the codicil, dated Aug. 10, 1908, were not his daughter's last will and codicil, and, further, that the will and codicil were obtained by fraud and undue influence on the part of Stern. He further alleges that his daughter was of unsound mind when the will and codicil were made and incompetent to make a will. By the codicil Mrs. Vogel made Stern the chief legatee, the original will leaving all to her family with the exception of a few charitable bequests.

The title to the Hudsonia apartments at Seventy-ninth Street and Riverside Drive said to be worth $300,000 is involved in the proceeding. At the time of Mrs. Vogel's death, Aug. 11, 1908, her estate was estimated to be worth about $70,000. When Mrs. Vogel's will was admitted to probate on Aug. 31, 1908, her father signed a waiver of citation, but he afterward said that he did not know then that he was waiving the right to contest the will. He appealed to the Supreme Court to set aside the probate, but was unsuccessful, and he has since filed affidavits from members of the family tending to throw mystery about his daughter's death. Mr. Stern and his friends deny these allegations. Mrs. Vogel died as the result of an operation for appendicitis.

The subscribing witnesses to the codicil, which was made by Mrs. Vogel the day before her death were first examined yesterday. They said that Mr. Stern, her attorney, brought the will to her and she signed it. They also told of an affectionate scene between the two just before she was taken to an adjoining room for the operation, and how she requested that she might wear her engagement ring during the operation.

Harold E. Stanford of 315 West Seventy-ninth Street testified that Mrs. Vogel signed the codicil previous to the operation and insisted upon doing so, though Stern did not wish it. He said that Stern brought her the papers, saying: "Here are the papers you wanted me to draw up," and then went out. He testified that Mrs. Vogel was propped up and read the will codicil. She said nothing after reading it, except to ask for a pen. He said he asked her: "Do you know what you are signing?" and she answered: "I certainly do." He said that he held the papers for Mrs. Vogel while she read them, and that she took his fountain pen and signed the codicil, after perusing them for about five minutes.

Several witnesses testified to a knowledge of the engagement existing between Mrs. Vogel and Stern, and that she was of sound mind when the codicil was signed.

Mrs. Harriet E. Stanford testified that Mrs. Vogel and her parents were not on the best of terms.

The proceeding will be continued to-day.

SMOKE OFFENDERS.

Cheap Soft Coal Leads to Continued Violations of the Law.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The marked increase in the consumption of soft coal and the consequent far more extensive emission of black smoke and soot from the chimneys of power houses and manufacturing plants, from the funnels of steamboats and the stacks of locomotives in and about the City of New York is apparent to every resident of the metropolis and attracts the attention of every visitor (unless he comes from Pittsburg) who has eyes to see.

The gist of the matter is, of course, the comparative cheapness of soft coal. In the hearing of my complaint against the smoke nuisance maintained by the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company in its Harlem River freight yard, held before the Public Service Commission in April and May, 1908, it was brought out in the evidence that the railroad company could obtain soft coal for $1 per ton less than it had to pay for anthracite.

This explains it all. The Sanitary Code forbids the emission of smoke, vapor, gas, &c., in and about the city. The violators of the ordinance go on, nonchalantly, getting the cheaper bituminous coal, and the good, easy-going, and law-abiding citizens of Gotham and its annexes go on complacently inhaling the smoke. What difference does it make that the Health Department informs these same citizens, gravely, in prints and pamphlets, that the smoke they are breathing is injurious to their lungs and an efficient auxiliary in the propagation of tuberculosis? What matters it that lovers of natural beauty and of the older, less smoke begrimed New York bewail the increasing pall hanging along the borders of the city and disfiguring her attractive outlines?

Were the smoke offenders properly and thoroughly punished for their persistent violation of the sanitary law and for their utter disregard of the right of human beings to breathe pure and uncontaminated air the fines imposed on them might greatly benefit our City Treasury.

Why they are not punished and why the competent authorities do not take action against these public enemies is to me one of the riddles of the universe. HENRY G. KOTT.

Dr. Cook's Profitable Lectures.

From The Philadelphia North American.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Oct. 12.—John A. Cavanaugh and Henry E. Warner of St. Paul decided that Dr. Cook, the explorer, ought to lecture in St. Paul and Minneapolis, and telegraphed him at Toledo, Ohio, for exclusive early dates for both cities. They got this reply right away:

"Can give you Oct. 23, Minneapolis; 24, St. Paul. Will sell both for $6,000 if accepted to-day. Answer Hollenden, Cleveland. W. M. Gray, manager."

To which the St. Paul man replied, collect: "Dear Gray: We don't want to buy Dr. Cook; we only want to rent the use of him for a night or two."

HYDE AND JEKYLL.

I watch this most erratic clay
That wails its hunger every day;
I hear this word-bound, puling voice
In vain, insipid things rejoice—
And marvel that some Thing exempt
From clay in me should feel contempt.

I see this temporary cell
Courting each day its own-made Hell;
I feel this poor, time-serving flesh,
Full satiated, crave afresh—
And ask, What is this Thing exempt
From clay in me that feels contempt?

LIEBLERS IN OPERA WITH BESSIE ABOTT

Will Star Soprano in a Grand Opera for Seven Performances a Week in 1910-11.

MASCAGNI MAY WRITE WORK

Former Metropolitan Star to Sing This Winter in Milan, Berlin, and at Paris Opera Comique.

Miss Bessie Abott, formerly one of the leading sopranos of the Metropolitan Opera House, and who is now singing in Europe, has been engaged by Liebler & Co. for the season of 1910-11 to tour America with her own opera company in an opera which will be especially written for her, possibly by Mascagni. It will be the first time that a singer has been starred at the head of a grand opera company to appear in one opera for seven performances a week in the regular theatres, and it will also mark the advent of the Lieblers in the operatic field.

"Miss Abott was engaged by me this Summer," said George Tyler for the Lieblers yesterday, "and an attempt is being made at present to secure a suitable opera for her. It is possible that Mascagni will write the opera, but it is not certain. I am in negotiation with several prominent composers. In the first place, there is the subject to consider. There are several stories which I think would make good operas and which are now being considered, but nothing is yet settled upon.

"The Italian language is better suited for an opera libretto than English, and if the libretto is in Italian it will probably stand in that language. However, if the opera is the work of a German composer, we shall probably have it translated into English.

"The attempt will be made to secure an opera of the 'La Bohème' type, and it will be produced for the first time on any stage by Miss Abott. If it is not written by Mascagni it will be by some equally prominent composer, and it will be a work of the class which is ordinarily heard at the Manhattan or the Metropolitan Opera House. The composer, of course, will write the leading rôle to suit Miss Abott's voice, and as she will be required by contract to sing seven performances a week it will be necessary to arrange it so that too much of the work will not fall upon her. The orchestra will include at least sixty men.

"I hope to be able to get an opera ready for production by a year from now, and it will be produced at some Broadway theatre. The prices will be slightly higher than those of ordinary dramatic attractions, probably $3 for the best seats.

"This Winter Miss Abott is to sing in Milan, Lisbon, Monte Carlo, Berlin, and a special four weeks' engagement at the Paris Opéra Comique.

"It is intended that the opera have a serious subject and there will be no spoken dialogue. Miss Abott is most enthusiastic about the plan. The organization will be known as the Bessie Abott Opera Company."

Miss Abott sang at the Metropolitan for several seasons, where she was heard in "La Bohème," "Marta," "Romeo et Juliette," "Mignon," and other operas. She had trouble with Heinrich Conried and left for Paris, where she owns a house on the Rue de Pomereu. Last season she sang at Lisbon and Monte Carlo.

Ralph Edmunds has been engaged by the Lieblers to perfect arrangements in regard to the new opera, negotiations having been entered upon with several composers. He sailed for Europe last week.

HANNA WEDDING KEPT SECRET

Mark Hanna's Grandson Wed Miss Leavitt in Canada Last July.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Gertrude Leavitt, daughter of the late Edward Leavitt, to Carl Hanna, son of Daniel Hanna of Cleveland and a grandson of the late Mark Hanna. The wedding took place on July 30 last at Bridgeburgh, Ontario.

The announcement comes as a surprise to all the friends and relatives of the young couple with the exception of the bride's stepmother, Mrs. Edward Leavitt. The engagement of Miss Leavitt and Mr. Hanna was announced last Spring. Miss Leavitt, who was in mourning for her father, who died in the Autumn of 1908, paid a visit in July to Mr. Hanna's family in Cleveland, and her fiancé escorted her on her return trip East.

At Buffalo, however, they stopped, and, crossing to Canada, were married. On their arrival in the East the bride informed her stepmother of their marriage, but no one else. It is only in the last few days that Mrs. Hanna's grandmother, Mrs. Henry S. Leavitt, and other relatives in both families were informed of the wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Hanna are going at once to Duluth, Wis., where Mr. Hanna will go into business. The only reason for the secret marriage was that their relatives wished the marriage delayed until Mr. Hanna went into business.

Nelson Perin Weds Miss Anderson.

Nelson Perin of Baltimore and New York was married yesterday in Trinity Church to Miss Rebecca Anderson, daughter of Mrs. Davis C. Anderson of New York. The Rev. Raymond Lee Wolven officiated at the ceremony, which was followed by a small reception at the Woodward, in Fifty-fifth Street.

Nelson Perin is the brother of Lawrence Perin, whose marriage three Summers ago was one of the surprises of the social season. Another brother, Bradford Perin, has spent most of his time abroad for the last few years, and is now in New York. About five years ago Mr. Perin's father, who had large interests in the street railway service in Baltimore, died, leaving each of his children with independent fortunes. There are four brothers, all of whom went to Yale.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Henri Bernstein's "Israel" will be produced at the Criterion Theatre on Oct. 25. Constance Collier, Graham Browne, Edwin Arden, and Dallas Anderson will have the principal roles.

Herbert Corthell has been engaged for the rôle of Bubbles in Wagenhals & Kemper's production of "Seven Days."

Rehearsals of "The Earth," in which Edmund Breese will star, will begin at the Hudson Theatre this morning. James Bernard Fagan, author of the play, will arrive on the Majestic to-day.

Clarice Vance, who has just returned from an engagement at the Palace Theatre, London, will be seen over the William Morris vaudeville circuit, opening in Brooklyn next week.

Kitty Gordon has been engaged by Joseph Weber for the rôle of Alma in "Alma, Where Do You Live?"

The New Theatre announced yesterday that it had acquired the American rights of "Don," a new comedy, by Rudolf Besier, which was first produced at the Haymarket Theatre, London, last Tuesday.

The Winter season at Terrace Garden was opened last night with a vaudeville performance and a ball.

At the Irving Place Theatre to-night will be given the first performance of Ernst von Wolzogen's comedy, "Lumpengesindel." ("A Ragged Crowd.")

About 300 nurses attended the performance of "The Rose of Algeria" at the Herald Square Theatre last night. There were representations from Roosevelt, Presbyterian, St. Vincent's, New York, Mount Sinai, Hahnemann, and Metropolitan Hospitals, each group chaperoned by one of its number. That Ethel Green plays a trained nurse in the musical comedy, was the excuse for the party.

HONOR ADMIRAL VON KOESTER.

Gen. Stewart L. Woodford and Mrs. Woodford gave a large dinner last night in the ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria for Admiral von Koester. The Astor gallery and the myrtle rooms were also used, the guests dining at many long tables, which were decorated with palms, pink cosmos, and chrysanthemums, and Autumn foliage.

Among the invited guests were Major Gen. and Mrs. Leonard Wood, Capt. and Mrs. J. B. Murdock, Col. and Mrs. Hugh L. Scott, Consul General and Mrs. Courtenay Bennett, Consul General and Mrs. Mizuno, Consul General Rudolph Franksen, Gen. and Mrs. Anson McCook, Mr. and Mrs. William R. Willcox, Gen. and Mrs. Howard Carroll, Mr. and Mrs. Elbert H. Gary, Henry W. Taft, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Burleigh, Capt. Count Leonardi di Casalino, George C. Boldt, Mr. and Mrs. Walter P. Warren, Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Sackett, Mrs. Bissell, Dr. and Mrs. Kunz, Francis Lynde Stetson, Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Stickney, Mr. and Mrs. John R. MacArthur, Mr. and Mrs. Tunis G. Bergen, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas R. Proctor, Mrs. Daniel Butterfield, Mrs. George Shrady, Capt. Mauve of Victoria Luise, Capt. Engelhardt of Bertha, Capt. Hopman of Bremen, Capt. Lieut. von Muller, Capt. MILITANT SUFFRAGE NOT FOR MRS. MACKAY

Isn't Necessary, She Says, to Go Out and Shriek the Propaganda in the Streets.

TO LEAVE POLITICS ALONE

Doesn't Believe in Demanding Opinions from Mayoralty Candidates—Who Best Suffragists Are.

Mrs. Clarence H. Mackay, President and founder of the Equal Franchise Society, to make plain the society's opposition to militant methods, has made a statement of its aims, showing the methods of work it intends following, differing from those of other societies. Referring to efforts made to obtain a statement of opinion on woman suffrage from political candidates, Mrs. Mackay says:

"We do not think we have a right to demand an expression of opinion from the candidates in this coming election. We prefer to leave politics alone until our sex is sharing the responsibility with the other sex."

"The purpose of the Equal Franchise Society," Mrs. Mackay continues, "is to promote the welfare of women by securing the National, State, and local Electoral franchise for women, because the Equal Franchise Society believes in the political and civil equality of men and women. The electorate should represent the whole Nation, and a system of government under which one-half of the Nation are disfranchised is not a truly representative National system.

"We are inviting people to become members of our society in order to contribute to the advancement of public education by the promotion of our cause. We feel that in order to secure the enfranchisement of women it is not necessary for us to imitate methods which are being used in other countries. American manhood has always treated American womanhood in such a way as to make us feel that we shall ultimately achieve our aim without sensationalism. I will not indorse the militant methods.

"It has been repeatedly said to me by men in public life and men in private life that when the women of the United States unite in demanding the vote they will get it. And I think that is perfectly true, and that, therefore, what is needed to further the suffrage cause is to give all sorts and kinds of women the opportunity of listening to speakers who will explain just what the suffrage will mean to us all.

"Most of the men I have met are apparently willing to co-operate with us, and have listened to what we have said with courtesy and consideration. It has not seemed necessary in the past, and I do not think it will be necessary in the future, for us to go out to the street corners and shriek our propaganda at the passer-by.

"We have but to plead our cause without raising our voice to those men and women who are not with us. We can always assume that they are not willfully ignorant of what woman suffrage should mean. We want them to appreciate the fact that throughout this country the strongest suffragists are those women who devote their best energies toward the developing of their children in order to make them citizens worthy of our great country.

"We do not think that as an organization we have a right to demand an expression of opinion from the candidates in this coming election. We prefer to leave politics alone until our sex is sharing the responsibility with the other sex. I feel that the main reason for suffrage is community of interest between the sexes. It is not in any sense a fight for rights, but the logical evolution of justice.

"The Equal Franchise Society wishes to establish a platform upon which such speakers as Bishop McVicar of Rhode Island, Everett Colby, and, perhaps, Martin W. Littleton will express their belief in suffrage, and for that reason we have leased the Garden Theatre and arranged our course.

"We wish to enlist that part of the community, regardless of sex or creed, who will co-operate with us because of their loyalty to their country.

"Among the most recent additions to our membership are such women as Mrs. William Schieffelin, Mrs. Milton Barger, Mrs. Rudolph Schirmer, Mrs. Archibald Alexander, Mrs. Everett Colby, Mrs. Richard Stevens, Mrs. Walter Maynard, Miss Spence, Mrs. Paul Morton, Miss Elizabeth Burchenal, Miss Dorothy Whitney, and many others, as can be seen on our list."

ANDERSON OUT OF SHUBERTS.

Sells His Stock in Hippodrome to George B. Cox of Cincinnati.

Rumor, frequently denied, that Max C. Anderson and the Shuberts were about to break their business relationship became fact yesterday afternoon, when Mr. Anderson sold his stock in the Shubert-Anderson Company and the Shubert Theatrical Company to George B. Cox of Cincinnati. The deal had been pending for several days, and yesterday afternoon Mr. Anderson made the transfer of his interests to Mr. Cox. Mr. Anderson's resignation as Vice President of the Shubert-Anderson Company, and of the Shubert Theatrical Company, was tendered at the same time. His reason for this step, he said, was to devote himself more closely to his Western interests, represented by the Anderson-Ziegler Company.

The Shuberts said there was nothing to be said about Mr. Anderson's sale of stock. The stock was Mr. Anderson's property, and he had a perfect right to dispose of it. There will be no change in the Hippodrome management, and no successor to Mr. Anderson as Vice President of the two companies has been chosen.

GENEE IN "THE SILVER STAR."

Klaw & Erlanger Present New Musical Play by Harry B. Smith.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 13.—Klaw & Erlanger presented for the first time on any stage at the Forrest Theatre to-night their new musical production, "The Silver Star," with Adaline Genee, the dancer, in the principal part. Bickel and Watson and more than 100 singers, dancers, and comedians are employed. The book is by Harry B. Smith and the music by Robert Hood Bowers.

Mlle. Genee has some new dances, in which she is assisted by a large ballet.

Ministers See Forbes Robertson.

The special ministers' matinée of "The Passing of the Third Floor Back," at Maxine Elliott's Theatre yesterday afternoon was attended by a large number of prominent clergymen. Among them were the Rev. D. Leewenthal, the Rev. Percival McIntire, the Rev. Percival Pyle, the Rev. Henry Frank, Dr. Henry A. Stimson, Rabbi Mayer Kopfstein, the Rev. W. W. Davis, the Rev. B. L. Bridges, Dr. Henry Ward, the Rev. J. N. Perkins, the Rev. V. P. Bachhorn, the Rev. Andrew D. Wilson, the Rev. Arthur T. Brooks, the Rev. Sidney Herbert Cox, the Rev. J. C. Welwood, the Rev. Walter Laidlaw, Ph. D.; the Rev. James M. Farr, and the Rev. Charles N. Arbuckle. After the play Forbes-Robertson held a brief reception on the stage.

David Belasco Much Better.

David Belasco's physician, Dr. Hubert Constable, said last night that Mr. Belasco's condition was greatly improved. He rested comfortably all day yesterday and Tuesday night. It was only a matter of a short time until the manager would entirely recover, said the doctor.

Obituary Notes.

Capt. JOHN H. GREAR, for the last forty years a resident of Passaic, N. J., died early yesterday morning, aged 74 years. He fought through the civil war as a member of the Nineteenth Army Corps and was injured several times. He was one of the charter members of the Passaic Fire Department and was high in Masonic affairs. Before retiring Mr. Grear operated a large express business. He left a widow and five children.

JAMES THEILMAN, formerly manager of Delmonico's old Twenty-sixth Street restaurant, died last Saturday at his home, 303 West Ninety-third Street, of kidney trouble, at the age of 68. Mr. Theilman for thirty years was connected with Delmonico's two Fifth Avenue establishments, at Fourteenth Street and Twenty-sixth Street. Eighteen years ago, however, he resigned because of ill health.

MAJ. GEN. A. E. BATES, INDIAN FIGHTER, DEAD

FAMOUS AS CAVALRYMAN

Was Paymaster General of Army When He Retired from Active Service Five Years Ago.

Major Gen. Alfred Elliott Bates, retired, U. S. A., one of the best known of the older officers of the army, who was stricken with apoplexy in this city last Saturday, after having seen his wife go off to Europe, died in a sanitarium in West Sixty-first Street yesterday. Gen. and Mrs. Bates arrived in New York last Saturday morning from their home in Massachusetts, and soon after the steamer sailed Gen. Bates was taken ill. He consulted Dr. Harry Purdy of 149 Lexington Avenue, who, seeing that the veteran soldier's condition was critical, had him removed to Miss Alston's sanitarium.

Soon after his admittance to the sanitarium, Gen. Bates became unconscious, and as his address was not known, Dr. Purdy telegraphed the War Department in Washington for information as to his relatives. The War Department telegraphed back the address of Mrs. M. D. McKee and Mrs. F. R. Swift, Gen. Bates's daughters, who live at 162 East Seventy-fourth Street, who were immediately notified and who were constantly with him until the end. Mrs. Bates, who is on the Atlantic, is ignorant of her husband's illness and death.

Tuesday it was thought that Gen. Bates was improved, though his condition was still critical. Apoplexy was the cause of death. Gen. Bates was 69 years of age and had been retired from active service in the army about five years. He retired at his own request after a continuous service of more than forty years.

Gen. Bates was a native of Michigan, from which State he was appointed a cadet to West Point in 1861, graduating from the Academy in 1865, soon after the surrender at Appomattox.

As a cavalryman Gen. Bates gained a reputation as one of the best in the army, and in 1869 was ordered back to West Point as Assistant Instructor of Cavalry Tactics, remaining at the Academy until 1873, during which time he was a member of the board that revised and brought up to date the American cavalry tactics. In 1874 he was associated with Gen. Emory Upton in compiling the military tactical book known as "Cavalry Tactics of 1874."

In the year that followed, Gen. Bates was again sent to the West, where he gained a name as an Indian fighter in the Windy River country and the Big Horn Mountains. For his gallantry in an action with the northern Arapahoes in the Owl Mountains on July 4, 1874, he was officially complimented in the general orders of the Department of the Platte.

During the Spanish war Gen. Bates was the Military Attaché of the American Embassies in both London and Paris. Coming back to the United States in 1899, he was appointed Paymaster General of the Army, which position he retained until his retirement, in January, 1904. Gen. Bates was created an officer of the French Legion of Honor in 1897. He married Miss Caroline McCorkle of this city in 1875.

Marriage and death notices intended for insertion in the New York Times may be telephoned to 1000 Bryant.

YALE SCRUBS CROSS 'VARSITY GOAL LINE

Freeman Carries Ball Length of Gridiron for Touchdown, Defeating First Team.

CAPT. COY KICKS THE GOAL

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 13.—Capt. Ted Coy of the Yale eleven has received permission to play against West Point on Saturday for part of the game. An examination of the wound made by the recent operation on his side disclosed the fact that it is nearly healed, and he will probably start the game. Yale is badly off for punters, as Deming has been shelved for a week because of an ankle bruise. Philbin, who has been out of the game for a week, returned to-day for signal work, and will play part of Saturday's game. Holt is the only distance kicker not on the hospital list.

Hyde was to-day sent back to centre, but the scrubs went through him for big gains. More than fifty yards was made through the regulars' line and, to cap the climax, the scrubs reeled off a touchdown, although not in the orthodox ground-gaining fashion. The 'Varsity had struggled to the scrubs' one-yard line, and on fourth down had to take it to the goal posts or lose it. Messinger had the leather and fumbled just as he went over the line. "Buck" Freeman, end rush on the scrubs, grabbed the ball and pedaled out of the mess of tacklers into the open. Before the regulars realized what had happened he was clear; but Howe, quarter back, and Logan chased him from behind. Logan was fast closing in on him when Brooks of the second team toppled Logan over. Howe sprinted, but the lead was too great to be overcome and Freeman crossed the 'Varsity goal.

No rival team nor the scrubs have before crossed the Yale goal this Fall. To add to the 'Varsity uneasiness their attacks on the second team's line were fruitless, and the game closed with the scrubs victors by the score, 6 to 0, as Capt. Coy kicked a goal for the scrubs after Freeman's touchdown. Coy did no scrimmaging, but did practically all the punting for both elevens.

Dick Merritt, the old Andover Captain, ran the second team, and Field and Holt, the half backs, tore large holes in the 'Varsity. Six coaches helped the regulars' staff. They were Burr Chamberlin, Morrissey, Walter Camp, Ray Townsend, Ned Glass, and Ted Wylie. The scrimmaging lasted thirty-five minutes and was the fiercest since the season opened. The 'Varsity backs were Daly, Messinger, and Potter, aside from the occasions when Coy stepped into Potter's shoes to do the punting. Two of Coy's kicks rolled seventy yards each.

West Point Defense Strong.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 13.—The play of the past few days has worked wonders with the defense of the Army gridiron warriors, and there is a general confidence felt that the Cadets will be able to withstand any attack that Yale is able to offer in the battle scheduled between the teams on Saturday. Thus far this season there has been little opportunity of testing the full playing strength of the West Pointers, due to the weakness of the teams played against, but the coaches have shown by their mode of procedure that they are inclined to rate the defense as all that could be expected. In the practice of to-day all of the attention was directed toward developing offensive play, and this was taken as the straw to show the way the wind blew.

Another man was temporarily lost to the team to-day, De Vore, the right guard, being ill with chills and fever. Christian, the best of the full backs, is also in the hospital, but it is believed both will be in shape to take part in the game with the New Havenites. Chamberlin will probably start the game in the full back position, but Christian is expected to relieve him as the contest progresses.

In the practice to-day the 'Varsity was allowed to keep possession of the ball for the entire time, with kicking one of the main points of attention. In booting the leather Dean showed remarkably well, and the 'Varsity ends, Hicks and Wood, were down under the kicks in good shape. Pullen is one of the fastest men on the field, and bids fair to accomplish as much as the ends in getting down the field.

SYRACUSE IN SPECIAL DRILL.

Up-Staters Getting Primed for Battle with Indians Here Saturday.

Special to The New York Times.

SYRACUSE, Oct. 13.—Special drill in blocking, tackling, and interference marked the practice of the Syracuse University eleven this afternoon in preparation for the big game with the Carlisle Indians at the Polo Grounds in New York next Saturday afternoon.

To-night in the gymnasium, for the third time this week, Head Coach "Tad" Jones met the squad and ran the regulars through the new formations and open plays to be used against the Indians.

In scrimmage to-day the 'Varsity made big gains on the scrubs from kick formation. Clark and Hartman at the tackles on the 'Varsity showed good form and opened big holes in the second team's line. Shaw, the 180-pound full back, was on the field in football togs and practiced punting, but will hardly be in shape to face the Indians Saturday.

The officials for Saturday's game were announced to-day as follows: Referee, "Pa" Corbin, Yale; umpire, "Big Bill" Edwards, Princeton; field judge, Fred Crolius, Dartmouth; head linesman, E. F. Southworth, Harvard. Edwards is the Commissioner of the Department of Street Cleaning of New York City.

Indians Working Defense Plans.

Special to The New York Times.

CARLISLE, Penn., Oct. 13.—This afternoon's practice of the Carlisle Indians in preparation for the game with Syracuse at New York on Saturday, included a scrimmage lineup, which lasted almost an hour, and which was marked by the almost total elimination of forward passes and the open plays which have characterized Carlisle's play for the last two years. The day's work here began with a blackboard illustrated talk in the cage by Coach Warner, who took up defensive operations planned against Syracuse. After the lecture Warner hustled the aborigines through a half-hour's fast practice at elementary gridiron stunts. Capt. Libby punted particularly well this evening, and Fullback Houser kicked every one of twenty-five goals from placement that he tried. The wind, however, was low. In the scrimmages the 'Varsity men worked well together, and their interference was remarkably more effective than it has yet shown. School Physician Schoemaker said to-night that if the Indians escaped injury in their practice work for the rest of the week, there was no reason why they should not go against Syracuse at the Polo Grounds in the physical shape. Dr. Schoemaker remarked also on how admirably the light and inexperienced redskins had stood the increasingly strenuous training work of the present season.

Harvard Makes Two Touchdowns.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 13.—Harvard's 'Varsity made two touchdowns in fifty minutes of hard scrimmaging to-day. They went through the substitute line for one and made another on the freshmen, their opponents also scoring one each. The practice was slow, the regulars lacking the dash and fighting power that goes with a well-drilled eleven.

The 'Varsity lined up as on Tuesday with one exception, McKay at tackle. Frothingham, Long, and Morrison formed the back field. O'Flaherty showed decided improvement. He found his back field slow in starting, and their interference ragged, but kept them on the move continually. O'Flaherty, against the second team, secured one of Sprague's punts on his own thirty-five-yard line. The best interference of the afternoon aided him in crossing the goal line. The "subs," not to be outdone, made a fake play on the regulars' thirty-yard line, Gregory circling left end for the touchdown. The freshman battle was another stiff argument. The 'Varsity, fired by their first scrimmage, fought gamely. Several times they worked the pigskin within scoring distance, only to have the "freshies" defense tighten. O'Flaherty, despairing of victory through the line, attempted a forward pass to Pierce. Wendell, a freshman, intercepted the ball and ran almost the length of the field to the goal. The 'Varsity, with the ball on their twenty-yard line, by steady plugging, sent Long behind the bars.

Adriatic Sailors Win at Soccer.

The second round in the competition of the Strand Soccer Football Club between teams representing the steamships Arabic and Adriatic was won by the latter by the score of 3 goals to 2. The match, which was played at Van Cortlandt Park, was well contested, both teams being evenly matched. The Arabic eleven was the first to score, but their opponents forced the play in the second half and secured the verdict by a narrow margin.

To Play Soccer at Night.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Oct. 13.—For the first time on record, a football game will be played under electric lights to-morrow night. The champion Pilgrims soccer team of England will play an all-Cincinnati eleven at National League Ball Park here.

CUNNINGHAM SAVES TIGERS.

Brilliant Young Half Back's Field Goal Wins for Princeton.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 13.—Although Princeton played a somewhat better game to-day than it has so far this season, it was again left to Logan Cunningham to win the game for his team with a slender margin of 8 to 6.

The first scoring was done in the first two minutes of the first half. Dawson picked up a fumbled ball near Virginia's goal line and Cunningham was shoved over for a touchdown. Waller's try for goal failed because of the strong wind. Soon after E. R. Hodgson, who played a star game for the Southerners, picked up a fumbled ball and ran from the fifty-yard line for a touchdown. He also kicked the goal. No more scoring was done until near the end of the second half, when Cunningham kicked a field goal from the 38-yard line, winning the game. The line-up:

Princeton.	Position.	Virginia Poly.
Hamman	Centre	Gibbs
Woehr	Right guard	E. R. Hodgson

Touchdowns—E. R. Hodgson, Cunningham. Goal from touchdown—E. R. Hodgson. Goal from field—Cunningham. Time of halves—Twenty minutes each. Referee—Joseph Pendleton, Boydoin. Umpire—Carl Williams, Pennsylvania. Head linesman—Mr. Feagles, Princeton. Field judge—T. F. Crolius, Dartmouth.

Columbia Sophs, 11; Freshmen, 6.

In a warmly contested football game on South Field yesterday, the sophomores defeated the freshmen by a score of 11 to 6 in the first of the Round Robin series being played by the colleges. In spite of a Harvard mass meeting and a lecture on polar astronomy, there was a large attendance of students and friends. The sophomores were the favorites on account of the greater strength of their line-up, but the freshmen put up a good fight, and up, but the freshmen put up a good fight, and toward the end of the second half carried the ball through the sophomores' line for their only touchdown in a fine rally; but time was called before they could score again. The line-up:

Sophomores. (11.)	Position.	Freshmen. (6.)
Spathoff	Centre	Witherby
Bertrand	Right guard	Klein
Pulleyn	Right tackle	Kohlbush
Pyne, J.	Right end	Meltzer
Mullen	Quarter back	Wheeler
Barrett	Right half back	Malloy
Moore	Full back	Latenser

Touchdowns—Barrett, (2.) Latenser. Goals from touchdown—Moore, Shaw. Substitutes—Diedering for W. Pyne, Snevily for Samuels, Culman for J. Pyne. Referee—F. H. Saunders. Umpire—R. M. Keator. Time of halves—Twenty minutes.

Tiger Cubs and Preps Tie at 0 to 0.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 13.—The Princeton freshmen and the Princeton Preparatory School team played a tie game of football of 0 to 0 on the former's field this afternoon. The Tiger Cubs were several times in the shadow of their opponents' goal posts, but were unable to score. Pendleton of the freshman team played a spectacular game, circling the ends for long gains.

Cornell Fears Fordham Eleven.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 13.—After the snappy work of the Cornell squad in yesterday's scrimmage, their playing to-day was disappointing, and the coaches did not hesitate to tell the players so. The 'Varsity was unable to make any consistent advance, the line failing to smother their opponents and the backs starting rather slowly.

The scrubs scored the first touchdown, Hoffman breaking loose around left end and beating the 'Varsity ends to the goal line, a seventy-five-yard sprint. The regulars tallied a little later, when Hurley picked up a fumble and ran thirty yards for a score. Neither team could do much advancing, and punts were frequent. Once the scrubs, aided by Hoffman's thirty-yard run, reached the two-yard line, but were held there.

The 'Varsity tried forward passes, but most of them failed. Straight football was most successful, but the coaches kept the regulars working on new plays, no matter how poorly they were executed.

A number of 'Varsity men were not in the line-up, and this explained to some extent the 'Varsity's poor showing. Seagraves and McArthur did not play until very late, and Hurlburt, Wood, and O'Connor did not get into the scrimmage at all.

Pope was at the field to-day for the first time in weeks, leaning on a cane. His leg is slowly mending, but it will be some time yet before he can enter a scrimmage. Crosby and Leventry worked out, but were not allowed to scrimmage. John Newhall, '06, a former quarter back, was a new coach. Cornell plays Fordham Saturday, and in view of the New Yorkers playing against Princeton, the Ithacans are a bit worried as to the probable result.

Fordham Expects to Beat Cornell.

The Fordham 'Varsity eleven played a twenty-minute scrimmage with the scrub yesterday, the regulars scoring 10 points to 0. "Dad" White made both touchdowns for the 'Varsity and figured largely in advancing the ball. Kelleher has recovered from his recent injuries and scrimmaged yesterday at left guard. Bill Collard has materially strengthened the 'Varsity line. The veteran lost none of his speed, despite his long absence from college. "Skip" McCarthy substituted for Capt. Sargan and played well. He showed marked ability in making long forward passes to the ends. The general feeling around the camp is that the Maroons will triumph over Cornell on Saturday at Ithaca. Fordham will have every veteran in the game.

Wilson Makes Good Quarter Back.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 13.—The Naval Academy contingent was very much encouraged by the work of the squad this afternoon, and waxed enthusiastic over the showing of Wilson, who has been playing quarter back for the past two afternoons. Wilson did much better work in the forward pass than has been seen on the navy field this season, and enthused the crowd of spectators by a brilliant forty-five-yard run for a touchdown. After the regulars had scored, the scrubs were given the ball continuously, but could do little against the stalwart defense of the regular linesmen. Mering, King, Zenor, and Anderson were given a tryout at tackle, and Reincke, Zenor, and Grafton at guard. Brand played centre most of the afternoon, but Kemp was also given an opportunity and did well. Outside of Wilson the best playing in the backfield was done by Dalton, who showed much dash and power in his work. Altogether the practice was much the best the Navy squad has held this season.

DR. COOK TO START 24-HOUR AUTO RACE

VANDERBILT CUP ENTRIES

Manager Pardington Has Secured Fourteen Cars and Hopes to Reach Thirty—Famous Drivers Engaged.

Dr. Frederick A. Cook, the arctic explorer, will be the official starter of the international twenty-four-hour auto race on the Brighton Beach Motordrome, beginning to-morrow evening at 8 o'clock. This will be the first public action of Dr Cook following the presentation of the freedom of the City of New York to him at the City Hall. Dr. Cook will be escorted from his headquarters, at the Hotel Astor, to the Brighton Beach course by a special committee. The auto racers will be lined up before him on the track, and promptly at 8 o'clock he will fire the pistol that will send them away on the gruelling struggle that will run continuously for twenty-four hours. After the start Dr. Cook will be escorted to the clubhouse, where he will be the guest of the Motor Racing Association during the evening.

The race which Dr. Cook will start promises to be the most thrilling and spectacular of any ever held in this country. The motordrome course will be illuminated by search lights, while the eleven cars are the pick in speed and endurance of Europe and the United States.

The entry list closed yesterday with eleven cars named, the additional entrant having been received from the Matheson Motor Car Company of a 50 horse power Matheson car. The drivers will be Charles Basle, winner of the last twenty-four-hour race, and Nell Whalen, a race driver of experience.

The race will be started promptly at 8 o'clock to-morrow night, and will finish at the same hour on Saturday night. During the last hour all the contestants will compete for the special prize for the greatest mileage at that time. Parking space will be provided for 2,000 machines on the grounds. Race trains will run every ten minutes from the Brooklyn Bridge direct to the motordrome.

Entries for the Vanderbilt Cup are now coming in rapidly, and as a result of a recent visit of Manager A. B. Pardington and Fred J. Wagner to Philadelphia, no less than fourteen cars have already been signed up for the big race. They include four Chalmers-Detroit cars, an Italian Isotta, owned by Clifford V. Brokaw, which will be driven by Joe Seymour. In addition to these, there are two Italian Fiat cars entered, one of which will be piloted by young Hearne, the Chicago amateur, while the other was to have been driven by Ralph De Palma, whose recent accident will necessitate the substitution of another driver. There are also two Buick cars, which will be driven by Louis Chevrolet and Bob Burman, respectively, and the former, on account of his victories at Chicago and Riverhead, is one of the favorites for the coming race.

Two Nationals, in which Merz and Aiken will drive, are also entered in the race, and it is certain that two Simplex cars will also come to the line. One of these is entered by Henry B. Harris, the well-known theatrical man, which will be driven by L. A. Mitchell, an old-time expert, and the other by George Robertson, who won last year's race in a Locomobile and was the victor at Lowell and Philadelphia. This, with a Moon and possibly two French Renaults, makes a pretty fair field to start with.

While the entries for the race do not close until Oct. 25, the Supervisors of Nassau County have issued an order that almost makes it imperative that contestants desiring to use the highways for practice should declare their entry by next Monday, Oct. 18. The Motor Cups Holding Company headquarters is now at the Long Acre Building.

Thirty-five entries have already been received for the New York-Atlanta good roads tour, which starts Monday, Oct. 25. The entry list for the event closes Wednesday. Among the cars already entered are three Maxwells, a Reo, Matheson, Chalmers-Detroit, Knox, Thomas, and Renault.

Mohawks to Close Outdoor Season.

The Mohawk Athletic Club will hold its last set of monthly outdoor games at Canmon's Westchester Park Sunday at 3 P. M. The events follow: 100, 220, and 880-yard and three-mile runs, running high jump, handicaps, and a 440-yard novice run. The games will decide the winner of the point trophy for the member scoring the greatest number of points in members' games competition, for which Irving MacDowell is leading J. Gomez by one point.

BALLOT WINS IN ENGLAND.

Keene Stable Scores Twice in Day of Four American Victories.

LONDON, England, Oct. 13.—At the Newmarket October race meeting to-day four American horses, owned by Americans, were returned winners in the day of the greatest success that the American turfmen have had in England this season. The chief triumph for the American horses was that of James R. Keene's famous horse Ballot, which came to England with the reputation of being one of the best horses in America last year, and the unbeaten winner then of most of the important handicaps.

Ballot's victory to-day was in the Select Stakes, over the Rowley Mile Course, for three-year-olds and upward, and was the first race that the horse has won in England, though he started once before in midsummer, before he was really fit. Fourteen horses ran for the Select Stakes, and Ballot finished first in handsome style, with Valens second and Succor third, for the stakes of ten sovereigns each and 300 sovereigns added.

Ballot's next important engagement is in the Cambridgeshire Handicap, one mile and a furlong, to be run Oct. 27 at the Newmarket Houghton meeting, in which he is top weight with 131 pounds.

A second victory for the Keene establishment was won by the three-year-old filly Wedding Bells, for the Kennett Plate, five furlongs, over the Rous course, with another American horse, Harry Payne Whitney's Bobbin II., second, and Cinder King third, seven horses running for the race.

Harry Payne Whitney's frequent winner in England, Perseus III., won the Autumn Handicap, seven furlongs, over the Dewhurst course plate, for three-year-olds and upward, with Manonzo second and Wheatear, owned by Charles Garroll, another American, who races a stable of horses of Clarence H. Mackay's breeding, third. A second Whitney starter, Seacliff, ran unplaced for the Autumn Handicap.

August Belmont's Boudoir was the fourth American winner, Boudoir winning the Second October Nursery Stakes, a handicap for two-year-olds, at five furlongs over the Rous course, with Samos II. second and Louvigny third. Seventeen horses ran and Mr. Keene's Metaphor finished unplaced.

FIGHTERS QUIT TRAINING.

Johnson and Ketchel Will Draw Big Crowd in Saturday's Bout.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 13.—Seats for the championship match at the Mission Street Arena on Saturday between Jack Johnson and Stanley Ketchel were placed on sale to-day, and a long line of fight enthusiasts was present. From the way the sale began it is believed that the "standing room only" sign will be hung out before the gong sounds for the first preliminary.

With the exception of the work which they will do to-morrow afternoon for the moving picture men, both fighters have quit strenuous training, and from now on will take only the exercise necessary to keep them in perfect trim.

Ketchel weighs 175 pounds and his trainers say that not an ounce of it is superfluous. Johnson has reduced his weight by twelve pounds or more, and will weigh in at 197 pounds, the figure at which he fought Burns in Australia.

The betting still remains at odds of 10 to 4, with Johnson on the long end.

Boorman Beats Lovibond at Nets.

Kitchel M. Boorman, captain of the Columbia tennis team, defeated A. T. Lovibond in the feature match on the courts of the Hamilton Grange Lawn Tennis Club, 149th Street and Convent Avenue, yesterday. The summary:

Singles.—Walter L. Hall defeated H. M. Poteat, 6—1, 6—0; G. P. Parkes defeated D. W. Percer, 6—4, 6—4; K. M. Boorman defeated A. T. Lovibond, 6—1, 5—7, 6—4; J. M. Steinacher defeated A. F. Mosen, 6—4, 6—2.

Doubles.—G. P. Parkes and J. M. Steinacher defeated D. W. Percer and H. M. Morriss, 6—3, 7—5; W. M. Hall and A. T. Lovibond defeated K. M. Boorman and A. F. Mosen, 6—0, 6—2.

SPEEDWAY FALL MATINEE.

Sid Axworthy Extended to Win Class A Pacing Event.

The first of the four Fall matinees of the Road Drivers' Association of New York was held yesterday on the Speedway Drive. Although the chilly air kept the attendance down some excellent sport was witnessed. Of the six events on the programme five brought out well-matched fields, which furnished spirited contests.

The feature event was the Class A trot, in which Ismailan, owned by T. G. Hinds, was withdrawn and F. Gross's Aristo was substituted. Sid Axworthy, the old Grand Circuit performer, driven by Charles Welland, was forced to the limit to beat out Aristo, the first heat being covered in 1:05½, which was the fastest heat of the day.

The defeat of William J. Minor's Hiram Abiff in the premier pacing class was somewhat of a surprise. The event went to four heats before a decision was reached, the winner turning up in William Stelsing's Americus. J. J. Corkery's Dandy, C. O., annexed the class B pace in straight heats, while the trotting classes were decided in straight heats by Thomas Lawson's Jap and N. Grangfelder's Triphammer. The summaries:

THE HARVESTER WITHDRAWN.

Unbeaten Racer Threatened with Illness at Lexington Track.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 13.—The Harvester, hitherto unbeaten, was withdrawn after the third heat of the McDowell Stakes at the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders' Track this afternoon. The great son of Walnut Hall, prohibitive favorite, and barred in the betting had won the first two heats. After they had gone a quarter of a mile in the third heat The Harvester made a break, Lady Jones, followed by San Francisco, came on and won the heat. The Harvester finishing last, clearly out of sorts.

At the request of Mr. Geers a veterinary made an examination of the horse, and reported to the judges that further racing was likely to bring on a serious lung affection, and that The Harvester's condition was due to a sudden change in the temperature. The judges forthwith excused the horse. Lady Jones easily won the next two heats and the race, San Francisco finishing second in each of the five heats.

The feature of the card was the Blue Grass Handicap of $5,000, a dash of a mile and a half for pacers. Major Mallow, one of the outsiders in the betting, and starting with a handicap of 249 feet, won by a length.

The 2:18 pace was won easily by W. A., but not until after the judges had admonished Driver C. Floyd and fined him $250 for not trying to win the first heat.

BOSTON & MAINE GETS NEW DIRECTORS

Of Eight Just Chosen Five Are Directors Also of Boston Holding Company.

TWO ON NEW HAVEN BOARD

Four of Old Directors Dropped—Meeting Two Weeks Hence to Take Up Question of Election of President.

LAWRENCE, Mass., Oct. 13.—The Board of Directors of the Boston & Maine Railroad was increased from sixteen to nineteen at the annual meeting of the stockholders in this city to-day. Five of the Directors elected to-day are Directors also in the Boston holding company recently incorporated by the Massachusetts Legislature.

No opposition was offered to increasing the board. Of the 302,927 shares outstanding, 204,198 were voted to-day, the holding company's interest being about 125,000 shares. The change in the Directorate was made because of the holding company's wish to be represented on the board. The holding company was created by the last Massachusetts Legislature to take over a block of 110,000 shares, by which a merger of the Boston & Maine with the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad was to be brought about. It has acquired by purchase about 15,000 additional shares. The company is financed by the New Haven Road, and of the new Boston & Maine Directors two are Directors of the New Haven Corporation.

The list chosen to-day contains eight new names. Four members of the old board were dropped and one vacancy caused by death was not filled.

The new men are: Walter C. Baylies, Boston; Robert M. Burnett, Southborough, Mass.; Philip Dexter, Boston; Theodore N. Vail, Boston; Alexander Cochrane, Boston; Amory A. Lawrence, Boston; Edgar J. Rich, Winchester, Mass. and Earl A. Ryder, Arlington, Mass. Messrs. Cochrane and Lawrence are New Haven Directors. Messrs. Baylies, Burnett, Dexter, Vail, and Frederick C. Dumaine of Concord, Mass., who was elected last year, are Directors of the holding company.

The names dropped to-day were Samuel C. Lawrence of Medford, Joseph H. White of Boston, Moses Williams of Brookline, and John Billard of Meriden, Conn. Frank T. Brown of Norwich, Conn., died during the year.

A meeting of the new Board of Directors will be held in Boston two weeks hence, when the question of the election of President and other officials will be taken up. There was no intimation at the meeting to-day that President Lucius Tuttle would not be re-elected, although it had been the belief of many interested in the affairs of the road that changes in the Directorate would mean that the Presidency of the system would ultimately pass from him to President Charles S. Mellen of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad. Another rumor was that Vice President Timothy E. Byrnes of the Boston & Maine would succeed President Tuttle.

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

WHEAT—Led by a strong upturn in the Northwest on Tuesday, while New York and Chicago were closed, prices advanced to new high levels for the crop yesterday. After midday the market broke about a cent, but buying was again induced toward the close by export sales of 60 loads, partly worked on Tuesday. Taking all Western points for two days, a movement of 8,298,000 bushels was reported, compared with 2,889,000 bushels for the same time last year. English markets closed ¼d lower to ¾d higher, as compared with Monday, but Berlin advanced 3c and Budapest 4¾c. The increase of 6,823,000 bushels in world's stocks for the week was very much less than the previous week and 1,600,000 bushels less than in the corresponding week last year. The Canadian visible supply increased 488,000 bushels. Cash wheat in New York closed firm. No. 2 red, $1.20@$1.22½ elevator, domestic; No. 1 Northern, Duluth, $1.13¼, and No. 2 hard Winter, $1.19¼, both nominal, free on board, afloat.

CORN—Favorable weather, fast putting the crop into splendid condition, so that husking is expected to begin in Illinois next week, weakened prices yesterday. Liverpool closed partly ¼d higher. Receipts at all interior points amounted to 835,000 bushels for two days, compared with 513,000 bushels for the same time last year. No. 2 corn in New York was quoted at 68½c elevator, domestic, and 69c delivered; No. 2 corn 68¾c free on board, afloat, nominal; No. 2 yellow, 69½c, nominal.

New York Life Promotions.

Several promotions incidental to readjustments, necessitated by the recent death of Vice President William Ingersoll, were announced by the New York Life Insurance Company yesterday. E. R. Perkins has been elected Vice President and John C. McCall and Walker Buckner Second Vice Presidents, Mr. McCall has heretofore for some years served as Senior Secretary, and Mr. Buckner has been and will continue in charge of the company's Paris office.

STEEL MAKERS BUY FREELY.

Many Orders Being Placed for Raw Material—Foreign Steel Inquiries.

The heavy buying of raw material by the steel makers continues to be the chief topic in iron and steel comment. The Iron Age says:

The very heavy volume of orders which is being placed with the steel works is reflected in further buying of raw material by some of the leading independent works. In the middle of last week the Cambria Company bought 41,000 tons of Bessemer pig, of which 18,000 tons were for delivery during this year. This has pretty well cleaned up the available supply of this grade in the Central West.

The cast iron pipe makers continue to be persistent buyers, but find the market bare of low grades. A leading interest is seeking relief abroad, and has bought one cargo, from 4,000 to 5,000 tons of Middlesborough No. 4, for delivery on the Delaware River, at private terms.

The Pennsylvania Railroad is asking for bids for 6,000 tons of foundry iron, chiefly for delivery at Altoona, and a railroad equipment shop is out with requirements for 10,000 tons.

Steel billets are scarce. One large steel plant in Eastern Pennsylvania has bought a round lot of steel, and is negotiating for additional tonnage, the shortage being approximately 20,000 tons.

The Iron Trade Review says:

A strong probability that an import movement of large proportions would follow rapid advances of quotations in this country is having an important influence on the market, especially in semi-finished and finished products. One lot of German billets has been purchased for import from the Continent, and there is an active inquiry for foreign steel in this country.

It is also noted that steel scrap is being imported from England and the Netherlands, and that there is a shortage of ore cars in the Lake Superior district.

TRADING IN BALTIMORE.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 13.—The market here was listless and uninteresting to-day. There was less activity on the bond market, and as a result the sales dropped off nearly $100,000 from those recorded on Monday, when a great demand for Seaboard 4 per cent. certificates was created. Shares, 732; bonds, $38,000.

METAL MARKET REPORTS.

At the Metal Exchange yesterday trading was light, with prices irregular. Copper was about unchanged for spot to December deliveries. Tin was easier; twenty-five tons of October sold at 30.20. Spelter was strong at an improvement of 15 points. Lead was unchanged.

On the Metal Exchange in London yesterday copper, for both spot and future deliveries, suffered a decline over Tuesday's closing prices, declining 2s 6d from the final figures of Tuesday. The market finished steady, closing quotations ruling at: Spot, £57 7s 6d; futures, £58 7s 6d. Pig tin ended steady, with spot and future deliveries down 2s. 6d. to £137 7s 6d and £138 17s 6d, respectively. Spanish pig lead was steady and up 1s 3d, to £13 5s. Spelter was easier and down 5s, to £23. Cleveland warrants were quoted at 51s 6d.

HUDSON-FULTON FUND MAY PAY ALL CLAIMS

DISCUSS HALF MOON'S FATE

Many Applications for Her and the Clermont—Proposal to Secure Inwood Park for the City.

Herman Ridder reported yesterday to the Trustees of the Hudson-Fulton Celebration Commission at a meeting in the Tribune Building that while he felt pretty certain the commission had come out even, he was positive that they had not exceeded its appropriation of $1,060,000 by more than $25,000, and that he knew how to get that.

After a number of bills, the largest for $12,500 from Wilbur Wright, had been approved there came a discussion of what to do with the various appurtenances of the celebration, notably the Half Moon and the Clermont.

A letter was read from the Atlantic Waterways Commission, which will be in convention from Nov. 17 to 20 in Norfolk, Va., asking that the two vessels be sent there at its expense. They could go, it was suggested, by the Delaware and Raritan Canals, the Chesapeake and the Delaware, and would receive an ovation all along the line.

"We should go slow," commented Gen. Stewart Woodford in the chair. "The Half Moon is practically the gift of another nation."

It was decided to leave the matter to a joint committee.

The Half Moon Committee is considering Spuyten Duyvil, Stony Point, West Point, Inwood Park, and the Highlands as possible permanent locations for its ship. The Zoological Garden authorities have also offered to preserve both craft on the lake in Bronx Park.

On the motion of John Parsons a resolution was adopted recommending that the city acquire Inwood Park as a permanent memorial of the Hudson-Fulton Celebration and of Henry Hudson's visit to Manhattan.

The fate of the water gate at 110th Street caused a good deal of discussion. Dr. Kunz declared it should never have been placed there, and never would have been but that Commissioner Smith's house was opposite. Half a mile up or down, he held, would have offered a better site. Others argued that it had cost $26,00 in erection, would cost more in destruction, and that some such dignified landing place for large bodies of men was needed.

This, with the sale of the historical floats and other property of the commission was turned over for settlement to the President and Acting President.

Seth Low stated that Admiral Schroeder had told him he never saw a fleet better received and taken care of in his life. The Committee on Medals was voted an additional $3,000, so that it could give bronze medals to every school, college, and academy in the State in addition to those for school children here.

ALLIS-CHALMERS PROFITS.

$135,431 Against $615,814 in 1908—Operated Only at 50 Per Cent. of Capacity

The Allis-Chalmers Company reported yesterday for the year ended June 30 operating profits of $1,809,009, compared with $2,573,961 the previous year. Maintenance, depreciation, and other charges amounted to $1,673,578, leaving net profits of $135,431, against $615,814 in 1908.

President Whiteside, in his statement to the stockholders, calls attention to the fact that the company was compelled during the year to operate at about 50 per cent. of its capacity.

"Liberal sums," President Whiteside says further, "have been appropriated out of earnings for maintenance and betterments of the several works of your company, with careful provision against fire risks. All expenditures for the development and patent protection of the newer lines of machinery, which formerly were carried forward as deferred charges, have been deducted this year from earnings."

ROCKEFELLER IN SHIPPING.

Reported to be a Large Stockholder in American Co.—Its Earnings.

The annual report of the American Shipbuilding Company, issued yesterday, showed net earnings for the year ended June 30 of $1,257,722, against $1,713,908 the previous year. The sum of $194,850 was charged off for depreciation, maintenance, &c., and preferred dividends called for $553,000, leaving a balance of earnings of $509,872, out of which $184,793 was appropriated for additions to docks, &c. The final surplus for the year was $325,078.

At the annual meeting in Jersey City yesterday the election of James H. Hoyt, general counsel of the company, to a place in the Board of Directors, to succeed John A. McGean, was said to be only temporary. It was intimated that a subsequent meeting would be held at which representatives of large interests would be elected. John D. Rockefeller is said to be a large stockholder, although this statement could not be confirmed.

Stocks in Small Rally—Call Money Rates, 4@5 Per Cent.

AWAIT ENGLISH BANK RATE

Money Market's Course the Factor in Securities—Exchange Rates Up and Time Money Strong.

As a rule Wall Street pays very perfunctory attention to changes in the discount rates of the great foreign banks, but at the present moment even Wall Street is aware of the fact that much of the money with which it has been doing business for several months past has come from London, having been secured through American finance bills. It becomes, therefore, a very important question whether such bills maturing in the near future are to be renewed at substantially higher rates, or, indeed, renewed at all. Yesterday the cables reported the prospect of an advance to-day in the discount rate of the English Bank. A rate of 3½ per cent. is looked upon as a foregone conclusion, and no surprise would be created if the figure were made 4 per cent. The movement of the Paris cheque on London was suggestive of the higher rate, and the apparent determination of the Bank of Germany to attract funds at whatever cost will presumably form a factor in to-day's decision of the English Bank management. All this is so plain in its bearing upon local money conditions that it was impossible for the Stock Exchange to escape its significance, and the course of prices was accordingly irregular, with a rallying tendency early in the day and a somewhat heavier movement near the close. Final prices disclosed small changes only from Tuesday night's levels, although they were mainly in the nature of gains. With interest centring so largely upon the situation in money markets, it required something more than routine developments outside to arouse attention in the financial district, and nothing of the sort came to light. Various stories in circulation within the past few months of drastic changes in the control of the Gould properties and New York Central were definitely put to rest by the election of Mr. Gould's two sons to the boards of two of the Gould enterprises, while Mr. Harriman's successor in the New York Central Directorate was a well-known Vanderbilt operating official. On the Cotton Exchange appraisement was attempted of the damage done to cotton by the latest West Indian storm and a visit of frost. Cotton prices were marked up a dollar or more a bale in the process.

Foreign exchange rates again moved forward in response to the expectations generally entertained regarding an advance in the discount rate of the Bank of England to-day, and in the local money market quotations on call loans were sustained and rates for practically all time loans were raised. The banks have already lost to the Sub-Treasury more than they had at this time last week, the actual amount being $3,658,000, but interior demands thus far have been no larger. The Government's report on our exports of domestic products during September was of interest when read in the light of money market movements, for the increase in value of such exports was under $4,000,000, while for the calendar year thus far they are nearly $90,000,000 below those of the same period last year.

PHIL

The New Pennsylvania Financing.

A meeting of the Directors of the Pennsylvania Railroad was held in Philadelphia yesterday, but contrary to the idea entertained in Wall Street no announcement was made regarding the much-discussed Pennsylvania financing. The delay in bringing out this financing has resulted in the dissemination of reports that a disagreement has occurred among the Directors regarding the form it should take, but semi-official denials of such reports were forthcoming yesterday. It is still understood that at least $75,000,000 of new stock will be offered to present holders for the purpose of refunding other maturities and supplying a moderate amount of fresh capital. Without the least support in known facts for their deductions, traders have already figured that the rights to stockholders will amount to about 7 per cent. Curiously enough, they have also made up their minds that an advance in the Pennsylvania dividend to a 7 per cent. rate is not to be made this year.

***

Gain in Domestic Exports.

An interesting feature of the Government's report on domestic exports for September, published yesterday, was its showing of a gain of less than $4,000,000 in the value of such shipments. This is small, to be sure, but encouragement was taken from it, particularly in view of the fact that the movement of cotton is daily becoming much heavier. For September cotton shipments were valued at $46,000,000, against $32,000,000 in the same month of 1908. Wheat exports were off in value more than $6,000,000. A surprising phase of the statement was the largely increased exports of mineral oil with no resulting increase in value. More than 13,000,000 more gallons of oil were exported, but the difference in the value of shipments trifling.

***

Looking for Higher Bank Rate.

The minimum rate of discount of the Bank of England, which was advanced last week from 2½ to 3 per cent., will again be advanced to-day, if the opinions of bankers who have been closely following the foreign money markets are borne out. The advances which have taken place this week in the exchange rate on London at several Continental centres, including the sharp advance yesterday in the Paris cheque rate on London, are looked upon as pointing to the probability of a further advance in the English Bank rate. One factor in the raising of the English rate is the demands which this market has made upon foreign money markets, including that of London, in the shape of finance bills drawn by our bankers. The advance in the Bank rate will naturally have the effect of checking the granting of these credits to New York. More broadly, however, the fact is pointed to that interest rates are moving upward at most money centres here as well as in Europe.

***

Larger Movement of Lumber.

Some of the Northwestern railroads are finding indications of an increasing movement of lumber, which promises another source of increased revenue for the railroads of that section of the country. It is believed that stocks of lumber at many points have been reduced by the building activity shown in recent months, and that the chances favor the resumption of purchases of lumber by lumber yards, which were well filled when the panic came, but are again feeling the need of replenishing their stocks. The transportation of lumber is an important item in the traffic receipts of many railroads. A large movement of lumber would have an important effect on the volume of railroad earnings.

***

Powder Trust on Board.

With the admission of the so-called "Powder Trust" securities to the Stock Exchange list there now remains outside of the fold practically none of the big industrials but the Standard Oil Company. Like the American Tobacco Company, however, the E. I. Du Pont-De Nemours Powder Company does not ask the Stock Exchange to list its common stock, and of its $25,000,000 authorized 5 per cent. cumulative preferred all that is listed is $13,692,900. These shares, in addition to $14,452,000 4½ per cent. 30-year bonds, with authority to add $1,548,000 more of this issue to the list, are all of the "Powder Trust" securities that may be counted on to bring commissions to Exchange members.

HUGHITT IN CENTRAL IN HARRIMAN'S PLACE

JAY GOULD IN THE WABASH

Both Elections Regarded by Wall Street as an Indication of a Change in the Harriman Holdings.

Marvin Hughitt, President of the Chicago & Northwestern, was elected yesterday a Director of the New York Central to fill the vacancy caused by the death of E. H. Harriman, who became a Director of the Central last Winter, and was expected, had he lived, to assume a place of increasing importance in the direction of New York Central affairs.

The selection of the President of the Chicago & Northwestern, a road with which the Vanderbilts have long been closely identified, as the successor to Mr. Harriman was looked upon in the financial districts yesterday as suggesting that with the death of Mr. Harriman the influence which he was expected to exert in the system's affairs has reverted to the Vanderbilt interests in the road.

Mr. Hughitt is a Director of the Union Pacific, but as the head of the Northwestern he is even more closely associated with the old régime in New York Central than with the Harriman properties.

This selection of a new Director is regarded with all the more interest for the reason that it became known some time ago that the Harriman interests had largely increased their holdings of New York Central, and the passing of the road actually into the Harriman camp was regarded as one of the possible outcomes of the situation which led Mr. Harriman's entrance into the Central board.

How far the stock interest of the Harriman party in the New York Central is likely to be modified by the death of Mr. Harriman has been one of the open questions of the railroad situation. The choice of Mr. Hughitt, who will not be regarded as a representative of the Harriman interests, will likely be taken as an indication that whatever plans for an extension of Harriman influence over the New York Central were under consideration before Mr. Harriman died are not likely now to be urged by his old associates.

The announcement yesterday of the election of Jay Gould as a Director of the Wabash Railroad was taken as closing another situation in which Mr. Harriman had been expected to play an important part. The choice which the Gould interests have made for a new Director for the Wabash was pointed to yesterday as suggesting that the influence which Mr. Harriman held in the Wabash situation was a personal influence rather than the influence which would attach to large holdings of Wabash securities.

Following yesterday's meeting of the New York Central Directors, meetings of the Lake Shore and the Michigan Central boards were held, at which Mr. Hughitt was also elected a Director in those companies to succeed Mr. Harriman.

President W. C. Brown, W. K. Vanderbilt, and W. H. Newman left yesterday on a trip over the New York Central lines for the purpose, it is understood, of placing Mr. Vanderbilt, who has just returned from Europe, in practical touch with the affairs of the system. The party will spend several days on this trip of observation.

Another vacancy caused by the death of Mr. Harriman was filled yesterday by the election of F. I. Waterbury as a Director of the Pacific Coast Company at the annual meeting of that company. The retiring Directors were re-elected.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Wednesday.

Business on the Consolidated Stock Exchange was conducted on a broad and active scale. Total sales for the day of 111,010 shares were distributed among sixty-five different issues, the list including several stocks seldom seen upon it, such as Rubber second preferred and General Electric. At the same time the bulk of the trading continued to be largely concentrated in the three stocks that have been the leaders recently, United States Steel common, Reading, and Union Pacific. Considerable attention was, however, paid to Amalgamated Copper and American Smelting.

THE EUROPEAN MARKETS.

Better Tone Follows Rumored Resignation of Lloyd-George.

LONDON, Oct. 13.—Money was in better demand for the settlement on the market to-day, and discounts were firmer. Business was restricted pending the Bank rate decision.

The Stock Exchange opened heavy and unsettled on the monetary outlook, and the general impression that the Bank rate would be raised to-morrow. This checked business, but in the afternoon a better tone prevailed on the entirely unconfirmed rumor of the resignation of the Chancellor of the Exchequer. Consols hardened 3-16. Paris supported the specialties, and the whole market closed more cheerful.

American securities were quiet during the early session to-day. Prices generally were unchanged from yesterday's level, which showed declines ranging from ⅛ to ⅝ below Monday's New York closing. The New York opening came quiet, Wall Street bought moderately, and the market finished steady, fractionally higher than at midday.

Bar silver steady, 23 9-16d per ounce.

Money, 1@1½ per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for short bills is 3 per cent.; for three months' bills, 3¼@3½ per cent.

PARIS, Oct. 13.—Prices on the Bourse to-day hardened, with the exception of Spanish shares, which were weaker on the execution to-day in Barcelona of Ferrer, the revolutionist. The private discount rate is 2½ per cent., an advance of ⅛.

Three per cent. rentes, 97f 42½c for the account.

Exchange on London, 25f 16c for checks.

BERLIN, Oct. 13.—Prices on the Boerse to-day were dull.

Aldrich's Son in Continental Rubber Co

E. B. Aldrich, son of Senator Aldrich, has been elected to the Presidency of the Continental Rubber Company, to succeed William H. Stayton. The latter is organizing a company in Texas with purposes similar to those of the Continental Company, which has been developing a process of extracting rubber from the guayule shrub of Mexico. The new company which Mr. Stayton is organizing is to take over guayule shrub lands in Texas owned by H. Koehler of San Antonio. The company is to be called the Big Bend Rubber Company.

COTTON GOODS PRICES SOAR.

Quotations for Wide Standards Highest Since November, 1907.

Special to The New York Times.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Oct. 13.—The price of 88½-inch cotton prints, 64 by 64s, 5.15 yards to the pound, has been advanced from 5⅝ cents a yard to 5¾ cents, and manufacturers are unwilling sellers even at the newly-created quotations. The sales have been comparatively large during the past two days, with deliveries extending through the next few months. This latest quotation for this style of goods is the highest since Nov. 26, 1907, when wide standards were reduced from 6 cents a yard to 5¾ cents.

At that time narrow goods, 28-inch, 64 by 64s, 7 yards to the pound, were selling for 5¼ cents a yard. They are selling to-day at 3⅝ cents a yard, nominal. Cotton was quoted then at 11.20 cents a pound, but to-day it reached the record since April 4, 1904, the Sully era, when cotton cost 15.35 cents a pound. On April 25 of the same year the price for cotton was 13.75 cents. To-day spot middling uplands cotton advanced to 13.85 cents a pound, a gain of 20 points over yesterday, or a net advance of $1 a bale.

While wide goods have advanced, the narrow end of the print cloth market has shown material advances, and 28-inch, 64 by 60s, 7.30 yards to the pound, is selling for 3⅝ cents, as well as 27-inch, 64 by 60s, 7.80 yards to the pound. The gray goods market on the whole is very strong, with prices showing an upward tendency and the wants of buyers remaining unsatisfied. On account of the sharp advance in cotton, manufacturers refused generally to trade to-day and the talk of a possible curtailment is spreading and sentiment in this city is growing stronger toward such action.

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Oct. 13.—The Boston market opened quiet, and with prices showing but little change from the previous closing. Copper shares were generally somewhat lower in sympathy with Amalgamated, which declined from 79½ to 77⅞. Trading throughout the balance of the list was well scattered, but prices, as a rule, show hardly more than fractional changes. The market closed steady at some rally from the low point of the day.

IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Buyer for $300,000 Apartment House on Claremont Avenue

—Seventh Avenue and 54th Street Corner Sold

—Dealings by Brokers and at Auction.

The Taylor-Sherman Company has sold Dacona Hall, at the southwest corner of Claremont Avenue and 122d Street, a new six-story elevator apartment house, 100 by 100, for the Dacona Realty Company to an investor for about $300,000.

Resale of Seventh Avenue Corner.

The Seventh Avenue-Fifty-fourth Street Company has sold, through Norwood & Marden, its attorneys, its property on the southeast corner of Seventh Avenue and Fifty-fourth Street, 100 by 100, with five small dwellings on Fifty-fourth Street and a flat on Seventh Avenue, to Charles H. Hanson, a client of J. Archibald Murray. The property has been held at $280,000.

Buyer for 84th Street Flat.

James K. Holly has resold for a client to Roane Brothers the five-story flat, 156 West Eighty-fourth Street, on lot 27.6 by 102.2, between Columbus and Amsterdam Avenues.

Hall J. How & Co. negotiated the recent sale of the northeast corner of Lenox Avenue and 121st Street for the Howard estate to Philip Krauss.

The West Side Taxpayers' Association will hold its annual election of officers to-morrow evening at 267 West Thirty-fourth Street.

Dwelling Sold on Barrow Street.

The Duross Company has sold for Elizabeth Lahey to Elizabeth Fishbourne 63 Barrow Street, a three-story dwelling on lot 17.1 by 26.9.

West 32d Street Buildings Leased.

Augustus H. Ivins & Co. have leased the property 505 to 513 West Thirty-second Street containing approximately 50,000 square feet, to F. Mohr & Co., furniture manufacturers, for a term of years at a total rental of $300,000.

The McVickar-Gaillard Realty Company reports that it has rented for the Jon Trageser Steam Copper Works the entire four-story building, lately occupied by Parker, Stearns & Co., at 228 and 229 South Street, running through to 449 and 451 Water Street, on plot 40 by 160, to M. Berman & Co. for a long term of years.

The Taylor-Sherman Company has rented the twenty-three-foot dwelling, 9 East Fifty-fifth Street, for a term of years; also, the first apartment in the Bowe & Seligman Building, 59 West Fifty-third Street.

Louis Schrag has leased for Albert Von Den Driesch the store, basement, and first loft in 133 West-Twenty-fourth Street to M. Rambow & Co. for a term of five years.

To Build on Cambreling Avenue.

James T. Barry has sold two lots, 50 by 100, on the east side of Cambreling Avenue, 190 feet south of 187th Street. The buyer will improve the property.

The Bronx Investment Company has made a building loan of $109,000 to the Wonigmann Construction Company on its property, 49 by 100 and irregular, at the northwest corner of Clay Avenue and 165th Street.

Brooklyn Property Changes Hands.

The Charles F. Noyes Company has sold, in conjunction with P. W. Mackenzie, the old Gaston place on McDonough Street, near Stuyvesant Avenue, Brooklyn, consisting of a large three-story frame mansion on plot 120 by 100. The property has been held in the Gaston family for about seventy-five years.

L. I. Property at Auction.

Herbert A. Sherman sold at auction on Tuesday a tract of about 2½ acres of land with three-story house and outbuildings at Locust Valley, L. I. The property was struck down, after ninety-nine bids, to Ashley M. Herron for $20,800. The sale was held in pursuance of a partition decree affecting the estate of Edward Ludlam.

BROOKLYN—FOR SALE OR TO LET.

BUY A HOME. YOU
Take your wife and children to a home where they can have health, air and sunshine. Take them out of the DUNGEON (with a few windows) called a flat or apartment to a DETACHED COTTAGE with all modern improvements.
Don't think you can't afford it; YOU CAN. It costs very little, if any, more than the rent you are now paying to buy YOUR OWN little home.
Come to the foremost BUILDERS in the WORLD and see what they have to offer you on a small cash investment. Learn how easy it is to buy your OWN HOME on monthly payments. To the man who pays $30 a month rent, or the man who pays $150, you are both in the same class, and we have a HOUSE FOR EITHER OF YOU. Begin life right, start to-day, to-morrow NEVER COMES. We have helped THOUSANDS to buy their home, and we CAN and WILL help you. Buy from the man who has YOUR interest at heart. YOUR interest is our interest. We have, in the various stages of construction, upwards of TWO HUNDRED HOUSES. One of them is built for YOU. Prices from $5,000 to $16,000. Certainly you CANNOT afford to lose this opportunity. Located in Flatbush, the Garden spot of Greater New York, where you will find the most up-to-date improvements, the best restrictions and the finest water in the land. Thirty minutes from Manhattan. Five Cent Fare.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Importers of Silica Ware Are Granted a Duty of 20 Per Cent.

It was held yesterday by the Board of United States General Appraisers that silica ware composed of silica and other minerals is entitled to enter this country at a lower rate than that assessed by the Treasury Department.

Collector Loeb classified the silica as "manufactures of glass," with a tariff tax under the Dingley law of 45 per cent. Chief among the contentions raised by the importers for lower duty was that the entries made by Eimer & Amend of this city should be allowed to enter as "unenumerated manufactured articles" with a customs duty of 20 per cent.

General Appraiser Sharretts, in his decision for the board, says that the members of the board are clearly of the opinion that these articles are not glass, since they differ widely from glass in value, the uses to which they are put, and the name by which they are known. The only question worthy of consideration is whether these articles are so similar in material to glass as to be dutiable by virtue of the similitude clause of Section 7, at the rate provided for manufactures of glass.

The decision goes on to say that the similitude clause cannot hold, and that the silica ware should be permitted to enter at 20 per cent. as claimed by the importers.

BUSINESS TROUBLES.

GEDALE ZAUDERER.—Judge Hand has dismissed a petition in bankruptcy filed on March 26 against Gedale Zauderer, wholesale grocer, of 58 Avenue D, on a settlement at 25 cents on the dollar.

ARTHUR A. ERNST.—Arthur A. Ernst, consulting engineer at 108 Park Avenue, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $2,807, contracted in this city and at Far Rockaway, and no assets.

STEVENS-BRITTON-MAUREL COMPANY.—Judge Hand has appointed Eugene D. Alexander receiver in bankruptcy for the Stevens-Britton-Maurel Company, dealer in auto supplies at 1,783 Broadway. The liabilities are $5,000 and the assets $1,000.

CHURCH PUBLISHING COMPANY.—Schedules in bankruptcy of the Church Publishing Company, 27 East Twenty-first Street, show liabilities of $4,199 and assets of $3,740, consisting of stock, $2,400; press, typewriter, and office fixtures, $296; plates and copyrights, $500, and accounts, $544.

ABRAHAM JOACHIM.—Abraham Joachim, real estate broker of 93 Hamilton Place, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $13,756, and no assets. The principal creditors are Salome Campbell, White Plains, $11,310, deficiency judgment, and Simon Machiz, $1,500, guarantee on a contract.

ALFRED SCHLESINGER.—Deputy Sheriff Murray sold out yesterday the stock of Alfred Schlesinger, dealer in women's furnishing goods at 1,814 Amsterdam Avenue, corner of 150th Street, for $765 under an execution of $1,701 in favor of Siegmund Schlesinger, to whom he confessed judgment.

JAMES KALMAN.—James Kalman, agent of 1 East 106th Street, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $3,531, and no assets. The debts are mostly for indorsing accommodation paper for Morris Kalman. There are only three creditors, Dr. Henry Freeman, $952; State Bank, $901, and Mutual Alliance Trust Company, $677.

DAVID BAYARD.—David Bayard, a clerk of 51 Ludlow Street, formerly a produce dealer, has filed a petition in bankruptcy with liabilities of $4,591, and assets of $5 cash on hand. Among the creditors are the Long Island Potato Exchange of Riverhead, $450; J. Siotopolsky & Son, $600; Jacob Bernstein, $750, and David S. Mann, $800.

HARRY LEWIS.—Harry Lewis, wholesale and retail dealer in millinery at 41 Division Street, is endeavoring to get a settlement with his creditors at 20 cents on the dollar. His liabilities are reported to be about $19,000 and his assets about $1,500 in stock, fixtures, and accounts. His trouble is attributed partly to tearing up the store near his store for the new Manhattan Bridge, and losses by fire some time ago.

PHILIP HAKE MANUFACTURING COMPANY.—Schedules in bankruptcy of the Philip Hake Manufacturing Company, stationery, 134 Essex Street, show liabilities of $92,964 and assets of $15,681, consisting of cash proceeds of sale of assets, $5,188, and outstanding accounts, $10,443. Among the creditors are the estate of Philip Hake of Hoboken, $76,683, loans; August R. Hake, $3,103, loans; H. F. Poggenburg & Co., $1,262, insurance premiums, and Sudhaus Paper Box Works, $2,519.

JOHN S. BUZZINI.—John S. Buzzini, a salesman living at 183d Street and Loring Place, formerly President of Buzzini & Co., and the Buzzini Equipment and Construction Company, manufacturers of French ranges, formerly 440 Eleventh Avenue and 644 West Forty-fourth Street, which are in bankruptcy, has filed an individual petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $51,234 and no assets. Among his creditors are the Commercial Trust Co., $33,000, secured; L. Buzzi & Son, $7,000, secured; Gustave Oberdorfer, $2,458; J. Gibb & Co., $1,650; W. A. Tobias, $1,650, and the Italian-American Trust Company, $583.

SAYS WOMEN FREED MORGAN.

Gave $30,000, Gibson Asserts, to Get Confederate Raider Out of Ohio Prison

Special to The New York Times.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Oct. 13.—What, according to J. B. Gibson, a business man of this city, is the true version of the escape from the Ohio Penitentiary of Gen. John H. Morgan, the famous Confederate raider, is contained in a statement made to-day. Mr. Gibson declared that she knew of his own personal knowledge that two Columbus women, whose names he refused to divulge, paid $30,000 in gold to secure the release of Morgan and his companions.

The generally accepted story of the escape has been that Morgan and his men dug a tunnel from their cells through which they got out. Gibson was Captain in the First Kentucky Cavalry in the Union Army.

"Two brothers of Morgan, still living in Kentucky, have the whole story of the escape written out," says Mr. Gibson, "and I saw it only recently; they have never given it to the public, and perhaps they never will. There are many others besides the Morgans, though, who know the story, and I could tell you the names of the women, but I will not. There is no doubt that the hole was dug in the cell and a tunnel made, but nobody ever got out through that tunnel; the prisoners were simply turned loose by the soldiers who guarded them and when they got outside the walls they were hurriedly driven to a place where they changed clothes. Morgan was then quickly sent out of the State and into the South.

"The carriage that waited just outside the penitentiary building, where the female department is now, was occupied by the women who brought about the escape. The money was raised by the Southern sympathizers. The women parted with several of their own fine carriage horses, and even with jewelry, to help raise the fund of $30,000 in gold.

"There is no blame to be given to Warden Merion, he knew nothing of the affair. The Morgan raiders were guarded by United States soldiers, who were stationed at the prison, when Stanton ordered Morgan confined there."

Both Morgan and Gibson were in the Kentucky home guards when the war began. Part of the militia stayed with the Union. Capt. Gibson was among them.

SUPREME COURT

AGED AUDITOR SLAIN; FOUND IN TENEMENT

Royston M. Betts of 468 Central Park West Stabbed and Robbed in Wooster Street.

DRAGGED INTO CELLAR TO DIE

Sons Think He Carried Employer's Money—Truckman Stumbles Over Body—Watch and Ring Gone, Too.

Royston M. Betts, 69 years old, an auditor, who lived with a son, W. C. Betts, at 468 Central Park West, was found lying battered and unconscious in the basement of the double tenement at 206 Wooster Street early yesterday morning. He was taken to St. Vincent's Hospital. There he died at 5:40 o'clock in the afternoon, after an operation upon his right temple, which had been dented in by a blow from some blunt instrument.

Coroner Acritelli and the police are convinced that the old man was murdered for his money, but they have absolutely no clue to work on. He was not identified until half an hour after he died. The first identification was by Dr. W. R. Betts of Englewood, N. J., one of the man's sons. It was not until near midnight that Dr. Betts and his brother, W. C. Betts, returned to the hospital to see about the disposition of the body.

The Wooster Street tenement is occupied mainly by Italians. It is in the poorer section of the lower west side. The basement doors, front and back, are always open, so that outsiders have no trouble walking through the basement hallway if they want to. James Gallagher, a truckman, who sleeps in the basement, got up yesterday morning at 6:30 o'clock. He started out the back door, but stumbled over the body of the man in the hall.

Gallagher saw that the man was unconscious, and that he had been wounded. He ran into the street, where he found Policeman Maroney of the Mercer Street Station. He called an ambulance from St. Vincent's Hospital. Dr. McReynolds found that the old man had a knife wound in his left side, another in his throat, and a fracture of the right temple. There was no blood on the temple, this indicating that the fracture had been caused by a blunt instrument. The face had been battered up frightfully. He never regained consciousness.

Mr. Betts had worn a cameo ring and a cheap watch. He always carried some money, though not enough, thought the son, to tempt any except a desperate thief. The old man, however, often handled considerable money at the house where he was employed, suggested the elder son, and this might have led some one who knew about that to assault him in the belief that he was carrying some of it.

It was the belief of the sons that some one had waylaid their father on his way to or from work, had knocked him down, robbed him of what little he had on him, and had then dragged him through the hallway of the tenement and had left him where he was found by Gallagher.

MANY ON THE CHALLENGE LIST

Supt. Leary Has 24,900 Names of Suspects on Registration Rolls.

The total registration this year in Manhattan and the Bronx is 344,354. Superintendent of Elections Leary has the names of 24,900 of these on his challenge lists. With few exceptions, every man whose named appeared on the Superintendent's challenge list this year, registered last year from the address given on the list.

Out of these 24,900 names only 314 took the challenge affidavits on the four days of registration. Included in these are men convicted of felonies, who have been arrested, held for examination, or for the Grand Jury, and their cases are in the hands of the Attorney General.

The total number of names on the Superintendent's challenge lists for Manhattan and the Bronx for 1908 was 18,728. Of that number only 614 registered and voted last year.

STUDENTS WRECK A HOTEL.

New York University Underclassmen in a Fight—Police End It.

Several New York University students were hurt and a Bronx hotel was partly wrecked last night in the worst college class fight this year. Early last evening 120 freshmen caught half a dozen sophomores on the campus and took them to the Grove Hotel, at the north end of Van Cortlandt Park. The freshmen took their captives to a second floor rear room, and there, with a flowing keg and in a cloud of cigarette smoke made the six prisoners push pennies across the floor with their noses and row an imaginary boat with toothpicks.

The freshmen had just painted the numerals 1913 on the faces of their captives when a rescuing crowd of fifty sophomores charged the narrow flight of back stairs. The stairway was so narrow that the biggest freshmen had no difficulty in performing a "Horatius at the Bridge" act at the top. The invading sophs were driven back to the hotel's back yard.

They then found a pile of empty beer bottles and hurled these through the windows, the freshmen answering with the hotel's furniture. The row only stopped when three police from the Kingsbridge Police Station had been summoned and drove the students away.

Here are the casualties: One sophomore's head cut with a chair, almost every window in the hotel broken, the balustrade of the rear stairs torn down, and a piano ruined. The students paid the proprietor for the damage done.

BRITTON MUST GO TO PRISON.

Appellate Court Affirms His Conviction and That of F. H. Schroeder.

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court in Brooklyn unanimously affirmed the conviction yesterday of Col. Edward E. Britton and ex-Quarantine Commissioner Frederick H. Schroeder, accused of grand larceny in the first degree for appropriating to their own use $47,000 of the funds of the Eagle Savings and Loan Association while they were executive officers of that institution.

Both men were tried before Justice Jaycox of the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, and were sentenced by him on March 8. Col. Britton was sentenced to a minimum term of fourteen months in Sing Sing Prison and Commissioner Schroeder to a minimum term of twelve months, the maximum in each case being four years and six months. Justice Maresa later granted a stay of sentence pending an appeal of their case.

In the indictment against the former bank officials they are specifically charged with appropriating to their own use on Feb. 29, 1908, $4,000 of the Eagle Savings and Loan Association's funds, which they used in promoting the Home Stake South Extension Mining Company of South Dakota, a company in which they were interested. The specific theft is one of a number aggregating $47,000 from the institution of which Col. Britton was President and Commissioner Schroeder Vice President, both being accused of using this money in operating the mining company. It was brought out at the trial that they substituted worthless checks for cash, the paying teller being instructed to carry the checks as cash.

JAIL FOR A BOOKMAKER.

New York Man Alleged to Have "Welched" at Whippany River Races.

Special to The New York Times.

MORRISTOWN, N. J., Oct. 13.—In spite of the fact that there were signs posted on the Whippany River Club grounds reading "No bookmaking," the practice was surreptitiously carried on during the racing Saturday and yesterday. County Detective Breenan came upon a crowd of men and boys surrounding a man yelling that he was making a book and refusing to pay up when he lost. The detective arrested him, charging him with bookmaking.

When arraigned before Police Justice Condon the man gave his name as Harry Winters and said he lived in New York. He also stated he was in the employ of another bookmaker whose name is not known.

Police Justice Condon placed the man under $500 bail, in default of which he was committed to the county jail to await the action of the Grand Jury, which is now in session.

JAPANESE BUSINESS MEN SEE NEW YORK

The Commercial Commissioners Spend Busy Day in Visits to Wall Street.

SILK TRADERS THEIR HOSTS

City Sends Police as Escorts—They Inspect the Stock Exchange and Clearing House and Call on the Mayor.

The Commercial Commissioners from Japan, who are in America to study industrial conditions and financial institutions, spent a busy day yesterday in whirling from place to place in long lines of taxicabs. Between times there was a luncheon and a dinner, both in the East Ballroom of the Hotel Astor, at which they made and listened to speeches, surrounded by Japanese and American flags, and the Japanese national flower, the chrysanthemum.

In the morning flying visits were paid to the Clearing House, the Sub-Treasury, and the Stock Exchange, and at noon the entire party went to the City Hall, where they were greeted by Mayor McClellan with a speech of welcome.

After the morning ride the Silk Association entertained the Japanese visitors at a luncheon at the Hotel Astor. All the Japanese visitors, the American representatives who have accompanied them from the Pacific Coast, and most of the men in New York prominent in the silk trade were present, the number of about 150.

William Skinner made a short address of welcome to the commission. He proposed the health of the Emperor of Japan, which was received with banzais and cheers. Baron Shibusawa replied in Japanese, which was translated by the interpreter at his side into excellent English.

The Baron said that, although he was a banker, he was much interested in the silk industry, and that, realizing its importance to Japan, he was the first banker to advocate its support by all other branches of commerce. He concluded by giving the health of the President of the United States.

Baron Kanda, Professor at the Peers School in Tokio, then addressed the association in perfect English.

"In passing through this great country of yours," he said, "we felt that we were coming nearer and nearer to the people who know us best. In visiting the mines and industries of the West we stood overawed and wondered when we should be able to imitate your achievements.

"Here we are among our own people, men of the silk industry. The chains, or rather cords, of silk which bind the two countries together in commercial relations will prove stronger bonds of friendship than any chain of battleships."

Mr. Skinner then announced that automobiles would take the party through Central Park, and later to Grant's Tomb, where the visitors could see the cherry trees presented to the city during the Hudson-Fulton Celebration by the Emperor of Japan.

A large crowd gathered in Times Square to see the long line of Japanese as they were whirled away. The afternoon brought forth expressions of delight and amazement from the foreign visitors, who returned to the Astor in time for dinner.

In the evening a formal banquet was held, to which many of the Commissioners were invited. The others spent the evening in various ways, in visits to the homes of Japanese residents of New York, or at the theatres.

The formal dinner was given by no society, but by a few of those interested in the educational, philanthropic, and religious work of New York. The list of diners included many clergymen of the city, and emphasis was more on the religious than the educational side of life.

William Dulles, Vice President of the Mississippi Glass Company, was the toastmaster, and the American speakers were Bishop Greer, Dr. Edward T. Devine, General Secretary of the Charity Organization Society; the Rev. George Knox of the Union Theological Seminary, and John R. Mott, Secretary of the International Committee of the Young Men's To-day elaborate arrangements have been made for the reception of the commission by the Chamber of Commerce and a luncheon will be served at the conclusion of a meeting to be held in the hall of the Chamber of Commerce. In the evening the Nippon Club will give a reception.

MORE SEWER EXPLOSIONS.

Fifteen Iron Manhole Disks Fly Into a Park—Laid to Gasoline.

Residents of Fifty-second Street, between Eleventh Avenue and the North River, were startled by a series of manhole explosions yesterday afternoon. Memories of the explosions of last week were still fresh in the minds of most of the people on the block, and there were serious scares in the various tenements.

On the block eight manholes covering the entire complement of a separate sewer line, installed fifteen years ago, were blown off into De Witt Clinton Park, which fronts on the north side of Fifty-second Street, which runs to the river. Most of the covers were broken, but no damage to property or persons was done.

The police believe that these explosions also were caused by waste gasoline poured into the sewer from a garage in the block. The reserves of the West Forty-seventh Street Station were called out, but made no arrests.

KILLED BY MRS. YOUNG'S AUTO

Old Man Stepped Before It in Jersey City—Hurled 20 Feet.

John Donohue, a real estate dealer, 64 years old, was struck by an automobile at Montgomery and Frémont Streets, in Jersey City, last night, and was instantly killed. The automobile is owned by Mrs. E. F. Young, widow of the Jersey City banker. It was driven by the chauffeur, Ernest Eidlitz of 217 Duncan Avenue, Jersey City. Mrs. Young would not say whether she was in the car at the time. Donohue, who lived at 11 Ferris Street, had gone to the New Jersey Paint Works, at Wayne and Frémont Streets, to order paint. He was waiting for a Montgomery Street car when the automobile appeared.

He became bewildered and crossed its path. He was hurled about twenty feet. The automobile was stopped and the body was lifted into it by the chauffeur and taken to the City Hospital. Physicians there declared that Donohue had been killed when the machine hit him. He was a married man and leaves a family.

The chauffeur was taken to the City Hall Police Station and there paroled in the custody of George T. Smith, President of the First National Bank of Jersey City, a son-in-law of Mrs. Young. He will be arraigned on a charge of manslaughter this morning.

STREET WIDENING PROTEST.

Property Owners in 32d Street Contend That It Would Cause Great Loss.

The proposal to widen Thirty-second Street from Sixth to Seventh Avenue on account of the great increase of the traffic expected after the opening of the Pennsylvania terminal in Seventh Avenue met with a sudden check yesterday.

Some 100 property owners or their representatives gathered in the Council Chamber at the City Hall at the adjourned hearing by a sub-committee of the Board of Estimate, consisting of Controller Metz, President McGowan of the Aldermen, and Borough President Ahearn.

It was clear from the start that the proposal was unpopular and many obstacles were raised. At length Controller Metz seized on a suggestion that all that was necessary might be accomplished by revoking on Thirty-first, Thirty-second, and Thirty-third Streets the stoop and area privileges, as has been done on Fifth Avenue, and the hearing was adjourned to permit the sub-committee to visit the locality and determine what proposal was the most feasible.

The Home of Hart, Schaffner & Marx Clothes

Overcoats
LOOK at the overcoats we have pictured here.
There is your answer to any question of Style—for even in the illustration, inadequate as it is, you can see well the style that characterizes every line of these Hart, Schaffner & Marx overcoats of ours.
Needless to say that style will last, for you know that thorough all-woolness of fabric and honesty of tailoring are guaranteed you by their maker's name, and by ours too.
Values?—Whether you pay $25, or more, or less, your money brings you a good bit greater value in Hart, Schaffner & Marx clothes than it does in any other line shown in New York. So call and see them—this very day.
Overcoats, $15 to $65.
Suits, 18 to 50.
Hats
WALLACH HATS have been known to New York men too long to need comment.
Three dollars' worth of genuine hat quality—five dollars' worth of style is in every Wallach Hat at two dollars.
Better qualities at $3.00.
Imported Italian Soft Hats at $3.50.
Stetson's $3.50 and $5.00.
Underwear
ALL year round we carry in stock medium weight underwear made by the Norfolk and New Brunswick Hosiery Co.
Just the right weight for now—colors, white and natural.
Mighty fine garments these and mighty well made.
Special value at $1.00.
